GREAT BRITIAN IS CONFRONTED WITH A NEW CRISIS IN INDIA.

Sir James Willcocks's War With Tribesmen.

This picture, drawn from photographs by C. M. Sheldon, for the "London Black and White," gives an excellent idea of frontier warfare in India. The photograph in the upper right hand corner is that of John Morley, British Secretary of State for India, who ordered the punitive expeditions against the rebellious Zakka Khels and other tribesmen. In the lower left hand corner is shown Gen. Lord Kitchener, who is going to the front to take command of the British army of 20,000 men.

BATTLE IN INDIA.

British Suffer Heavy Losses.

Fierce Skirmish With Wild Mohmand Tribesmen on Frontier.

Gen. Willcocks Leads Attack to Protect His Lines of Communication.

Further Fighting Expected and Gen. Kitchener Goes to the Front.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SIMLA (India) April 24:—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Sixty British soldiers were killed or wounded in a fierce skirmish with the rebellious Mohmand tribesmen and their Afghan allies along the northern frontier today. The native losses have not yet been reported.

The attack followed movements by natives evidently directed toward cutting the line of communication of the English force already concentrated in the north. All available troops were hurled against the regiment. Further fighting seems certain.

SERIOUS SITUATION CONFRONTS BRITISH.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Sir James Willcocks is face to face with a large force of tribesmen who were too late to come to the assistance of the Zakka Khel, but who are seeking to avenge them. He wires that, as the enemy threatened to cut his lines of communication, he attacked them this morning with two columns.

The British troops drove the enemy from their sangars (entrenchments.) The British casualties numbered sixty.

The exact object of the rising is not yet explained, but the tribesmen, who are Mohmands, and neighbors of the Zakka Khels, who were recently repressed by Gen. Willcocks, apparently have been stirred up by their fanatic mullahs or priests against the British on the ground that the latter were encroaching on their territory, the boundaries of which are vague, never having been delimited by the Indian government. They are less warlike than the Zakka Khels and Afridis and are not nearly so well armed, but they are being supported by thousands of Afghan tribesmen, who, it is stated, the Ameer has made no attempt to restrain.

Other neighboring tribesmen are also assisting them. Their offensive operations thus far have been confined chiefly to cutting the telegraph lines and raiding villages in what is claimed to be British territory.

Gen. Willcocks, with several British and Indian regiments of artillery and cavalry, has been watching from a few miles south of the foothills, where the Mohmands are making their quarters. On Wednesday, in consequence of repeated sniping and other aggressions, he shelled the tribesmen.

The government received from Simla today a brief message stating that the Mohmands had threatened to cut his lines of communication, and Gen. Willcocks had attacked and driven them from their entrenchments.

A later dispatch from Peshawur describes the engagement as a big one. The British casualties included several officers. The enemy lost severely. Gen. Willcocks has, or will shortly have, 10,000 troops.

Gen. Kitchener has arrived and taken charge of the situation. More troops are being rushed from the South.

ASSOCIATED PRESS REPORT OF BATTLE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SIMLA, April 24.—In consequence of an attempt made by the Mohmand tribesmen to cut his lines of communication, Sir James Willcocks, the British commander, sent out from Peshawur against the raiding natives, attacked them this morning with two columns, comprising all his available troops.

After a sharp fight, the British troops dislodged the tribesmen. The British casualties are given at sixty. The Mohmands' losses are unknown.

BUSCH IS THREATENED.

St. Louis Multi-millionaire Brewer Receives Inflammatory Postal Card Through the Postoffice.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. LOUIS, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The St. Louis postoffice authorities are investigating a threatening postal card received by Adolphus Busch, head of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Company.

The missive was received at the brewery today. It accused Mr. Busch of having got all his money from the poor working people, and refers to him in scurrilous language. The card is supposed to be the result of the slighting remarks against prohibition made by Busch in a recent interview upon his return from Los Angeles.

Mr. Busch is said to have received other letters, which, for unexplained reasons, he prefers not to trace.

SUBMARINE SCANDAL.

LILLEY CONFESSES CHARGES BASELESS.

Put on Defensive, Congressman Admits Stupendous Ignorance on Question of Submarines and Accusations Made on Vague Rumors.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Representative Lilley was placed squarely on the defensive today by the committee investigating his charges against the Electric Boat Company, and finally admitted, reluctantly, that the only basis for his resolution was an opinion he had formed from vague rumors that he had heard.

He further admitted that he had never seen a submarine in course of construction, had no knowledge whatever of the cost of such craft, and had never made any calculations personally before stating to the Committee on Rules of the House that he expected to prove the Electric Boat Company would make more than $1,000,000 improper profit from their last contract with the government.

The committee heard today that the person who wrote the anonymous letters on the Lake company's typewriter in this city, has prepared a full confession, and will present it tomorrow. Chairman Boutell would not admit that the identity of the writer is known, but he is generally understood to be a certain well-known agent of the Lake Boat Company.

Responsibility for these letters has been so narrowed down to one or two persons, and the fact has apparently been so well established that Mr. Lilley must have known that they were going to be sent, that indignation against him on the floor of the House is at fever heat.

Hounding and traducing a fellow-member, even indirectly, is one of the most serious offenses of which a Congressman can be guilty, and it would not surprise many of his colleagues if, after the report of the special committee has been made public, Lilley is brought before the bar of the House under charges which, if proven, would result in his expulsion.

Connecticut Congressman, whose charges against the Holland Boat Company have fallen flat.

ANGRY HUMOR.

BRILLIANT IS SHAW APHORISM.

CHECK FOR STORY IS RETURNED TO COLLIER'S.

Humorist and Iconoclast Tells Messrs. P. F. Collier & Son That If They See Fit to Use Money to Erect Their Tombstones He Will Be Happy to Compose the Epitaph.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] George Bernard Shaw, humorist and iconoclast, has made his most brilliant aphorism. He has sacrificed $1000 to comedy, and thinks the jest is worth it.

Mr. Shaw's joke is played on the publishers of Collier's Weekly. They recently awarded him $1000 in one of their quarterly competitions for his short story, "Aërial Football—A New Game," printed in Collier's last November.

Shaw terms the award an "unspeakable outrage." He is not "in the habit of accepting bonuses or competing for prizes."

He returns the check for the thousand with the gratuitous offer that if Messrs. P. F. Collier & Son see fit to use it for the purpose of erecting their tombstone he will be happy to compose the epitaph.

Judging by the somewhat labored retort of Collier's, it is more blessed to send back than to take back. Norman Hapgood, the editor, admits that the awarding of the offensive thousand to Shaw's story was a mistake. It will not occur again.

The blame for the award is laid on a mythical sporting editor, who naturally selected Mr. Shaw's short story for the special prize, but when his choice was made known, Mr. Hapgood says the man lost his job.

MANY DIE IN MEXICO WRECK.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CITY OF MEXICO, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Neglect of train hands to put out flags caused a disastrous wreck this afternoon on the Mexican Railroad at Darganta siding in Maltrata Pass.

Twenty-eight persons are known to be dead and fifteen injured.

A freight train was at the siding when a special excursion train carrying a large party of pilgrims returning from the shine of Guadalupe crashed into it. Most of the deaths were caused by escaping steam.

ROMANCE'S TRAGIC END.

DUC DE CHAULNES'S BRIDE IS A WIDOW.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

PARIS April 24.—In the presence of his bride of less than three months, Emanuel Theodore Bernard Marie d'Albert de Luynes d'Ally, ninth Duke of Chaulnes, and of Picquigny, and Marquis of Dangeau, died suddenly from heart failure, at 11 o'clock Thursday night, in his apartment in the Hotel Langham, in the Rue Boozador.

The physicians summoned to attend the Duke in his sudden seizure, officially gave the cause of death as embolism of the heart.

The Duc de Chaulnes and the Duchess, who was Miss Theodora Shonts, youngest daughter of Theodore P. Shonts, of New York, were married in New York on February 16 last. The wedding was a brilliant social function, and the end of the brief honeymoon was sudden and tragic. Since the arrival of the couple here a month ago, they have lived comparatively quiet at the Hotel Langham, taking an occasional automobile ride in the afternoon and in the evening dining with intimate friends, or going to the theater.

The Duke for years has suffered from a weak heart, and for some time had been the subject of fainting spells. Several times since his arrival here he consulted Dr. Henri Iscovesco in an effort to obtain relief from his ailments.

Yesterday evening the Duke and Duchess, both in the best of spirits, returned from a drive in the Bois de Boulogne. They dined in their private apartments, and an hour after dinner the Duke complained of feeling ill and retired.

About 11 o'clock he was suddenly stricken, gasped for breath and immediately lost consciousness. The Duchess was seized with panic and screamed for aid. A maid who responded to her cry, was hurriedly dispatched for Dr. Iscovesco, while the hotel management summoned another physician. The two doctors arrived simultaneously at the bedside of the sufferer, and administered the most powerful stimulants, but their efforts were in vain.

The Duchess was holding the Duke in her arms when he expired. She was overcome with grief, and could not be persuaded by some of her American friends who visited the apartment to leave the bedside of her dead husband, and kept vigil there throughout the night.

Theodore P. Shonts was notified by cable of his daughter's bereavement, and a message was received from him today, saying that he would take the first steamer leaving New York and come to Paris. The Duke's family was notified this morning and his sister, the Duchess d'Uzes, who was at Biarritz, started immediately for Paris.

Today Mrs. H. Millington Drake and other friends did what they could to comfort the distracted widow whose grief calmed somewhat during the afternoon.

When the death of the Duke became generally known today, a steady stream of the Duke's friends, including a number of members of the French nobility, called at the hotel and left cards of condolence.

The refusal of the hotel authorities during the afternoon to give particulars concerning the death of the Duke led to reports that there was some mystery surrounding it, but these were completely dissipated by M. Jeanton, a police physician, who made an examination of the body in the presence of other physicans, and officially certified that death was due to a natural cause and that there was no necessity for an autopsy.

Tonight the body of the Duke was placed in a double oak coffin, and tomorrow it will be transferred to a crypt in the Church of St. Philip de Roule, where it will remain pending arrangements for the funeral, which it is expected, will not take place until after the arrival of Mr. Shonts from New York.

In accordance with traditions of the French nobility, the funeral will be a pretentious function, and will attract to Paris the which the Duke's family is allied.

The air of mystery surrounding the circumstances of the death of the Duke which was created largely by misleading statements with reference to the place of death and ultimate disposition of the body was in no sense cleared up by a story which was generally circulated to the effect that the Duke was in fact taken violently ill at some house other than his hotel and that he was hurriedly carried to the Langham where he died shortly after his arrival. It was impossible to confirm or deny this rumor this afternoon.

At the Langham all information relative to the death of the Duke was refused excepting the "official" statement that the Duc de Chaulnes had died at the home of a member of his family and not at the hotel.

It was explained that this was the way the family desired the announcement to be made.

DUKE SAID TO HAVE BEEN VICTIM OF DRUGS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] In some quarters the hypothesis of suicide in the case of the Duc de Chaulnes gains credence. This idea is scouted by those who knew the Duke well, but some of these persons say that the immediate cause of death was an overdose of morphine, to the use of which drug the Duke was addicted.

The drug habit was acquired long ago by the Duke, and friends tell of times when he had remained under the influence of the narcotic for days at a time.

Just prior to his visit to America, whither he went to marry Miss Shonts, he is reported to have given full rein to his habit. Then came a period of comparative abstinence. Since the marriage he is known to have made a most heroic effort to do without the drug. He was not altogether successful.

Le Petite Journal publishes the following details regarding the Duc de Chaulnes's death:

"The doctor who was called in found on a table at the side of the bed phials containing cocaine, ether and morphine, the Duke being addicted to the use of morphine. It is considered likely that the Duke took an overdose of the drug, which, as he suffered

MURDEROUS WIND.

LONG LIST OF DEAD.

Tornadoes Sweep Middle West.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW ORLEANS, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] One hundred and sixty-five persons were killed and 462 injured, many fatally, in a series of tornadoes which today swept thirteen States of the Union from the Dakotas to the Gulf of Mexico, leaving a trail of destroyed villages, ruined farms, devastated countrysides and bereaved households.

The full weight of the storms fell on the States of Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama, where eight small towns were badly damaged. Two storms swept the three States, moving in opposite directions.

Before bursting on this part of the country the tornadoes traversed North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Illinois, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Tennessee and Oklahoma.

In the vicinity of Natchez, Miss., sixty persons were killed and 126 injured. Hundreds of houses were destroyed.

The tornado plowed through the counties of Adams, Jefferson and Claiborne, Miss., for a distance of fifty miles, leveling every building which came in its way.

The town of Wi[illegible] the [illegible] was [illegible] as the hospital at Natchez.

In Louisiana it is estimated that a score of small towns were destroyed or partially wrecked. They include Amite City, where forty-five persons were killed, Arcadia and Independence, Belgrove, Melton, Lorman, Pine Ridge, Quitman Landing, Fairchilds Creek, Purvis and Lumberton, Miss., are reported seriously damaged by the storm.

AID POURING IN.

The tornado struck Dora, Ala., known also as Burgin, a mining town on the Frisco, thirty-five miles from Birmingham, this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Five persons were killed. Many cars standing on the siding were blown off the track and smashed to pieces.

Reports state that the storm struck Albertville at 4 o'clock this afternoon and destroyed almost all the northern part of town. An unconfirmed report gives the death list at from thirty to thirty-five, with scores of people injured. A special train has gone from Birmingham, Ala., with physicians and State militia, and other aid is pouring in from all directions.

Mrs. Devereux Shields of Natchez is reported killed in Concordia Parish, La., and Harry Lambind fatally injured. Considerable damage was done at Pine Ridge, eight miles northeast of Natchez. Many were injured.

Richland and Lamourie, La., suffered severely by the tornado. Richland has 500 inhabitants, while Lamourie is much smaller.

SCHOOL DEMOLISHED.

Four persons were killed at Richland and two fatally injured. It is reported that one-fifth of the population, or about 100 persons, suffered injuries.

The house of Ephraim Pearce was blown down and Mr. Pearce, his wife and baby were killed outright. On the Wilson plantation near Richland a child was killed by a falling cabin. The property loss at Richland is estimated at several thousand dollars.

At Baxter, Miss., fifty school children had a narrow escape from death. When the teachers saw the tornado approaching they hurried to get their charges to places of safety. Just as the last child was out of the building the storm lifted off the roof and carried it into the air, afterward blowing down the walls. Eight persons were injured and a heavy property loss inflicted in the town.

Eighteen were also killed and over thirty injured yesterday and today in Texas, where tornadoes hit many towns.

COURSE OF STORM.

The first tornado in Louisiana appeared in the vicinity of Shreveport about midnight last night, where several buildings were destroyed and three persons injured. At daylight it hit Lamourie and Richland. Next came Vidalia. Crossing the river into Mississippi, it devasted the towns of Pine Ridge, Rodney and Church Point.

Communication has been impossible with Hattiesburg, Miss., where it is reported nine were killed and the town of Wyngate was wiped out. In Claiborne county, near Port Gibson, one negro woman was killed, and at Lorman, same county, one negro child was killed and its parents fatally hurt.

After leaving Wahalaka the tornado seems to have gone into Alabama, where it caused death and destruction

Mme. Gould's Suitor Rushes to Greet Her.

Ex-Countess of De Castellane Shows Infatuation.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NAPLES, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] When the Friederich Der Grosse steamed into the Naples harbor and dropped anchor at 6 o'clock this morning, Mme. Anna Gould, fully dressed in a smart navy blue gown of the short-skirted tourist cut, stepped to the door of the captain's cabin and looked about with expectant happiness in the glance that scanned the shore.

She had not long to wait. The gangways were scarcely lowered when the impatient Helie de Sagan sprang aboard and hurried across the deck to take Mme. Anna's hand and carry it to his lips.

Mme. Gould conversed with him for more than half an hour in the captain's cabin. She took him also to see the children whom he embraced affectionately.

While neither the Prince nor Mme. Gould would say what their plans were as to marriage, the children's tutor was less reticent.

"Rest assured," said the tutor, "the marriage will occur, but nobody can say when and where and I am not in a position to ask."

Prince De Sagan has left the Hotel Royal and taken an apartment on the Romero near the Hotel Bertolini, where Mme. Goul is staying. They dined in the restaurant of the Bertolini this evening. After dinner, when Anna had retired, De Sagan left for the telegraph office with an apparently lengthy dispatch over which they were consulting during the day.

Anna's infatuation for De Sagan is patent to everybody about her. His manner to her is most elaborately deferential and sentimental. It is rumored here tonight that Boni de Castellane is on his way to Naples to make a last appeal to Anna against De Sagan.

ON BLIND HUNT.

TWO HELD IN BOMB MYSTERY.

DETECTIVES ADMIT THEY HAVE LITTLE EVIDENCE.

Concentrate Efforts on Examination of Small Boy Who Was Near Gallagher's Home Just Before Explosion and Who Saw Two Men Loitering in the Vicinity.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Oakland police have two men in custody on suspicion that they know something of the attempt to kill James L. Gallagher, with a bomb but the detectives admit they have little evidence to justify holding them.

One of the prisoners is James Kerr, a horseshoer. The police refuse to give the name of the other. The men were arrested in a drug store where they were trying to buy acid.

In searching about for a tangible clew upon which to work, the detectives concentrated themselves on questioning Charles Schenck, the 18-year-old son of Gallagher's brother-in-law, who was sitting on the front steps a few minutes before the explosion.

The boy told the police that he went out through the back of the house and around to the front steps to await the arrival of a boy friend. He sat for twenty minutes, according to his story, a few feet from the vestibuled doorway and then returned to the rear of the house. A moment before he left the front garden he noticed two men stroll leisurely along the street northward until they became lost to view behind the shrubbery overhanging an adjoining garden wall. It was but a few minutes after this that the detonation, with the resultant crashing of timbers came.

A half hour before the explosion and a few minutes before the lad took up his position near the front porch of the house to await his friend, his sister, Anita, entered the house. Hence it is evident that the bomb, if it was such, must have been placed in position at a time earlier than 7 o'clock or during the few minutes elapsing while young Schenck walked from the front to the rear of the residence.

The Schenck boy was frank in his answers given to the interrogations of the detectives. It was learned that he was of an ingenious trend of mind and has dabbled some, in a boyish way, in electricity, chemicals and even chemistry, but no particular significance is attached to this discovery.

Schenck's mechanical abilities were shown by a wireless telegraph apparatus which he had erected in the back yard of the wrecked house, and the electrical batteries, bells, wires and other contrivances found in a little shed on the rear, which the boy and his chum used as a laboratory to experiment on their ideas.

There is a slight difference between the story told Wednesday and of that of yesterday regarding the boy's position at the time of the explosion. Yesterday he said that at the moment of the explosion he was in the shed with his chum in the back yard, working over an electric light. Wednesday night, after the explosion, he had said that he was returning alone from the front to the back yard.

A microscopical examination of fragments from the ruins is being made to ascertain the nature of the explosive used.

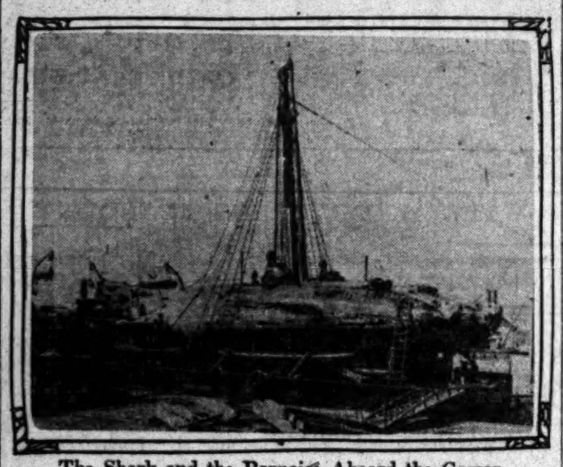
COLLIER TAKES SUBMARINES TO PHILLIPINES.



The Shark and the Porpoise Aboard the Caesar, which sailed yesterday from the New York navy yard for the Philippines, where the two submarines will be launched at Cavite. The Caesar will make the trip around the Horn and up across the Pacific. Thousands of persons have recently visited the navy yard to see the strange fighting craft. From the bulkhead off the dry dock, where the Caesar was moored, the Porpoise and the Shark appeared to dwarf the superstructure of the collier, so high did they project above the deck houses. Landsmen as well as naval experts, were speculating what would happen if the Caesar ran into a heavy blow while steaming to the Pacific. Capt. Easton, commander of the collier, said that every percaution had been taken to insure the safety of the Shark and the Porpoise, and that he did not believe they would be endangered by big waves or heavy blows.

at Albertville, Bergin and near Warrior.

SECOND TORNADO.

This afternoon another tornado traveling wertward hit the town of Winchester, in Mississippi, near the Alabama State line. Further west it hit Baxter, ten miles from Lumberton, wiping out the town and killing the Rayburn family. Then it hit Purvis, where the famous Sullivan-Kilrain prize fight trial was held, and practically wiped the town off the map.

Coming over into Louisiana, it struck the town of Angie near the State line, demolishing a store and a score of buildings, but no lives were lost. In the surrounding country out of twenty-five dwellings in its path, only two remain. Two persons were killed and fifty injured. At Franklinton, the parish seat of Washington parish, twenty buildings were demolished and several persons injured. Continuing westward the full force of the tornado hit Amite City, the parish seat of Tangiphoa parish, destroyed every church in the town and fifty dwellings, damaged every other building in the place.

A special train brought all of the critically injured from Amite and vicinity to the Charity Hospital in New Orleans.

KILLED IN BED.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NATCHEZ (Miss.) April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Sixty-four lives were blotted out this morning by a tornado which started seven miles south of Vidalia, La., across the river from here, and pursued a northerly course to Carter's plantation back of Vidalia. In this range thirteen were killed and thirty-five injured. Of the latter, ten will die.

Mrs. Deveraux Shields of Natchez, who was visiting her sister, Mrs. Winton, at Lucerne, the first plantation visited by the tornado, was killed in bed.

S. H. Lamdine, owner of Lucerne plantation, was fatally injured. All the remaining victims were negroes.

Crossing the river at Giles Bend, four miles north of Natchez, the tornado demolished eight houses on the bluff, killing four negroes and injuring ten. At Pine Ridge, James Vickers, white, and twelve negroes were killed. At Church, northeast of Pine Ridge, thirty-five were killed.

FATALITIES IN TEXAS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

AUSTIN (Tex.) April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The cyclone devastated a strip of territory about fifty miles long, spending its force at a point near Florence, forty miles north of here, last night.

It is reported that Florence was destroyed and fifteen people were killed there. It is twelve miles from the nearest railroad point, and telephone communication is cut off. The same cyclone destroyed buildings in Belton and Youngsport.

Cyclones and cloudbursts are reported from many different parts of the State today. Many houses in the town of Rice were blown away, and three negroes killed.

Four persons were injured by a cyclone at Clifton, where two churches and many residences were blown down.

Meridian's business and residence sections suffered great damage by the cyclone last night, many buildings being wrecked. Several buildings at Coyote were blown down.

DANGER IN ST. LOUIS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Because of an official prediction of "probably severe thunder storms," several schools were dismissed and when the children reached their homes their mothers kept the wires busy asking the Weather Bureau and the newspapers whether a tornado had been predicted.

Excitement was caused at the Sacred Heart Convent, Maryland and Taylor avenues, when information was telephoned there by some person that the Weather Bureau had sent out a warning of a cyclone which would strike the city in ten minutes.

The air was humid and the wind was fitful all afternoon. At 2 p.m. the gale reached a velocity of forty miles an hour.

Pennants, lanterns and banners, have been arranged to make a charming picture for the fiesta by Rob Wagner, artist and general director of the festival Crowds are flocking to the city.

There will be a multitude watching the fleet come into the channel at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, for the stores will be closed. ANOTHER PROHIBITION FIGHT.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Plans to make the liquor question the principal item of next fall's legislative campaign came from three sources today. The prohibitionists gave out a programme for their State campaign with the declaration that they expect to land thirty members of the General Assembly next winter. The Saloon League announced that its campaign would not be confined to picking favorable legislative candidates, but that it would also take part in finding favorable candidates for State's attorneys. And of course the United Societies will make their campaign in direct opposition to these interests.

TO FOUND AN ADAMLESS EDEN.

TWENTY FAIR, UNKISSED CHICAGO GIRLS HAVE THEORY.

Are Going to Establish a Colony in Wilds of Wyoming to Prove Their Contention That Young Women May Be Entirely Independent of the Sterner Sex.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] An Adamless Eden as a haven in the wilds of Wyoming for all suffragettes, a place where, under the trained hands of twenty fair, unkissed Chicago girls, a model city will rise out of the desert-like surroundings, is on the verge of founding.

In an effort to prove to the world and to twenty "doubting Thomases" in particular, that women can be as independent and as successful as their brothers and admirers of the sterner sex, these young women students and graduates of the Arts-Craft Institute are preparing to go to Wyoming to establish their "Adamless colony" there.

Mrs. T. Vernette Morsé, president of the Arts-Craft Institute, is to be the "Mother Eve" of the colony. An agent is already in Wyoming looking for a site.

A few miles from where the female colony will be founded twenty or more male students of the institute will be working and slaving on an "Eveless town," that is, it is to be Eveless at the start, but the young men have no such stern edict against the other sex as characterize the plan of the girl students.

BUZZARDS ON REDMAN'S BODY

Remains of Well-Known Arizona Man Found.

First to Discover Gold in the Vicinity of Kingman.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

The body was found by Indians, who had been paid $100 by the county to search for him. The citizens of Kingman had been searching for him since he left. Redman first came to Kingman when mines were first discovered in the region. He was a man of honorable principles, and would see no claim jumped come into the camp and steal that which belonged by right and belong to his fellow-countrymen.

Redman came from an old German family, born in Hanover-on-the-Main, forty years ago, March 12. He came to this country 32 years ago, and became a prospector. He was one of the first to discover gold. He was unfortunate, however, as he was compelled to sell many a claim which in after years turned out good paying

Redman was first elected a justice of the peace eighteen years ago, and at the end of his term he was unanimously appointed to continue as justice of the peace until five years ago, when he returned to the life of a prospector. Redman had sold a mine not long ago, and the price was never made public, but it is admitted it was of such a nature that it kept him from all want for the remainder of his days. That Redman was not found sooner by the hundreds of people who looked for him is quite peculiar. Some twenty thousand sheep had been sent to this county to be sheared and a great many of the sheep died from disease, which brought flocks of buzzards to the shearing pens. It is a known fact that the buzzards so gorged themselves from the dead sheep that Redman's body was completely covered with buzzards. After spending three weeks of hunting by citizens of Kingman without success, the Walapai Indians, who discovered the body left the first day covered with

Redman had been in a very melancholy mood for three months before he was missed, and every one here in town had heard him threaten to end his life. Redman has no relatives in this city, but has a few nieces living in Portland, O.

The Coroner's inquest was held this morning, and a verdict of suicide while of unsound mind was returned. He was interred by the whole city of Kingman. He will be buried this morning.

In Southern California cotton plantations have been established, one or two by the government, and it is desired that every precaution be taken to prevent the boll weevil getting into the State.

KNIGHTS TEMPLARS ADJOURN.

Grand Commandery Installs Officers and Votes Charter to Golden West of Los Angeles.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The fiftieth conclave of the Grand Commandery Knights Templars of California closed this afternoon with formal installation of the newly elective and appointive grand officers as follows:

William D. Stephens, Los Angeles Commander; Harvey D. Loveland, San Francisco, Deputy Commander; Louis F. Bruner, Sacramento, Generalissimo; Albert A. Caldwell, Los Angeles, Captain General; Rodolf D. Meek, Oakland, Senior Warden; William A. Hammel, Los Angeles, Junior Warden; Reuben H. Sink, Stockton, Prelate; Edward Coleman, San Francisco, Treasurer; William A. Davies, Alameda, Recorder; James F. Tapscott, Treka, Standard Bearer; John F. Fraser, San Francisco, Sword Bearer; George W. Perkins, San Francisco, Captain of the Guard; Samuel D. Meyer, San Francisco, Organist.

The appointive office of Grand Warden has not yet been filled. Past Grand Commander Charles Lord Field acted as installing officer assisted by Past Commander W. G. Alexander, of San José, as marshal at today's session.

The Grand Commandery voted to grant a charter to Golden West Commandery No. 43, Los Angeles, which has made a splendid record under dispensation.

Upon the petition of about fifty Knights Templars of the locality, a dispensation was granted for the formation of a commandery at Santa Cruz.

The grand body voted to subscribe for $50,000 stock in the proposed Masonic temple to be erected here.

Past Commander Judge John Bledsoe of San Bernardino, in a splendid speech eulogizing the zeal and untiring efforts of Past Grand Commander Field, introduced a resolution devoting $200 to purchase some suitable testimonial in appreciation of very eminent Sir Field's work for Templarism in this State. The resolution unanimously carried amid much enthusiasm.

BONDS HELD TO BE VALID.

SACRAMENTO COUNTY UPHELD.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 24.—The Supreme Court today decided in favor of the validity of the Sacramento county bonds, amounting to $1,105,000. A writ of mandate was issued to the Auditor of Sacramento county to attest and sign the bonds, as they had been voted for by the people and ordered by the Supervisors.

The court disposes of the first objection of the Auditor to the effect that the law does not authorize bonds payable from taxes to be levied on property, including the city property, for work to be done outside of the municipality, by quoting a section of the Political Code, which plainly snowed the bonds to be valid from that point of view.

The only other objection made was that the tax levied for the purpose of paying the interest on the bonds would not be available at the time the first installment of the interest became due, the interest being payable semi-annually. The court held that the law contemplated only the necessity for a tax levy to provide for the payment of interest once a year. The payment of the first installment could be deferred. It was only important that the tax be sufficient to pay the interest and make up the necessary sinking fund and that it be collected annually. This, the court maintained, had been provided for.

Rickey, the indicted president of the State Bank and Trust Company, stated today at Carson City that he is willing to take up his 1000 shares of stock in the bank at the rate of $100 per share and open the bank so that all depositors will eventually be paid dollar for dollar under the following conditions:

First, that the directors of the bank take up the remaining 100,000 shares of the bank at the rate of $100 per share, or pay an assessment equal to that amount.

Second, that all the indictments filed against himself, the directors, the cashiers and the assistant cashiers in the various counties be dismissed and the prosecutions dropped.

Third, that all the depositors sign the agreement some time ago submitted to them, whereby they must agree to allow their money to remain in the bank and withdraw it only in the following manner; One-third in three months; one-third in nine months and the remaining third at the end of one year.

Ford's Assistant Gives Evidence Under Protest.

Prosecution's New Witnesses Prove Uninteresting.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 24.—The prosecution today called two new witnesses to the stand in the case of Tirey L. Ford, general counsel for the United Railways, on trial for the third time before Superior Judge Lawlor, on the charge of bribing Supervisors during the Schmitz regime.

One of the witnesses was Frank F. Morris, a book-keeper in the Western National Bank safe deposit vaults, who testified that Abraham Ruef on May 25, 1906, rented a third safe deposit box, coincident with the drawing by Ford of $50,000 in small bills at the mint on that date, which, it is alleged by the prosecution, was the money given to Ruef as the first payment to the Supervisors for the passage of the trolley ordinance on May 21.

The other new witness was State Senator George B. Keane, formerly associated with Ruef in the practice of law, and clerk of the boodling Board of Supervisors. Keane's memory was rather vague on some points and portions of his testimony were indefinite. Very little of importance was elicited from him.

Other witnesses who repeated their testimony given at the two former trials of Ford, were Charles Haggerty, Ruef's office boy; W. K. Cole, cashier at the mint; E. D. Hawkins, bookkeeper at the mint, and Nathan Selig, Hawkins's assistant.

Another witness was William M. Abbott, assistant general counsel for the United Railways.

A. A. Moore, Sr., chief counsel for Ford, brought out that witness (Abbott) was jointly indicted with the defendant and upon this showing, objected to Abbott testifying and advised him not to answer the questions asked by Asst. Dist.-Atty. O'Gara.

"When you pleaded to these indictments," asked Judge Lawlor, "did you demand a severance from your co-defendants?"

"I did," replied Abbott.

"Objection overruled," said the court.

Being directed not to answer, Abbott said:

"On advise of counsel, I refuse to answer."

Asked if it would incriminate himself, Abbott declared: "My testimony would not incriminate me or anybody else."

Upon motion of O'Gara, this answer was stricken from the record.

Abbott then proceeded to testify under protest and told of accompanying Ford to the mint upon two occasions to draw money, but stated that he did not know what his calef did with it or what it was intended for.

Abbott admitted that he made the first rough draft of the trolley ordinance which, with some changes, was subsequently passed by the Supervisors.

Court adjourned to Monday.

FRIENDSHIP.

SEALS BONDS OF EUROPEAN PEACE.

TEXT OF NORTH SEA TREATY IS MADE PUBLIC IN BERLIN.

Signatories to "Maintain and Mutually Respect the Existing Territorial Rights of Their States" in Region Affected, Promoting Feeling of Friendship Among Nations.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

BERLIN, April 24.—The North Sea treaty, signed here yesterday, was made public today. It takes the form of a joint declaration as follows:

"The governments of Germany, Denmark, France, Great Britain and the Netherlands and Sweden, influenced by the wish to strengthen the bonds of neighborly friendship between their states, and the treaty contributory toward universal peace, concur in the policy of the lands bordering on the North Sea, aiming at preserving the existing territorial status quo.

"They declare, therefore, that they are firmly resolved to maintain and mutually respect the existing territorial rights of their states in these regions.

"If any circumstances whatever should arise which in the opinion of one of the above mentioned governments should threaten the existing territorial status quo, the signatories of this declaration will confer with each other in order to arrive at an understanding through an agreement among themselves upon such measures as they may regard useful in the interest of preserving the present status quo of their possessions. The political decision will be ratified as soon as possible, and the ratifications will be handed in Berlin so soon as possible, but not later than December 21."

The declaration regarding the Baltic Sea, which also was signed yesterday, likewise was made public today. It is almost identical with the North Sea declaration. The signatories are the German Emperor and the Emperor of Russia, the King of Denmark and the King of Sweden. Neither France nor Great Britain participate in this declaration.

The North Sea agreement is the first important diplomatic achievement of Herr Von Schoen, the Imperial Foreign Secretary. The chief significance attached to the declaration here is that it will disarm foreign suspicions of Germany's designs against the integrity of the Netherlands.

DIVORCE CASE INTERNATIONAL.

COUNT GIZYCKI BRINGS PROCEEDINGS IN VIENNA.

His Wife, Who Was Miss Eleanor M. Patterson, Daughter of Robert W. Patterson of the Chicago "Tribune," Says She Is Virtually Deserted and That Count Beat Her.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

VIENNA, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Count Gizycki has begun divorce proceedings against his wife, who, before her marriage, was Miss Eleanor M. Patterson, daughter of Robert W. Patterson of the Chicago Tribune.

The greatest secrecy is maintained as to the grounds for the suit. Both parties have retained lawyers of Vienna to represent them in the court proceedings. The Count, who at present has the custody of their only child, is living at the Grand Hotel in this city, while the Countess is living at the Hotel Sacher and is awaiting the arrival of her brother from Chicago.

There have been rumors for a long time of trouble between the Count and Countess, who have resided in Vienna intermittently for the last five years. They have, however, lived together most of the time on the Count's estates in Galicia, in the south of Russia. The Countess, it is reported, has talked freely to her friends in Vienna regarding her marital troubles. She accuses her husband of passing half his time in the Vienna Jockey Club and on the race tracks, so that he has been away from her most of the time, living a Bohemian life.

The Countess further alleges that the Count has beaten her. She is greatly annoyed because her husband has retained the most sensational lawyer in Vienna to represent him in the suit. She says she has an income of $20,000 a year, which she has spent upon herself, and that her husband has five times as much.

The Count's side of the story cannot be learned at present, as he left Vienna this morning for a short trip in the country.

MRS. PATTERSON SURPRISED.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] When shown the above dispatch Mrs. Joseph Medill Patterson said:

"I am surprized at such a story and I do not believe there is any truth in it. My husband, who is the Countess Gizycki's brother, has gone abroad, but his trip has nothing to do with any difficulty between the Count and the Countess. In fact, he has not gone to Vienna at all. I have never heard of any trouble between the Gizyckis and I think I would know if there were any."

Miss Eleanor Patterson, before her wedding to Count Joseph Gisycki, was well known in society circles in Washington, as well as in Chicago. Her wedding was a society event and it took place at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Patterson, in Dupont Circle, Washington. Her wedding was of more than usual importance owing to importance of her family in this country and that of the bridegroom and his family in Russia and Austria.

BIG FIRM SUSPENDED.

Receiver Appointed for T. A. McIntyre & Co., of New York Stock, Cotton and Produce Exchanges.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, April 24.—The suspension of T. A. McIntyre & Co., brokers and members of the New York Stock Exchange and the New York Cotton and Produce exchanges, was announced today.

The firm did a large business and had branches in Chicago, Baltimore, Boston, Hartford, Binghampton, Syracuse, Rochester and Hot Springs, Va.

The members of the firm are Thomas A. McIntyre, George C. Ryan, John G. McIntyre, Thomas A. McIntyre, Jr., J. E. Hulshiser, James M. Hudson and Edward T. White.

The suspension was without effect on the stock market. It was stated also that while the firm was engaged in heavy transactions in the past, their prescent commitments are not large. They had taken a position on the bear side of the market and the recent advance in prices caused their suspension.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was later filed against the firm in the Federal court as a result of which C. C. Burlingham was appointed receiver for the firm.

HAYWOOD IS OUSTED,

No Longer Member of the Executive Board of the Western Federation of Miners.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DENVER, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] William D. Haywood, for many years secretary-treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners, has been ousted from the executive board of the organization by the members of that body. Announcement of this action appeared officially in the following statement that was published today in the official organ of the federation, the Miners' Magazine:

"To whom it may concern: This is to inform you that the executive board of the Western Federation of Miners has decided to terminate the services of William D. Haywood as a representative of the Western Federation of Miners in the field, the same to take effect on the 8th day of April, 1908.

[Signed] "C. E. MAHONEY,
"Vice-president, W. F. M."

This means that Haywood is no longer in the employ of the federation, even as organizer, which position he has held for several months past, or since December, when Ernest Mills was named to supersede him as secretary-treasurer. The only connection that Haywood now has is as a member of the Silver City (Idaho) lodge, which is affiliated with the parent body.

ONTARIO.

ONTARIO, April 24.—Regarding the deciduous fruit situation here following the recent rain, L. E. McCann, general manager of the Golden State Fruit Company, says: "The prospect for an exceptionally good peach crop has been assured for many weeks and it only needed a good rain at this time to make it a record output. The apricot yield will again be light this year, as the strong north wind which has prevailed here for the past two weeks has divested the trees of most of their blossoms."

CORONA.

CORONA, April 24.—The Methodist congregation is considering plans for a $10,000 church, the old building to be moved back for Sunday-school rooms.

ADIEU!

BRAVELY END FLEET VISIT.

Brilliant Ball at Redondo Finishes Programme.

"Ungodly Swell" Keeps the Admiral Aboard.

Sweetly Feminine Cheer as Curtain Descends.

"A most ungodly swell," to quote a midshipman of Admiral Sperry's flagship, the Alabama, lessened the gold-braid attendance at the final ball in the Hotel Redondo last night to the officers of the fourth division of the Atlantic fleet. To the great regret of every one, and particularly to that of fair guests from Los Angeles, the much-condemned swell kept the admiral himself from being present.

"The old man isn't as spry as some of us youngsters," remarked the bubbling middy. "I had quite a job making it myself, and the admiral wouldn't tackle it. You don't blame him, do you?" he asked, ingenuously.

Nobody could, not even the management of the hotel, which gave the ball. Most of the senior officers of the four battleships seemed to share the opinion of their chief as to the inadvisability of coming ashore. Lieutenant-Commander Henry A. Pearson of the Illinois being the only one above the rank of lieutenant who braved the trip ashore for the sake of the parting dance. The ensigns and midshipmen of the four vessels comprising the division were there in good force, however, and as all were dancing men and eager for partners, the ball was a great success.

It was less than a Cinderella affair. None of the midshipmen could do the glass-slipper act. They had to be on board promptly at midnight—Admiral Thomas's orders in this regard being very strict—so the ball ended suddenly at 11:30 o'clock, as far as they were concerned.

THE LAST FAREWELLS.

Promptly at that hour the red-jacketed band of the Kearsarge, which was stationed behind a huge Stars and Stripes on the beautifully-decorated stage at the end of the ballroom, struck up "The Star Spangled Banner." Instantly every officer came to attention and waited till the strains of the national anthem died away. Then the last farewells were said and the visit of the fourth division of the Atlantic fleet at Redondo was at an end.

The hotel guests and the visitors from Los Angeles, Pasadena, Hollywood and other places, who were present in goodly number, cheered the officers good-by; handkerchiefs fluttered from the balconies, and some of the fair partners even accompanied the departing guests to the landing place, where the "ungodly swell" was still swelling. The last sound as the curtain was rung down on Redondo's programme of entertainment was a sweetly feminine cheer.

The ball was delightfully informal. The grand march was dispensed with and officers and partners seemed determined to make the last two fleeting hours the most joyous of all.

BEAUTIFUL DECORATIONS.

Strikingly decorated was the handsome ballroom of the hotel. Of course, the national colors predominated. Flowers and greenery added greatly to the picture, and the walls were deeply draped in yellow, symbolical of golden California. Asparagus plumosus covered the candelabra and drooped gracefully from a score of baskets suspended from the bunting-covered ceiling.

Most noticeable of all the appointments, however, was the huge Old Glory at the far end of the room, the folds of which shimmered like satin rainbows as the softened electric lights shone on them. The brilliant red and blue showed up the more behind the pure white of a bank of immense lilies and the lesser glory of hundreds of marguerites of a size which Southern California alone can produce.

Among the officers present were Lieutenant-Commander H. A. Pearson, Captain of Marines Alexander S. Williams, Robert H. Dunlap, and Randolph C. Berkley; Lieutenants of Marines Robert B. Farquarson and Thomas D. Barber, Lieut. Samuel B. Thomas, Ensigns William L. Friedell, Lucien Miner, Arthur C. Stott, Jr., Louis P. Davis, Gordon W. Haines, John Grady and a score of midshipmen.

THE HOTEL CLERK will be represented in one of his inimitable talks in The Times Magazine to-morrow.

from heart weakness, resulted in his death.

"The police commissary, who was called in, rejected the theory of suicide, it being evident what had caused his death. The Duke's face was almost violet when the doctor arrived. It is a matter of public notoriety that for two years past the Duke was in a bad state of health, owing to the morphia habit, and he was obliged to drink vichy water frequently and almost exclusively."

SHONTS FAMILY HAD NO WARNING OF END.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, April 24.—The news of the Duke's death came as a great shock to Mr. Shonts and his family. There had been no previous intimation that he was in other than good health, and the letters from the Duke received recently were happy in their tone, recounting merely the incidents of their trip and of their life in France."

The cablegram to Mr. Shonts gave no details of the Duke's death, not even stating the cause of death. Immediately on its receipt, Mr. Shonts sent a cablegram asking for further information. Mrs. Shonts will leave for Paris tomorrow morning on the steamer St. Louis. It is probable that Mr. Shonts will accompany her.

The death of the Duke comes as a startling sequel to his recent marriage with Miss Shonts.

Besides his residence in the Parie Monceau quarter of Paris, the Duke had a chateau in the department of Sarthe. He was well known for his interest in athletics and all forms of outdoor diversions. He came of an old distinguished family. The Dukedom was established in 1451, and after being title had twice become extinct it was reestablished in 1889 in favor of the late Duke's father, the late Paul D'Albert De Luynes, brother of the late Duke De Luynes, who died when his only son was 2 years old.

The Duke's mother was Princess Sophie Augustinova Galitzin, who was noted for her beauty. She survived her husband only two years. The young Duke and his sister, Therese, now the Duchess D'Uses, who is his senior by two years, had been brought up in the family of their aunt, the Dowager Duchess.

The Duke and Miss Shonts were married in New York, February 16 of this year, at the Shonts home, before hundreds of guests, and the wedding was a brilliant event. The first month after the marriage was spent in the United States, and the couple sailed for the other side on March 17 on board the steamer Teutonic. The Duke inherited a fine patrimony from both his father and his grandmother, along with his titles, but it was generally understood that he expended much of his fortune, and he was said to have been financially embarrassed before his wedding with the American heiress.

LEMUEL QUIGG GOT MONEY.

Grand Jury Testimony Shows Metropolitan's Contribution and Jerome's Eagerness to Aid.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A careful reading of the testimony given before the special grand jury when Anthony N. Brady was before that body as a witness continues to disclose Dist.-Atty. Jerome's readiness to go to the aid of the Metropolitan witnesses whenever it appeared that they were being pushed closely.

As a matter of law, Mr. Jerome was on hand in his official capacity of prosecuting attorney to see whether or not a crime had been committed in connection with the sale by Brady of the Wall and Cortlandt Streets Ferries Company, a paper concern in which Thomas F. Ryan held a half interest. It will be recalled that Mr. Ryan referred to this Wall street enterprise as a clover patch.

From the examination of the minutes today details were learned of the payment by the Metropolitan Street Railway Company of $20,000 to the Republican State Campaign Committee through Lemuel E. Quigg. Mr. Quigg told the grand jury he had received an envelope from Mr. Vreeland, but insisted that he did not know how much it contained. He only learned this when he saw Gov. Odell at the Fifth Avenue Hotel tear open the envelope and draw from it twenty $1000 bills.

The money Mr. Odell, according to Quigg, handed to Reuben Fox, secretary of the committee, and told him to pass it along to Gen. McAlpin, treasurer of the State committee.

The Canadian government has decided not to press this year the insurance bill which was introduced at the opening of the session and which would impose strong restrictions on American life insurance companies which do a large business in Canada. The government desires more time to study the operations of the New York insurance law.

ARGUMENT FOR GREATER NAVY.

Senator Piles Fears War With Japan Imminent.

Thinks Strong Fleet Should Be Kept in Pacific.

Coast at Present Unfortified and Unprotected.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Arguments in favor of the President's programme for four battleships consumed most of the session of the Senate today.

Senator Piles of Washington opened the debate, declaring the Asiatic situation affecting the Pacific Coast was a menace to that section, as war clouds might quickly rise there over some clash between Americans and the Japanese. He wanted a fleet kept in the Pacific.

Senator Piles based his contention in favor of four ships on the possibilities of war with Japan, saying that the Japanese were irresistibly drawn to our shores by the advantages secured here. He said that the conflict between them and the Americans was likely to arise at any time and, in case of the event, the Japanese might be forced to wage an aggressive war against the United States even though the Japanese leaders were unfavorable to such a course.

If, he declared, war should come, our coast would be found unfortified and unprotected by battleships. Hence, he concluded, the time had not come for war but such measures as would insure security and peace. There should be two fleets, one for the Pacific and the other for the Atlantic coasts.

"If," he said, "we had two fleets, we could wage war on no nation and no nation would wage war on us. So I stand for peace in urging four battleships, and not for war."

Mr. Hale laid before the Senate a statement of battleships and other features of the American navy programme, which he said showed that as large a fleet as is now in the Pacific can be kept there and at the same time there would be ships for a still larger fleet for the Atlantic coast.

Senator Beveridge concluded the debate for the day with a strong appeal to Senators to vote for four battleships. He was constantly engaged in exchange of words with other Senators. He insisted that peace and not war would be promoted by the building up of the navy.

During the latter part of the session, telegrams were delivered to all Senators from a magazine appealing to them for four battleships.

"If the four battleships appropriation be not granted," the telegram stated, "we shall urge the President to veto the navy bill."

Early in the day Senator Bankhead of Alabama spoke in favor of national appropriations for good roads.

HALE'S ARGUMENT.

Senator Hale opened the debate by submitting a statement of the naval estimate already provided for, which, he said, would permit a fleet as large as that now making its way up the Pacific Coast, and leave a larger fleet for the Atlantic Coast. He said there had been authorized, including the authorization of the pending bill, thirty-one battleships and 5 great many cruisers, many of them as large as battleships.

"I do not think," said Mr. Hale, "that Senators and Representatives have appreciated these facts. We are not compelled to build another great fleet in order to have protection on either coast."

Senator Bacon asked Senator Hale if he had any positive knowledge that the fleet now in the Pacific was to be sent around the world, and Mr. Hale replied that he had no direct and positive information, but from legislation that had been recommended he was sure the fleet was preparing to encircle the globe.

Mr. Hale said that legislation had been recommended as "being suitable ad essential to maintain our rank and dignity in view of the fact that the fleet is to visit Asiatic ports, perhaps Africa, the Mediterranean and European ports."

He said the President, as commander-in-chief, had command of the fleet, and may order it where he will in the absence of law and regulations, but of course, Congress, if it desired, could regulate the control of the fleet.

"I do not," said Hale, "see all the advantages of the cruise seen by the Secretary of the Navy and the President, but I never have taken the view that the sending the fleet around the world is usurpation, and I can see some benefits from it in the way of disciplining the fleet. I think the fleet is going around the world, and I bid it Godspeed, hoping that we shall get out of the experiment without any complications. I do not fear danger, as I do not think the people in any part of the world where this fleet will go will be found hostile to us, and I do not fear the remotest possibility of war between any country and the United States."

PILES'S APPEAL.

An earnest appeal was made by Senator Piles of Washington, in favor of four battleships.

This, he declared, was a measure of peace and not of war. He came from the section of the country that must be the storm center of any conflict in the Pacific Ocean. The people of the Pacific were in favor of four battleships. He sent to the Vice-President's desk a statement of a vote of 142 editors attending a meeting in New York, which he said, showed 126 in favor of four battleships and the President's policy for naval expansion.

While he had never been one of those who feared war, it could not be denied, he said, that there was on the Pacific Coast a peculiar condition, and the time was coming when the people of the country would have to face that condition. The Pacific Coast, he added had by its opportunities, attracted many Asiatics, who had been reared in a different way from the people of the United States. There was a possibility of a clash between these people and those of the Pacific Coast. Under such conditions, he declared, they sometimes resort to arms. That had not occurred in the United States, but it had occurred in British Columbia.

He suggested the possibility that the Japanese government might be compelled by popular clamor to make a declaration of war, even against its will, and if the fleet on that coast should be withdrawn, the people there would, he said, be powerless in the face of any attack, because of the unfortified and undefended conditions existing there. He would vote for four new ships as a peace measure, and would, he said, rather be wrong in voting for four than right in voting for two. He was applauded.

Senator McCreary, in advocating the four battleships amendment, said the nations of the world were increasing their navies, and, unless the United States Navy continued to increase, it would find it was not even a second-class naval power.

Senator Beveridge advocated, with great earnestness, the authorization of four battleships, declaring that such a course would favor peace in the future rather than war. He commented on the idea that war was not possible, saying that, if he believed such a doctrine, he would vote against any navy. He insisted that war sprang up suddenly, while it must be prepared against deliberately.

"What information the Executive has in his possession no man knows," declared Mr. Beveridge, in referring to the President's message in favor of four battleships. An important fact was that in no other message had the President made such a recommendation on his "solemn responsibility."

Mr. Beveridge reminded the Senate that "the President is the greatest peacemaker in the world."

Stone, general manager of the Associated Press, by Chairman Mann of the special committee of the House appointed by the Speaker to investigate charges that the high price of printing paper is due to a combination or conspiracy in restrain of trade fostered and permitted by the tariff.

The text of the telegram follows:

"Special committee appointed to investigate concerning wood pulp, print paper, etc., will be glad to have you or anybody else representing either the Newspaper Publishers' Association, the Associated Press or others interested in the use of paper, testify before it at the earliest opportunity to the end that it is possible the committee may report back to the House before the adjournment of the present session of Congress.

"The committee especially desires to secure from you facts bearing on the question as to combination or conspiracy of wood pulp and paper manufacturers or dealers in restraint of trade and relating to the effect of the duty on wood pulp and print paper, on the price of paper and the paper industry.

"The committee desires to give full and unbiased consideration to the subject at once. The information upon which you have based your statements must be of great value to us. When can you come?"

Chairman Mann has called a meeting of the special committee for tomorrow at 2 p.m. He assigned to each of the members of the committee some special subject of investigation upon which they have been working since their appointment.

BURNS ON WITNESS STAND.

Detective Testifies for the Government in Hyde-Schneider-Dimond Land Fraud Case.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Secret Service Agent W. J. Burns, who was actively concerned in the first investigations into the alleged land frauds in California and Oregon, was on the witness stand during most of the day's session in the land fraud trial. Burns told of the reiteration of the confession contained in the Holsinger report by Schneider, and the latter's declaration that practically all the statements contained therein were correct.

The introduction of the testimony of Burns was in support of the ground, which Justice Stafford ruled, must soon be established by the government, that Schneider knew that the school lands obtained by him for Hyde were to be used as a basis of exchange for other lands. By Mr. Burns, the government secured identification of a letter written by Dimond to Hyde, which, it was stated, was placed in evidence in one of the hearings in San Francisco by Mr. Dimond. The letter was read to the jury and referred to the disturbed conditions which obtained in this city, particularly in the land office, after entries in California and Oregon. This was regarded as constituting an important point for the government.

[illegible]o Attempts to Ridicule the City of San Diego.

[illegible]dications That Trial Will Run Into Next Week.

[illegible]Y DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

[illegible]AN DIEGO, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] In the trial of Hayden Talbot, W. G. Huestis and W. R. Beard, Los Angeles Examiner reporters, charged in Magistrate Thorp's court with the burglary of photograph films from the evening of March 16 from the office of H. R. Fitch of this city, the session ended its side of the case, so far as the introduction of evidence was concerned, at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Immediately upon the conclusion of the prosecution's side, Attorney H. H. [illegible], representing the accused, filed a motion to dismiss the action, and asked time in which to get from the court stenographer a copy of the record upon which to base his argument in support of the motion.

The granting of time for any purpose was vigorously opposed by Dist.-Atty. [illegible] and Utley, his assistant, and [illegible] for the defense thereupon began his address, which was not finished when, at 5:30 o'clock, court adjourned until 9:30 o'clock Saturday morning.

As the defense has yet to conclude its argument and a reply is to follow from the prosecution, it seems probable that the trial will go into the next week.

TELLING TIME BY SUN.

The greater part of the morning session was taken up with H. R. Cox on the witness stand. Cox is the automobile owner from whom W. R. Beard hired a car in which he was driven from the city on the afternoon and night of the day the burglary of the [illegible] studio is alleged to have been committed. Objections and arguments, based on legal technicalities, followed each [illegible] upon one another, first by one side and then the other. The question concerning the exact time of the day [illegible] largely into the controversy, and [illegible] Dist.-Atty. Kirby asked of Harry Appel, who had just made an estimate as to whether the witness wore a watch or not.

"What difference does it make? It could have been by either a clock or a watch. By what other means would you [illegible] time?"

"By the sun," replied Appel. "Why, [illegible] when a boy we had neither a watch nor a clock, and relied entirely on the sun."

"Can you tell time just now by the sun?" asked Kirby.

"Yes, when the sun goes down it's [illegible]."

The question settled beyond any doubt, it was Beard who paid [illegible] of the automobile, but [illegible] cross-examination had [illegible] the car testify that the [illegible] in the form of money passed [illegible] under from behind, and he [illegible] had from the guiding [illegible] to receive the money, and without [illegible] it dropped it into a side [illegible]. A very weak attempt was made by the defense in cross-examining witness to show that Beard, [illegible] the auto, was endeavoring to [illegible] battleship-fleet pictures from [illegible] general manager of a local publication, and cared little about the [illegible] Fitch.

Gabel, a photo engraver, who [illegible] came to San Diego, detailed [illegible] had been accosted by Beard [illegible] battleship fleet pictures, and how [illegible] ought to aid him by going with [illegible] the general manager's home, [illegible] the office of the local publication, [illegible] lastly referring to the Fitch [illegible]. The witness related how he accosted Beard in the automobile, [illegible] Fitch's studio, and, finding it [illegible] went across the street to communicate by telephone with Fitch, but [illegible] success.

[illegible]AD FOR DEFENSE.

[illegible]ard Fellows, 18 years old, a [illegible] school student, but who is employed at the Fitch studio every afternoon, proved a good witness for the defense. He identified the films alleged to have been stolen as the same [illegible] added in developing immediately upon the return of his employer [illegible] Magdalena Bay, where the views of the fleet were obtained. He gave a comprehensive idea of the relative positions of the dark room of the studio [illegible] the other apartments, and of [illegible] visit during the afternoon of [illegible] 16, when he sought to get into the [illegible]ishing-room and was denied admittance.

[illegible] made several attempts to discredit the testimony of the witness by [illegible] a series of long and, as Dist.-Atty. Kirby characterized, meaningless [illegible] questions. The boy, however, held his own well with the lawyer, and [illegible] failed to shatter the evidence to any [illegible] extent.

[illegible]Ada Sheldon, an operator in the [illegible] exchange, who, on the night of March 16, had charge of the long [illegible] lines, was called, but her testimony as to any communications that [illegible] and, as it was agreed that such [illegible] could only be made public by the witness either upon the direction of the telephone company manager, by direction of a higher court, or by [illegible] of which were obtained, [illegible] after 4 o'clock, when Appel began his argument on his motion to dismiss the action. He denounced the [illegible] upon the information as a most [illegible] proceeding, lauding the [illegible] men whose reputations were [illegible] ways had been beyond reproach, particularly eulogized Talbot and [illegible] to both Beard and Huestis [illegible] likely they have never heard [illegible].

[illegible]aking of their innocence. Appel, in a sudden plunge into pathos, [illegible] eyes filled with tears as he related, [illegible], three woodchoppers, while [illegible] honest endeavors to earn a [illegible] had been torn from their families, [illegible] thrust into prison on a [illegible] charge made by a noted [illegible] how the detective had gone [illegible] home disguised, broken bread [illegible] Yes, even knelt in prayer [illegible] God for a blessing," then [illegible] court with forged confes-

[illegible] then referred to the blight [illegible] reputations of the three [illegible] promising young men, who [illegible] torn from all that was near [illegible] them and carried to San [illegible] placed in felons' cells, [illegible] viewed the evidence as he could [illegible] and attempted to show that [illegible] or the theft of the films was [illegible] intimating very strongly, as [illegible] his clenched fist, that some [illegible] not the accused, had trumped [illegible] charge for a purpose.

NEGLECTED COLDS.

GOOD ADVICE TO WISE WOMEN AND PRUDENT MEN.

"Don't trifle with a cold," is good advice for prudent men and women. It may be vital in the case of a child. Proper food, good ventilation, and dry, warm clothing are the proper safeguards against colds. If they are maintained through the changeable weather of Autumn, Winter and Spring the chances of a surprise from ordinary colds will be slight. But the ordinary light cold will become severe if neglected, and a well-established, ripe cold, is to the germ of diphtheria what honey is to the bee. The greatest menace to child-life is the neglected cold. Whether it is a child or adult, the cold, slight or severe, the very best treatment that can be adopted is to give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is safe and sure. The great popularity and immense sale of this medicine have been attained by its remarkable cures of this ailment. A cold never results in pneumonia when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given.

His argument was a failure in the attempt to show that the Examiner and its representatives, according to the evidence, were not responsible for the films being taken to Los Angeles and without the knowledge and consent of the owner.

He will resume his address in the morning, to be followed by Dist.-Atty. Kirby.

NOTED BANDITS HANGED.

Philippine Fanatic Leaders, Who Have Caused Great Trouble in Islands, Are Executed.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

MANILA, April 24.—Cyriano Omongo, alias Tiduedue, and Afroniano Fernandez, noted bandits and fanatical leaders, were privately hanged in Bilibid Prison today.

Omongo practically started the Pulajanes movement in Samar. Fernandez participated in the attack of Leyte and aided in the killing of four policemen and the burning of the municipal buildings.

Faustino Ables, founder of the famous Dios-Dios movement, and Esperidon Rita, his principal lieutenant, were to have been hanged, but in response to a petition of a military judge and constabulary commander, Gov.-Gen. Smith granted them a reprieve for one month.

Trial of Member of Fanatical Sect of Dreamers Reveals Horrible Plot Against Unbelievers.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

MEDICINE HAT (Man.) April 24.—In the trial here yesterday of one of the members of the Dreamers' sect, charged with burning houses of unbelievers, startling evidence was given.

Joseph Beitz of Irving, Alberta, stated that it was agreed to burn the Baptist and Lutheran churches. It was not the result of a dream, but their creed was to burn and murder.

Letters were received at a meeting from "God Jacob," whose headquarters are at Java, S.D., and whose real name is Jacob Merkel, Sr., giving instructions to kill and murder all unbelievers. The names of several of the leaders were mentioned.

USE TWELVE GALLONS OF OIL.

Plot to Destroy Pattern Shop of Allis-Chalmers Company Fails Because of Explosion.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

MILWAUKEE (Wis.) April 24.—A desperate attempt was made early Wednesday morning to destroy the Allis-Chalmers plant at West Allis, or at least to stop its operation for a time.

All that saved the big plant from heavy loss was the automatic sprinkler equipment which extinguished the flames before they gained much headway.

The attack was directed on the pattern shop, the most vital part of the plant.

With patterns destroyed, work would have to come to a standstill until others could be prepared. From this it appears the attempt was the work of men who are well acquainted with the workings of the plant. Those back of the plot had with them a dozen one-gallon cans of gasoline.

From the appearance of the shop, a premature explosion of the oil scared the wreckers away before their preparations were completed.

KILLED BY RIVAL.

EX-SOLDIER'S BODY FOUND.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 24.—The dead body of Henry Baker, former soldier, with a bullet hole in the chest, was found this morning in the road near a cottage on North First street where last night he had quarreled with his rival, an Italian peddler, known as Colombo.

Baker had been living in another house with Mary McNulty, who, with another woman, was drinking with Colombo when he came to the door and demanded admittance. This was refused, and Colombo seizing a heavy bottle, went out vowing to kill Baker.

Soon afterward the women heard four pistol shots. One of the bullets struck Baker's watch and stopped it at 10:47. Another pierced his body. Colombo has not been found.

Chicago Express, Going Sixty Miles an Hour, Leaves Rails, but Passengers Escape Serious Injury.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

HORNELL (N. Y.) April 24.—Running at the rate of sixty miles an hour, Erie train No. 4, known as the Chicago Express, jumped the track directly in front of the station at Canisteo, five miles from this city, this morning.

A broken tire on the engine is believed to have caused the wreck.

The engine and eight cars were derailed, but remained right side up. The passengers were thrown about and many of them were cut and bruised, but none of them was seriously hurt. The engineer and fireman, who stuck to their places, escaped injury.

HAYWOOD IS FIRED.

Western Federation of Miners Drops Man Tried for Murder of Steunenberg.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

DENVER, April 24.—Formal announcement was made in today's issue of the Miners' Magazine, the official organ of the Western Federation of Miners, over the signature of C. E. Magoney, first vice-president and acting president of that organization, that the executive board has terminated the services of William D. Haywood as a representative of the federation in the field.

Last December, after Haywood's acquittal at Boise, Idaho, on the charge of complicity in the murder of former Gov. Steunenberg, he was superseded as secretary-treasurer of the federation by Ernest Mills, on order of the executive board.

Since that time he has been employed as a lecturer and organizer for the federation, and has made a tour of the East.

It is intimated that the executive board disapproved of his activity in advocacy of socialistic theories.

SCHOOL FOR CONSULS.

Chicago Wants Congress to Establish Academy for Special Training in That City.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CHICAGO, April 24.—Congress will be asked to establish in Chicago an academy for the education of young men for the consular service of the United States.

This was decided yesterday at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Industrial Club. This organization will take the initiative in arousing the national government to the importance of organizing such an institution.

The coöperation of the Association of Commerce and the National Business Men's Association has been assured. The Illinois Manufacturers' Association and kindred organizations are expected to aid in the agitation.

Letters will be sent to Secretary of State Root, Senators Cullom and Hopkins and to the Illinois members of the House of Representatives, outlining the purposes of the school, its importance to the export commerce of this country and advancing the claims of Chicago, geographically and otherwise, as the logical location for the school.

Strang Wins Great Road Race in Isotta.

Briarcliffe Contest Enthuses Many Thousands.

Few Accidents to Mar Day of Motor Sport.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

BRIARCLIFFE (N. Y.) April 24.—Louis Strang, in a fifty-horse-power Isotta-Fraschini car won athe 259-mile automobile race over the Briarcliff course today. Cedrino, in a Fiat car was second, and Guy Vaughan in a thirty-horse-power Stearns was third.

Herbert Lyttle and Paul Sartori, the only racers to finish officially the long journey, finished respectively in fourth and fifth positions. Lyttle drove a fifty-horse-power Apperson and Sartori a forty-horse-power Bianchi. Three other cars of the twenty-two which started would have been able to complete the journey but the race was officially declared off as soon as the fifth car had crossed the finish line, to avoid any possible accident to the spectators who overflowed the course.

The time made by the racers was comparatively slow, and to this fact is probably due the absence of serious accidents. There were numerous minor mishaps resulting in the withdrawal of several cars from the contest, but in no case was any one seriously hurt. The course has been recognized as one of the most dangerous ever selected for a speed contest between high-power machines and the drivers exercised unusual precautions.

Strang took the lead early in the day and at no time was his position in danger.

The position and time of the five leading cars follow:

Strang (Isotta,) first; elapsed time, 5:14:12 2-5.

Cedrino (Fiat,) second; elapsed time, 5:21:05 2-5.

Vaughan (Stearns,) third; elapsed time, 5:28:29 2-5.

Lyttle (Apperson,) fourth, elapsed time, 5:29:15 2-5.

Sartori (Bianchi,) fifth, elapsed time, 5:54:45 2-5.

Twenty-two automobiles of the finest American and foreign types started at dawn today in a 259-mile race over one of the most hazardous courses ever chosen for a motor car speed contest. For just a little over thirty-two miles the course winds through picturesque country in northern Winchester county, about every turn of the course is a dangerous spot and there had been many predictions of serious accidents before the race was run. The danger of the course and the possibility of serious mishaps had added tremendously to the interest usual in contests of this kind and long before the hour scheduled for the start, the course was lined with automobiles filled with spectators. As early as 3 o'clock this morning it was estimated that not less than 11,000 automobiles were packing the course. Thousands of persons crowd the vantage points and when the first racer was sent away he entered a course lined with humanity on either side from end to end.

The start had been scheduled for 4:35 o'clock, but it was forty minutes later before preparations for the beginning of the race had been completed.

At exactly 8:07 the starter's pistol rang out and the Bianchi with Sartori at the wheel, shot across the line and started away on the long journey. The other cars followed at intervals of one minute without the slightest untoward incident to mar the start.

The veteran Barney Oldfield who braved the fate associated with the No. 13, by driving a Stearns, carrying these figures, was given a rousing cheer when he stood at the starting line waiting for the signal. He accepted the greeting with confidence and sent a grateful look to the shouting thousands as he sped across the line.

It became apparent within a very few moments after the start that despite predictions to the contrary, tremendously high speed was to be made over at least some portions of the course. Forty-two minutes had been reported as the best time over the thirty-two-mile course in the trials and many believed that no better time than this could be expected during the race. At 5:20 o'clock, seventeen minutes after the first car had left the starting point, however, word came from Armonk that four cars had passed that place, seventeen miles away, one of these four cars had only been thirteen minutes on the road, another fourteen and a third fifteen and another seventeen minutes. That the drivers found it impossible to maintain this great speed over the entire length of the crooked, hilly course became apparent before the end of the first round.

Strang in the Isotta, the first to complete the circuit, crossed the line in 39m. 42s. He was leading Lyttle only by a few seconds, but he maintained his advantage through the second round, which he completed in 38m. 23s., with a lead of two minutes twenty-four seconds over Lyttle and also was in the lead at the end of the third round, which was made in 39m. 18s. Aside from the leaders, the other contestants held to their positions fairly well.

Watson in a Simplex was the first man to come to grief. His machine collided with a post at Eastview and was badly disabled and it was three hours after the start before he had made repairs and finished the first round.

Some of the difficulties with which the drivers had to contend became more and more apparent as the race progressed. Between Pine Bridge and Mount Kisco there were four turns which tried the nerves of the drivers, but in the early stages of the race car after car was sent around without a mishap. At the second turn from Pine Bridge and about a mile from the place there is a hilly spot in the road and the cars have to be sent at top speed to surmount it.

There is a rise of about ten feet, and the cars strike the top at such speed that they shoot into the air and come down on the ground again with a thump. Between Pine Bridge and Mount Kisco the road is so narrow that there is room for only one automobile, and no car can pass another.

Strang maintained his place at the head of the line until after the end of the fourth round, when half the distance had been covered. At that time he had a lead of 21 seconds in elapsed time over his nearest competitor. Up to this point the leader had averaged almost forty-six miles an hour. Strang held his lead through the fifth lap, which he completed in 38 minutes 58 seconds, with a total official elapsed time for the distance of 2 hours 34 minutes 40 seconds. Lyttle, Cedrino and Vaughan had not been able to hold the pace in this round, and Poole, in another Isotta, had swept up into second position.

The finish of the fourth round furnished one of the prettiest sprints of the race up to that point. As the cars swung around the sharp curve about the judges' stand, Barney Oldfield and Hilliard, in a Hol-tan were fighting it out side by side, the sides of their cars separated only by a few inches. Almost in front of the judges' stand Oldfield forged to the front and in an instant flashed away ahead of Hilliard.

While the leading cars were in the fifth round word came to the judges' stand that Murphy had met with an accident in the stretch of road between Valhalla and Eastview. One of his front wheels collapsed and he and his mechanician were thrown out. Fortunately, neither man was injured, but as Murphy had no spare wheel with him, the car was shoved into a place of safety at the side of the road and was officially declared out of the race.

The Allen-Kingston, with De Palma driving, also went out of the race in the fifth round. It was ditched, after passing Armonk, and so badly damaged that it could not continue. In the meantime, Strang had clung to the leading position which he gained in the first round. He finished the sixth circuit with a total elapsed time of three hours 55 minutes and four seconds.

At that time, Cedrino had moved up in to second place, and Lyttle was in third position. Strang made the seventh lap in 38 minutes 43 seconds, and started away on the final leg of the journey at 10:53:47, with a margin which seemed to insure his winning, provided his good luck continued.

Cedrino made the best time of the race on the seventh lap—37 minutes 16 seconds. He started the last circuit at 11:02:02. Lyttle got away on the last round at 11:06:28.

As the race proceeded, the crowds along the course, and particularly at the finish, gave the special policemen much trouble in their efforts to keep the course clear. Near the judges' stand, where there is a dangerous curve, the crowd constantly pressed forward into the stretch, and it was only with the greatest difficulty that a clear space was maintained for the cars, which skidded around the curve at express train speed.

Strang finished in the lead and won the race at 11:44, making his official elapsed time for the full distance 7 hours, 14 minutes and 13 1-5 seconds. Cedrino made a valiant effort in the final round to cut down Strang's big lead, but without success. He was second, completing the last lap at 11:49:-05 3-5, with a total elapsed time of 7 hours, 21 minutes and 5 2-5 seconds.

Gardner not Acclimated.

Eddie Keevin, who handled Jimmy Gardner against Sullivan Friday night, thinks that some persons are rather hasty in their judgment regarding Gardner's performance, and that the latter, if given ample time to get acclimated, would have changed the order of things considerably. Keevin asserts that, barring Joe Gans, Gardner landed cleaner and oftener to Sullivan's head and jaw last Thursday night than any other man who ever fought the old baldheaded boxer at weight. Keevin claims that for this reason alone the Lowell boy should have been given much more credit for his work than has been accorded him.

Cow Routs a Sheriff.

Deputy Sheriff McMillan of Saginaw, Mich., went out to Lakefield to attach a number of cattle in a lawsuit. There was a big red cow in the bunch, however, which objected to being driven off on the authority of a court order, and she resisted the officer.

The deputy's helpers endeavored to head her off as she tried to get away, and McMillan planted himself in her path, determined to show his bravery. Bossie lowered her head just as she got in front of the officer, and in the twinkling of an eye, before he knew what had happened, picked McMillan up on her horns and tossed him clear over a rural mail box at the side of the road.

McMillan landed in a ditch with a soft bottom and was not seriously hurt, though his companions say he turned a complete somersault. When he got on his feet the deputy said:

"Boys, I'm going to take this critter back and attach the two we had exempted in her place," which he did.

Nature Takes a Hand.

The Blade's Marion, O., correspondent furnishes the following pastoral-political item of news:

Two months ago twin calves of the male gender were born on the farm of John Brundige, south of Waldo. The calves are Herefords. Remembering Bryan's famous heifer, Brundige called one Bill Bryan and the other Bill Taft. Brundige claims the one he named Bill Taft has grown fat and sleek and bids fair to be a fine steer. The calf named after the Nebraskan, however, is not a prize winner. Ah it does, Brundige says, is to stand at the barnyard and bawl.

Thus, even nature calls lustily for Bill Taft or Ohio.—[Toledo Blade.

ANNUAL REGATTA.

UNIVERSITY CREWS ARE IN FINE FORM.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The University of California and the Stanford University crews will contest in their annual regatta, tomorrow morning, on Richardson's Bay. Reports from the two training camps say that both crews are in the best of condition. In addition to the 'varsity race, the freshmen crews will meet.

The California 'varsity crew has been at Sausalito two days. The trip was taken in order that the men might familiarize themselves with the course and also that they may be free from the excitement of the campus. The freshman eight went over Thursday evening.

Coach Garnett has put the California crew through a strenuous week. Yesterday gave his last instruction on Thursday to the 'varsity and today to the freshmen. Both crews are in excellent physical condition, the 'varsity being as near perfect as it is possible for eight men to get. The freshmen are not quite so well conditioned for they have not had the benefit of the training table, but they are strong enough to withstand any pace that their race may develop.

The 'varsity weighed in yesterday after the last of the early morning exercises, and an average weight of 172¾ pounds was developed. The freshmen averaged 170½ pounds. The average height of the 'varsity is 6ft. ½in., and of the freshmen, 5ft. 11¼in.

The last row on the estuary was taken Wednesday night, and at its completion Coach Garnett and 'Varsity Capt. Witter expressed themselves as very well pleased with the work of the men and of the form they showed. Owing to the lack of a coaching launch it has been impossible for the coach to put the finishing touches to the body work and swing, so that perfection in form might be reached, but otherwise the work of the men seems to be of the finest. The blade work is particularly good and many eastern rowing men who have seen the crew at practice say that the form is equal to the best eastern standards.

Garnett has taught a stroke with a quick hard catch, and a fast recovery, which gradually slows down until just before the catch. He has been exceedingly particular that the men do not rush their slides and that their backs be as straight as arrows. The comparison of the California form and that of Stanford will be made with interest, for, according to all reports, Turner has done away with much of the old single scull stroke that Dan Murphy taught, and has been teaching a modification of it, approaching somewhat closer the California stroke. Aside from the catch, the California stroke is very similar to that taught at Cornell by Courtney.

A feeling of confidence prevails on the campus that the crew will defeat the Stanford eight by at least two lengths. Capt. Witter and Coach Garnett while not over-confident of the result say, that if Stanford wins it will be because she has an exceptional crew in the 'varsity boat. The freshman race will be closer, but the general feeling is that California will win that event also.

Schroeder and Ball of Los Angeles are the only Southern Californians in the 'varsity boat, while Bowen of Los Angeles, Cope of Santa Ana, and Kelly of San Diego are in the freshman shell. Witter, Ball and F. Ashley are the only veterans on the 'varsity, Robertson, Ashley and Dignan were three of the 1910 intercollegiate freshman four, while the other men have rowed on inter-class crews.

STANFORD TO FORM.
EXPECT HARD CONTEST.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Stanford crew trained hard and is ready for the hardest kind of a pull when it rows against California over the course on Richardson's Bay. The actual selection of the doubtful positions was made after thorough tryouts in the pair-oared shell the last week, where the comparative strength of the different oarsmen has been tested under the eye of Coach Turner.

After the suspension of Capt. L. R. Guy of Redlands, the question of selecting a stroke for the 'varsity crew caused no little trouble, but during the last two weeks Patrick has been filling the position to the eminent satisfaction of both coach and crew. He pulls a strong oar and is an easy man to follow. The competition between Benson and Robinson for No. 2 has been close, but the superior strength and splendid form of the southern oarsman, although a new man in the squad, won him the coveted position and his 'varsity letter. C. H. Wondries of Los Angeles is perhaps the strongest man on the crew and at No. 6 will be a great aid to Patrick, as he, too, has had considerable experience at stroke. The crews are as follows:

Stroke, H. B. Patrick, Visalia; No. 7, M. Y. Malone, Hanford; No. 6, C. H. Wondries, Los Angeles; No. 5, A. N. Cole, Du Bois, Pa.; No. 4, H. Hatch, Paso Robles; No. 3, C. H. Vose, Los Angeles; No. 2, C. H. Benson, Redlands; bow, R. H. Reynolds, Pasadena; coxswain, F. W. Turner, Alameda; substitute, P. A. Robinson, Benicia.

The freshman eight is:

Stroke, K. Chamberlain, Los Angeles; No. 7, N. M. Day, San Francisco; No. 6, K. Dole, Riverside; No. 5, J. A. Killian, Los Angeles; No. 4, C. Smith, Elle, Can.; No. 3, W. C. Tittle, Guinda; No. 2, J. A. Visel, Santa Ana; bow, J. H. Leeds, San Diego; coxswain, F. L. Guerena, Sonora; substitute, P. V. Acker, San Francisco.

CLOSE CONTEST.
U. S. C. DEFEATS KEARSARGE.

The baseball nine of the battleship Kearsarge was defeated by the ball tossers of U. S. C. at Bovard Field yesterday afternoon by the score of 4 to 1. Bridwell was too strong for the seamen batters, allowing but two scattered hits. A large crowd of students greeted the navy visitors and cheered every good play impartially. This afternoon the 'varsity nine will cross bats with the Law School nine in their second contest.

HORTON ELECTED CAPTAIN.

Versatile Ukiah Athlete Will Lead Stanford Track Team Next Season.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] H. L. Horton of Ukiah has been elected captain of the 'varsity track team for the season of 1909.

Horton is one of the strongest men that ever represented Stanford and is a very versatile athlete. With Johns of California he holds the intercollegiate record of 25.2 in the low hurdles, and is credited with 16 flat in the 120-yard hurdles.

He is, outside of Ralph Rose, the world champion, the best shot putter on the Coast, having tossed the shot 44ft. 3in. in competition. He has also done 11ft feet in the hammer.

Horton has also been prominent in football, playing tackle on the famous 1905 'varsity which defeated California 12 to 6, and also in the 1904 freshman team, which won, 6 to 5.

He has been chosen vice-president of the associated students for next year and is a member of the Skull and Snakes Honor Society. He registers in civil engineering.

TARGET WORK.

NAVY OFFICERS DEFEAT GUARDS

Fleet Marksmen Shoot High Score on Ranges.

Local Men Fall Down on the Longer Distances.

A picked rifle team from the officers of the Atlantic fleet defeated a picked team from the Seventh Regiment, N. G.C., in a target match with Krag rifles at the State range near Eastlake Park, yesterday, 271 points. The total scores were: Navy, 1856; Guards, 1615—out of a possible 2400.

The Guards were beaten at each of the four events, the first being 200 yards offhand at United States target "A," 501 to 460—lead 41; second event, 600 yards prone, target "B," 445 to 295—lead increased by 50; third event, 800 yards prone, target "C," 431 to 320—lead increased by 111; fourth event, 200 yards, rapid fire, target "D," 509 to 439—lead increased by 70; total lead, 271 points.

Two elements contributed to this result, the superior and consistent shooting throughout of the naval experts and the unexpected collapse of Kellogg and Kunkel of the local team at the 800 yards range. At this distance the two men made but four each out of a possible 50. Both are capable of, and have usually achieved, fine records. Their failure was simply an incident which sometimes occur in contests of skill, and may be accounted for by poor sighting of the guns at that distance, or other reasons.

Midshipman Lewis made the highest individual total of the day, 171, and seven of the naval officers equaled or exceeded the leading score of the Guards made by Private Umstead—160.

The Guards consider it no disgrace to be led in shooting by a team selected from the battleship fleet, especially strong by reason of the inclusion of nearly half the membership of the winning team of forty-eight competitors in the national matches of 1907. In fact, they consider themselves largely gainers through the match, and are more ready than ever to man the firing line against any military competition.

The local men speak in the strongest terms of the thoroughly sportsmanlike conduct of the sailormen, and cite various instances of waivers of technicalities by the naval team captain, Ensign Doherty, and his insistence upon the removal of all doubts which might have militated against the Guards.

Among the visitors were Lieutenant-Commander McLean of the flagship Connecticut; Brig.-Gen. Wankowski of N.G.C., Col. Smith of Iowa, and several local officers. Luncheon was served by the Guards on decorated tables, and good fellowship ruled everywhere.

Scores by totals are as follows:

WIN ANOTHER.
REDONDO TEAM BEATEN.

The rifle match at Redondo yesterday resulted in a victory for the sailors' rifle team picked from the battleships Alabama, Illinois, Kearsarge and the Kentucky against the Redondo team of the Southern California Rifles.

The Redondo team was augmented by a few members of the Los Angeles Company of the Rifles, nevertheless the sailors excelled at the 300-yard range, and on the completion of the scores at this range the fleet team totaled 68 points more than the Rifles.

At the 200-yard range offhand shooting the Rifles gained a few points over the sailors, leaving the totals, Redondo team, 1090 points; the sailors, 1152, the sailors winning the match by 62 points.

Midshipman R. B. Taylor, the captain of the sailor team, expressed himself as pleased with the work of his men and with the results of the match. Some of the men of this team were members of the navy team that shot in the national match at Camp Perry, Ohio, last year.

The conditions were much in favor of the sailors, as a high wind was blowing from the ocean and the Krags being equipped with wind-gauge sights were an advantage over the sporting rifles used by the Redondo team, which do not have these sights.

E. D. Neff acted as captain of the Redondo team and L. J. Norman had general charge of the range.

The scores were:

TARGET PRACTICE.

The Schuetzen Park management now has the 500-yard range in shape for use and a large number of members of the Southern California Rifles are expected to be on hand to practice at this range Sunday. The Rangers expect to be out in force, and a friendly match is planned between their members and Los Angeles company of the Rifles. At the 200-yard range, where a rapid-fire score of five shots will be one of the features of the day, the Fraternal Brotherhood company will practice at the 200-yard targets under the instruction of their officers. Their members have had little practice heretofore, but have shown up well and will, no doubt, improve rapidly under instruction. Ade Orrill will act as officer of the day. Shooting will begin at 10:30 o'clock.

The old man told me the other day, "That instead of 'expressing' my opinions as freely I ought to send some of them by freight." He was a little sore, I guess, because I asked him a conundrum he couldn't answer. Perhaps you can answer it. Here it is: "If a corporation charges 3 cents a pound for hauling hats in order to pay 7 per cent. interest on a capitalization, which is, say 3-4 water, who pays the freight?" The Silverwood Stores are not incorporated; we do not have to pay dividends to a lot of silent partners or stockholders. The old man is satisfied with a legitimate interest on his money. That's the reason those swell neck ties in beautiful silks are marked 50c instead of 75c, and $1 instead of $1.50, and that's why a Silverwood $3 hat is in reality a $4 hat elsewhere. Value for value. That's why our $20 suits are better values than you can buy elsewhere, even after they've figured all their discounts off and lost all the money they say they lose. Let us prove it.

MORE HARD LUCK.

SEALS LOSE A LONG CONTEST.

Three Hits Win for Locals in Eleventh Inning.

Koestner and Skillman Are Banged Hard.

Piper Assessed Ten Dollars for Saucy Talk.

Los Angeles, 4; San Francisco, 3. Seven innings.

George Wheeler trying to grab a Texas league fly with one hand back of third base in the fourth inning, caused the fans to stick around for over two hours at the Chutes grounds yesterday before the locals could harpoon the Early Speed Seals. When he tried this desperate chance the ball passed him and went to the left fence, and this woozy triple started a bombardment that continued until the Seals had rolled in three runs. It was a lucky bunch of stabs for the visitors, for they had but few more opportunities.

Even with this fearful lead, this improved bunch of Early Speeds blew up in the stretch and the explosion cleared the atmosphere of all this hot air about it as a brilliant collection of class. The old blanket of seriousness that the Seals have been hauling over this "club" this week has taken a little of the starch out and now the visitors are getting tame enough to eat out of your hand.

The struggle yesterday was a hot one for the Early Speeds came near running away in the fourth inning. The big story of the game was in which team would get the lucky swats that would bring in the needed run, and the luck happened to be the one. Both Skillman and Koestner were drubbed for hits and the fielding was about the same for each team, so it was all a matter of luck.

The pernicious habit of little players acting like men to big umpires was in evidence temporarily yesterday, when Manager O'Connell called the bluff of Umpire Center Fielder Piper. In the beginning of the third round Piper hit a grounder to Dillon, who was playing back of first base, and Koestner covered first base, to take the throw, and Piper was called out. It was a close decision and Piper roared about it as he walked past O'Connell to the bench. When he reached the bench he seemed to remember his troubles again and did something not heard in Sunday-school classes. O'Connell was behind the bench with Curtis up, and hearing a growling on the bench, turned around and bawled over his left shoulder, "Ten dollars for Piper." This was enough for the Child Wonder, and he did not bother any one during the rest of the game.

Koestner showed a new man in La Londe. While he was touted by a number of visitors to the north as a 3-to-5 cinch, it evidently was not trying yesterday, for the locals stole six bases on him, Skillman was another new man for the locals cracked him for a single and he made a wild pitch which sent another ball in such a way that La Londe secured a passed ball.

There were no very brilliant features, and yet much of everything was of a high order, most of the errors being on hard chances. In the first one out in the fourth inning, Koestner poked a little fly back of third baseman Meister missed it. Zeider landed on it before the ball was recovered. It was an easy out at first, and Mohler, La Londe, Skillman and Zeider singled in succession, and Zeider, Skillman and La Londe scored. In the second inning the visitors had a chance to score, for Mohler started the inning with a double to left. He got no farther, however, for Koestner, playing back, got Delmas's liner and by fast fielding kept him from scoring. In the eighth, Melchoir singled to center, was sacrificed to second and a moment later was doubled up at third base when Mohler rapped a liner into Bernard's hands.

The fourth brought the first run for the locals

MAKE $2000 A YEAR.
You know, or can easily learn from United States government report, that land that can be irrigated, and planted to selected crops, will net $900 to $1000 a year per acre, over and above the entire cost of cultivating them.
Any one who knows California will tell you that absolutely the surest, safest way in the world to gain a large and permanent income for a small outlay is to get hold of a few acres of land that can be irrigated in California.
My company makes it possible for you or any man to get some of the finest land in the State, at Corcoran, on which you can easily make $2000 a year.
Space in this advertisement will not allow me to go into details, but any one living in Los Angeles who is interested should call at my office for details; those living outside of the city should send for Profitable Realty, which gives full details.

OVER THE BORDER.

POLITICS HOT IN CANADA.

Conservatives Prepare for Big Contest.

To Fight Laurier's Liberal Government.

Borden Leads Opposition and Expects to Win.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

VANCOUVER (B. C.) April 18.—Like the United States, Canada is getting ready for a Federal election. Most people, including politicians of both sides of the House of Commons, who claim to be well-informed, say that the election will occur this autumn. But, really, only one man in Canada knows, and he is Sir Wilfred Laurier, the Prime Minister and head of the present Liberal government. It is not on record so far that he has confided in anyone when he intends to advise the Governor-General to dissolve Parliament.

Unlike the United States, the date of the elections is not fixed by statute or constitutional legislation. All that is certain about any government is that it cannot continue to sit in Parliament longer than five years. It may exist only five weeks, if the political powers that be decide that there shall be an election. The political life of the present Liberal Parliament must end its five-year course next year. But there are indications, the wise ones say, that Parliament will have been dissolved long before that time.

PREPARE FOR FIGHT.

Believing that an election is bound to occur within a few months, Conservatives and Liberals, as well as Socialists, from one end of Canada to the other, are making preparations for a big fight. At the last election, four years ago, it was conceded all over the country that the Liberals would then be returned to power by a sweeping majority. So firmly rooted was this belief over the country that the Conservatives made but a half-hearted attempt at the beat to elect their men.

The Liberal government was popular and at the time of the election had just made the famous announcement of the proposed construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway as the crowning lifework of the leader of the party, Sir Wilfred Laurier. Then the government, too, had the power and prestige of the reigning party.

So one-sided was the contest that in British Columbia, for instance, which is overwhelmingly Conservative in provincial politics, seven men were elected as supporters of the Liberal government and every Conservative was defeated.

DIFFERENT CONTEST.

But this is a different fight. All over the country the Conservatives are buckling down to the game, and men who have shown little interest in politics for ten years are taking off their coats for the political fray. The Liberals have been in power since the memorable election of 1896, when Sir Charles Tupper and his party were turned down at the polls.

Now that octogenarian statesman is no longer at the helm of Conservative affairs, new and younger men are the leaders. The battle cry of the Conservatives is that the time has come for a change and from Halifax to Vancouver the Conservative party is particularly active in getting ready for business. Candidates are everywhere being nominated and district organizations completed.

Hon. R. L. Borden, a Cabinet minister of the former Tupper government, is now at the head of the Conservatives. He is a broad-gauge politician and fairly popular with his party. While the marked prosperity of Canada is given by the Liberals as one of the chief reasons why they should remain in power, Borden insists that the country could not help being prosperous and that it is more the act of Providence than anything that the Liberal party could possibly have done that has brought wealth to the business men of the Dominion.

Another plank in Borden's "platform of change" is that, acting in behalf of the Catholic Church, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who is a French-Canadian, endeavored to withhold the full measure of free government from the new provinces of the Northwest.

GRAFT IS CHARGED.

But largest of all, graft in office is the chief cry against the government. Stories of scandal have been piling high at Ottawa during the last two or three years. There have been no sensational exposures such as have occurred in some American cities, but the government is face to face with a choice bunch of general allegations which have, to say the least, prejudiced the public mind.

Within a month a special commission to inquire into civil service affairs has reported very adversely against the manner of conducting some departments. A number of suspensions have resulted in the government service, and investigations are now being conducted by Cabinet ministers and special courts of inquiry at Ottawa.

On the other hand, while the Conservatives in the provincial elections and in by-elections for the Federal house have made gains in Ontario, New Brunswick, Manitoba and British Columbia, the Liberals may very rightly claim that they have Quebec absolutely solid. On this showing the Liberals expect to be returned to power, but with a decreased majority.

Among his own people, no man in the world is more popular than Sir Wilfrid Laurier with the French-Canadian habitant who forms the voting strength of Quebec. This province sends in a solid squad, and a large one, of members of the House of Commons who are not elected because they are Liberals or because they are good men or bad men, but because they are followers of Laurier. In Quebec, to disbelieve in Laurier is a crime—indeed, a heresy. It is literally true that Laurier and the Pope are looked upon as the two great men of the present day. If anything, the Prime Minister has the best of it in popularity.

STORY TYPIFIES FEELING.

They tell a good story in Montreal of a Frenchman from the "Eastern Townships," who was extolling Laurier to an American visitor. The latter compared him to the President of France and the King of England and a few other much-to-be-respected celebrities. The habitant insisted that Laurier was far greater than any of these.

"Well," said the American, "what about the Pope? Which is the greater man?"

It was altogether too much to expect a French Catholic and a good churchman to admit that any one could be greater than the Pope; but it was equally distasteful for him to take a back seat with the Premier. The French-Canadian thought for a moment and his face brightened as he said:

"But Laurier's a young man yet."

The solidness of Quebec for Laurier and the fact that he has a large majority at present, half of which he could lose and still have plenty to work with, makes the result of the voting a good betting proposition. It is no certainty for the Conservatives and certainly not for the Liberals.

Western politics will play a big card in the general result. A few months ago, Conservative Leader Borden paid a special visit to British Columbia to acquaint himself with conditions; and now it is announced that in all probability Sir Wilfrid Laurier will early this summer come to the Coast. It is intended that Laurier shall conduct the opening ceremonies of the incorporation of the city of Prince Rupert and his visit and addresses to Victoria and Vancouver people are certain to have a mighty effect on the result of the election.

The eyes of all Canada have been turned lately on the oriental question as it affects British Columbia; and ever since the night of the riot in Vancouver last September, the Ottawa government has had special agents stationed here reporting the inner details of every move of the political and labor phases of the oriental problem.

BACK TO OLD TIMES.

THE HAND LOOM CURE FOR NERVES.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS CHAMPION MAKES RAG CARPETS.

The Work Has Much Variety, Including not Only Weaving but Preparing and Dyeing the Material for the Loom—Weaving Is Soothing for the Nerves.

[New York Sun:] To weave one's own rag style rugs is becoming a popular occupation among New York women. Though on the surface it seems a difficult process, once the mysteries have been solved it is all very simple. In this way women can easily secure the floor coverings which are part of the old-time simplicity in house furnishing favored today. An enthusiastic worker in this handicraft is Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch.

This throws a new light on Mrs. Blatch's interesting personality, for to the world at large she is identified body and soul with the woman suffrage movement, to which her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton, devoted her life. But Mrs. Blatch has withdrawn none of her interest in the enfranchisement of women, for she finds in her hand weaving just that relaxation she needs to offset the more serious work.

She has become so expert in the use of the loom that as a result she has a notable collection of hand-woven rugs, portieres, aprons and other decorative pieces, all the work of her own hands and many of them from her own designs. These she occasionally trots out, and with pride exhibits to friends or persons interested in the handicraft movement.

It was two summers ago that Mrs. Blatch first took up hand weaving. At that time she was spending the summer at Peekskill. It was at the end of a trying season's work in the city, and the need for some occupation wholly in contrast with public speaking, club organising and the like made itself felt.

The traditions of Mrs. Blatch's life combined to point to the old-time handicraft of weaving. So she started out to hunt among the country folk in the vicinity for an old loom. After much research she came upon one in the home of a farmer which had been packed away in the garret for years and looked upon as nothing more than old junk.

It proved to be a splendid yard-wide loom of ancient origin. Such looms are more to be desired by hand weavers than the modern steel looms. This she set up in her little cottage and started in to unravel the mysteries of hand weaving. In a very short time she became skillful in the use of the shuttle and treadle and before that summer was over she had a number of creditable pieces of weaving to show for her trouble.

The fascination of the work grew upon her and caught her daughter, Miss Nora Stanton Blatch. Though Miss Blatch is a civil engineer in the employ of the water department of the city yet she found time to become proficient in the art.

When Mrs. Blatch returned to the city from Peekskill she brought the loom with her and had it set up in her apartment at Riverside Drive and Ninety-seventh street, and to it she turns for rest and recreation from the strenuous public life. Her interest in the work has long passed beyond that of the amateur, and she means before long to carry it on in a more practical way, though solely for her own amusement.

For some time she has been on the look out for a place in the country, not too far from New York, where she will have room sufficient to work out some original ideas along this line. It may be that her country home will develop into a handicraft colony. This is another of Mrs. Blatch's dreams.

The idea of bringing together around her others who are similarly interested in the handicrafts and thus forming a colony of hand workers whose object shall in no sense be mercenary, but rather to reinstate the old handicrafts in their former position, may be worked out at such a colony. The plan would only appeal to women who had the time and money to give up to it, but there are, it seems, plenty of such women who are enthusiastic over the scheme.

According to Mrs. Blatch an outfit complete for weaving is by no means so expensive as is generally supposed. The cost of a loom ranges anywhere from $5 to $125. Frequently in some of the old New England towns a loom can be picked up for $5. If one is not lucky enough to make such a find it is always possible to get a small hand loom through those interested in handicrafts for $25.

"A very good idea for a beginner," says Mrs. Blatch, "is to buy a small 36 loom used by art students in the schools, so one can learn how to weave on one of these looms very well indeed, and even after one has become expert and has purchased a large loom the small one can always be utilized for originating border designs.

"First of all the amateur must become familiar with the different parts of the loom and learn how each one should be placed in case of accident. It is best to get a weaver to set the loom up and put in the warp. Of the latter there may be sufficent for twenty-five yards of weaving or for one yard, according to the enthusiasm of the weaver.

"In our grandmothers' time old material was saved and dyed for weaving, but in the case of the modern rugs all kinds of cotton materials are brought into use, and denim, gingham, duck, unbleached muslin and the like are used.

"A great many women prefer to dye their own stuffs so that they shall know that the dyes are fast and the article may be washed without fear of its fading. This, however, is a great deal of trouble, and in a city house almost out of the question. White material one can have dyed in any shade to suit.

"In preparing the material for the loom it can be cut in inch wide strips either with the scissors or by tearing it. An effort should be made to have all the strips the same width. One can tell best by experience how much material it takes for a rug. This varies according to the sort of stuff used. Usually from five to seven yards of denim will make one yard of weaving.

SUNDAY, APRIL 26.

John xiii, 1-20: "Jesus Teaches Humility."

THE CONNECTION.

We have now come to Thursday night of "His Last Week." Sunday was the day of the "Triumphal Entry;" Monday is passed over rather quietly; Tuesday was the day of fierce controversy; Wednesday was a quiet day spent by the Master at Bethany; Thursday afternoon two of the Apostles were sent on in advance to arrange the table, but in an ugly mood, for each wants the most prominent place at the table and in the kingdom he was establishing. Not one had been willing to render the lowly service of washing the dusty and heated feet of his brethren. The two disciples had provided the basin of water and the towel, but no one was willing to render the service. Jesus himself does it, in order to rebuke their jealous self-seeking and set them an example of lowly service toward each other.

THE LESSON.

I.

"The Lowly Deed." (Verses 1-5.)

"Now before the feast of the passover, Jesus knowing that His hour was come that He should depart out of this world unto the Father, having loved His own that were in the world, He loved them unto the end. And during supper, the devil having already put into the heart of Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, to betray Him; Jesus, knowing that the Father had given all things into His hands, and that He came forth from God, and goeth unto God, riseth from supper, and layeth aside His garments; and He took a towel and girded Himself. Then He poured water into the basin, and began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith He was girded."

1. Because of His love to them.

The first verse shows us how Jesus felt toward His disciples from first to last. The love that had been of them several years before had grown all the while, continued not only to the end, but "to the uttermost," as the word really means. It manifested itself in every possible way exhaustively. Though He was in full view of a speedy return to His father, and He was eager to depart, He clung to them. Though He saw the cross before Him, and was about to endure a horrible death, and would therefore be more likely to feel isolated and to shrink from all, yet He clung to them. His love did its supreme work for them at that hour. They needed much and He gave much. One had betrayed Him, and Jesus would do an act of loving service to him that would always blacken his guilt and possibly at the last hour might reclaim him. All were full of unholy pride and ambition, and He would give them a lesson of love that would kill it. Satan was tampering with His flock, and He must smite the old enemy. All were full of nameless fear; all were blind through ignorance—He must compose discords, soothe out fears and enlighten their understanding. He must do His finishing work very quickly.

(2.) Because of their imperfection.

Reclining there at the table, he saw a painful sight. They had probably taken turns in washing each other's feet heretofore, but they were ugly now and no one was willing to start it. They must have been half ashamed that Jesus saw their temper, yet too foolish to correct their own fault. Though His mind is full of His coming sufferings in making atonement for the sin of the world, He must now settle their silly, selfish trouble. Nothing but His example given in a striking object-lesson will rectify them and set them right with each other.

(3.) Because of His greatness.

There was the greatness of His knowledge. Two things He knew—that the hour of His tragedy had come, and He would return to His Father; that the Father had committed all things into His hands. There was the greatness of His personality, for He originated with God and had consciously come forth from God. There was the greatness of His power, for all things were in His hands.

(4.) Because of His character.

He had been God's equal, but had now become God's servant. The law of His life was to serve, and He was serving God in the field of human life. His great humiliation had been in taking on Himself human nature, and this one act was not so humiliating. The law of His life is to be their law and the greater they were the more they were under obligation to serve.

(5.) Because the devil was overmastering Judas, and He would make the diabolical deed Judas was about to commit stand out against this deed of love and perhaps this would be a final appeal to the betrayer.

II.

"Peter's Impulsive Protest." (Verses 6-11.)

"So He cometh to Simon Peter. He saith unto Him, Lord, dost Thou wash my feet? Jesus answered and said unto him, What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt understand hereafter. Peter saith unto Him, Thou shalt never wash my feet. Jesus answered him, If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me. Simon Peter saith unto Him, Lord, not my feet only, but also my hands and my head. Jesus saith to him, He that is bathed needeth not save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit; and ye are clean, but not all. For He knew him that should betray Him; therefore said he, Ye are not all clean."

(1.) His reverence offended.

We can imagine that they all began to feel very miserable when the loved Master rose and began to garb Himself as a servant. Peter was the one to speak first, and we cannot but feel that his protest arose out of right feelings, as even Jesus seemed to concede. He thought it did injury to Christ's dignity and to his own reverence for Christ. Jesus' reply was not a rebuke, but a kind assurance that, while He could not understand it now, he would some day. There Peter should have stopped, for up to this point he showed nothing but sincere reverence for his Master.

(2.) His irreverence awakened.

In his refusal to let Christ wash his feet he was irreverent, rude, disobedient. Then the reverence that was wounded became irreverence; the lordship at first respected is now insulted; the dignity which he first respected is now trampled under Peter's feet.

(2.) He is severely rebuked.

This time Jesus says that Peter has no part with Him unless He washes that disciple's feet. That brought Peter to his senses. To object to these humble acts of service was to object to the more humble act of stooping to become man and the cleansing of the soul, which is made possible by that condescension. To refuse the external act of washing was to refuse the internal act, of which this was the symbol. This alarmed Peter, and he feared he would be thrust out of the room and denied the further friendship of Christ. He turns entirely around, and, still thinking of physical cleansing, asks to be bathed entirely.

Now Christ soothes his excitement by informing him that he had had the one whole bath, and what he needed now was to have the petty fault cleansed out. Just as a man going on a little journey, after a fine bath, needs only to have the feet bathed, to be every whit clean. Christ let them see that He is only trying to cleanse the bad feelings out of their hearts. By submitting to this washing of the feet, Peter's bad feelings are removed and he is clean. Then Jesus tells them there is one present for whom this service would not accomplish anything, because he has not had his soul bathed at all. He said this to put them on their guard, and possibly to try to recover Judas.

III.

"Christ's Application of the Truth." (Verses 12-20.)

"So when He had washed their feet, and taken His garments, and sat down again, He said unto them, know ye what I have done to you? Ye call me, teacher, and Lord; and ye say well; for so I am. If I then, the Lord and the Teacher, have washed your feet, ye also ought to wash one another's feet. For I have given you an example, that ye also should do as I have done to you. Verily, verily, I say unto you, a servant is not greater than his lord; neither one that is sent greater than he that sent him. If ye know these things, blessed are ye if ye do them. I speak not of you all; I know whom I have chosen; but that the scripture may be fulfilled. He that eateth my bread lifted up his heel against me. From henceforth I tell you before it come to pass, that, when it is come to pass, ye may believe that I am he. Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that receiveth whomsoever I send receiveth me; and he that receiveth me receiveth him that sent me."

The disciples were ready for the little sermon He preached when it was over and He sat down. The sermon was to the effect that they should render such service to each other and be glad to do it. The argument was that He whom they rightly, and with His approval, called Master had done it, and therefore they should do so. The principle involved is that service is duty, that power to serve measures obligation to serve. It was not a ceremony but a service they were to render—not to one person, but to any that needed; not on some stated occasion, but whenever there was need. He tells of the base betrayal and links the true disciple with himself in His sacrifice, His destiny and His honor.

WHAT THE MASTERS SAY.

Christ's lordship at an end if a disciple may give him orders, and say, thou shalt never wash my feet. If Peter meant anything more by these words than a display of temper and caprice, he meant this; that he would not submit to the proposed operation because his moral feelings and his judgment told him it was wrong. He made his own reason and conscience the supreme rule of conduct.—[Bruce.

From a group of angry, proud, insolent, implacable, resentful men, they were in five minutes changed into a company of meek, loving disciples of the Lord, each thinking hardly of himself and esteeming others better. They were effectually cleansed from the stain they had contracted, and could enter on the enjoyment of the last supper with pure consciences, with restored and increased affection for one another, and with deepened adoration for the marvelous wisdom and all-accomplishing grace of their Master.—[Dodds.

POINTS TO IMPRESS.

(1.) That Christ's love lives on despite our faults.

(2.) That Satan's wickedness and man's weakness have called out Christ's best.

(2.) That the higher our goodness the more lowly our service.

(4.) That if we call Jesus Master we must allow Him the mastery in everything.

(5.) That we need frequent renewals and refreshings.

(6.) That knowledge discloses and ability defines obligation.

Christian Endeavor.

A LIFE AS A LIGHT.

Terse Comments on the Uniform Prayer-meeting Topic of the Young People's Societies—Christian Endeavor, Baptist Young People's Union, Epworth League, etc., for April 26, is: "Foreign Mission Fields and Missions in the Island."—[Acts xxviii, 1-16.

By William T. Ellis.

The South Sea Islands have long stood as representative of barbarism at its worst. There man sank as low as it seemed possible for man to sink. Cannibalism was common, and it still continues to be so upon the islands as yet unchristianized. Only a few months ago a missionary was killed and eaten by these savages. The very cruelty and degradation of the islands have made them a favorite field for missionaries who covet a hard task. In consequence, some of the bloodthirsty tribes have become model Christian communities, putting to blush, in their habits of church attendance, family worship and religious zeal, many communities whose Christianity is an inheritance of centuries.

When the worse becomes like the best, then it is in order to look for the leaven of the gospel as the explanation of the transformation.

Sometimes men speak as if missions were altogether a sentiment, forgetting that there exist in connection with missions a large body of facts. These facts, which are proved and indisputable, must be considered with all the respect which a serious or scholarly mind always accords to facts. It is agreed among thinking people that the person who disregards facts may be eliminated from consideration. Now the known and demonstrable facts of foreign missions constitute a tremendous apologetic for Christianity. The other facts of history are no more important than these contemporaneous evidences of Christianity. What can a scoffer or unbeliever say to the fact—admitted by all who have any knowledge of the situation—that many inhabitants of the South Sea Islands have been changed from brutalized, inhuman cannibals into gentle, brotherly, home-loving, mutually helpful men and women, filled with a spirit of forgiveness and compassion, and freely admitting that their transformation is chargeable only to the gospel of Jesus? All the social fruits of Christianity have grown among the converts in these islands. The genuineness of the change is attested by the fact that it has persisted now to the second and third generation. No man can look with candor upon such phenomena as these without being forced to admit that a supernatural agency, the very power of the living God, has been at work.

The missionary's message is first of all embodied in a life.

"World civilizers" is a true designation of the men and women who are making earth's dark places light, its foul places clean, and its dangerous places safe.

Service is the school of saintliness. Any one who has looked into the face of John G. Paton "The Apostle to the New Hebrides," has seen that outward shining of an inner life which is the surest sign of sanctity. The very fiber and texture of his skin seemed refined and luminous, and with his wealth of silver hair he appeared to me like an aureole-crowned saint. I thought of Moses, coming down from the Mount, and knowing not that his face shone. The transformation which Paton was the means of effecting in the lives of his dusky parishioners was scarcely more wonderful than the transformation wrought in the missionary's own person.

The modern missionary's miracles are miracles of grace, of which he is but the instrument.

Ennui is a twentieth century disease. The efforts to escape it constitute a great city's "pace." A few nights ago, as I watched the great tide of elaborately-clad and richly jeweled humanity surging down Broadway, New York City, between eleven o'clock and midnight, I could not help wishing for those tens of thousands of people a better understanding of how to obtain a more genuine, enduring and wholesome "good time." Their craving for excitement soon ceases to find satisfaction, and this pleasure quest becomes a wearisome routine. My mind then wandered to some men and women I know, in far distant non-Christian lands, whose lives are anything else but tame and monotonous and unexciting. This line of thought led me to the general observation, which I do not hesitate to set down here, that the best way to redeem life from monotony, weariness and satiety is to devote it to some great work in partnership with God. Not everybody who adopts this course will have the thrilling experience of John G. Paton. The excitement of a missionary's lot in the South Sea Islands—excitements greater than those usually experienced by hunters after big game—cannot be promised to all who enter partnership with God; but at least they will be preserved from knowing the jadedness and weariness and ennui which afflict the world.

For nearly fifty years John G. Paton watched Christ work, and worked with Christ, in the New Hebrides. "In deaths oft," he yet was preserved in such marvelous ways that we cannot wonder at his simple, childlike trust in a personal heavenly Father's peculiar care. He proved the proposition that the way to know the doctrine is to do it; that the proof of God comes in putting him to the test.

It was no light matter to be flung up barehanded on a savage stretch of the Mozambique coast. And above all what a situation it was for a millionaire's daughter, with her only companions a drunken American engineer and a helpless scion of nobility.

Even the most experienced novel reader can hardly anticipate the working out of this taking and original story. It is essentially "different" and is unhesitatingly recommended to seekers after novelty, action, color, and a delightful love story.

...company yesterday ...that there is a ma... ...hoping to block its ef... ...forts to secure the franchises which will enable it to proceed with the work of directly connecting Los Angeles with the two big harbors, which will mean so much here. They accuse the Southern Pacific with exerting its power to hamper the efforts of the company, and assert that the Espee fears the competition which will follow the building of this road to the sea.

FAVOR FRANCHISES.

Last evening there was a mass meeting in Wilmington to voice the sentiment of the city regarding the granting of the franchises asked for, and the result was an overwhelming majority in favor of the scheme. The Board of Trustees of Wilmington will meet Monday and take action on the applications for franchises, and the officers of the company hope that this action will be favorable, so that the construction work can begin as soon as the final arrangements are made to put men at work.

But there is one hitch in the granting of the franchises. The Board of Trustees wants the new railroad to traverse a street along the water front beside the Southern Pacific right of way and shore property. This the road objects to, on the ground that it will be absolutely blocked from the inner harbor by the Espee property and slips. It is just possible that a compromise will be effected, by which the company will be given a franchise to reach the water front over some other street.

Yesterday A. C. Bird, president of the company, and W. J. Arkell, secretary, were seen at the offices in the Security building. Both were insistent that the company is only awaiting the settlement of the franchise problem before starting work. In fact, in all the contracts for a right of way and applications for franchises the clause is inserted to begin work within one year and to complete the road within two years.

There is no intention on the part of the company to wait a year before beginning work, they declare. That is a technical protection in case of unforeseen circumstances. The quicker the work is commenced the sooner the road will be completed and in a position to pay expenses and dividends.

GASOLINE POWER.

The present plan as to motive power is the use of gasoline engines in motor cars, and to cut time and fare between the water front points and Los Angeles considerably—in fact, to practically make of Wilmington an independent near-by suburb of Los Angeles and a partaker of her wonderful prosperity.

While no contracts have been let for grading and other construction work, the surveying of the main line has been completed, and only the laying out of the route along the rights of way granted in the franchises applied for remains. One of the points in the franchise asked for through the heart of Wilmington is that the line will be open to all other railroads for use, under certain conditions, but not for street-car traffic.

Just at present there is apparently no more important plan contemplated for the extension of the commercial facilities of Los Angeles than the proper joining of the business and wholesale districts with the harbors, which are the birthright of this metropolis.

Should he rap at the door? Or would that further alarm the intruders? He had knocked many times at the front door, it was true, but they would no doubt wait until they believed he had gone. Or else they might escape by the rear of the premises.

What should he do?

He hesitated again, with bated breath.

Next instant, however, he heard upon the stone steps above him, leading from the pavement to the front door, the light tread of feet quickly descending. Some one, having watched him descend there, was leaving the house! And yet so noiselessly that at first Max believed himself mistaken.

In a second he had dashed up the area steps and stood upon the pavement. But already he realized the truth. The front door stood ajar, and the intruder was flying as fast as his feet could carry him in the direction of the Brompton Road.

Swiftly, without looking back, the man sped lightly along the pavement to the next corner, which he turned and was a moment later lost to view.

Max Barclay did not follow. He stood there like a man in a dream.

"What—in Heaven's name—is the meaning of this?" as, held powerless, he stood staring in the direction the fugitive had taken.

His first impulse had been to follow, but next moment, as the escaping intruder had passed beneath a street lamp he recognized the figure unmistakably, both by the clothes and hat, as none other than his friend Charles Rolfe!

He fell back, staggered by the discovery.

For quite a brief space he stood unable to move. Then, seeing the door ajar, he ascended the steps and entered the house. The lights were switched on everywhere, but, on going in, something—what it was he could never describe—struck him as peculiar. Hardly had he crossed the threshold than he became instinctively aware that some mystery was there.

In a few seconds the amazing truth became apparent, for when he entered the dining-room, to the left of the hall, he started, and an involuntary exclamation of surprise escaped him. The place was empty, devoid of every stick of furniture!

From room to room he dashed, only to find that everything had been mysteriously removed. In the few brief hours of his absence Dr. Petrovitch had apparently fled, taking with him all his household effects.

He stood in the hall utterly dumfounded.

Why had Rolfe been there? What had he been doing in the empty house?

The swift manner in which the removal had been effected increased the mystery, for he had not left the doctor till five o'clock. Besides, he had no doubt dined with his daughter Maud and with Marion, and they would not leave until about 8 o'clock.

Again, a removal of that magnitude, requiring at least two vans, after dark could not possibly be effected without attracting the notice of the constable on duty.

Perhaps the police really did know who carried out the sudden change of residence. Anyhow, the whole affair was a complete enigma which amazed and stupefied him.

Presently, when he had somewhat recovered from his surprise, he ascended the stairs, his footsteps now echoing strangely through the empty place, and there found that the drawing-room, and, in fact, all the other rooms, had been completely and quickly cleared. The carpets had in some cases been left, but in the hasty removal curtains had been torn down from the rings, leaving cornices and poles, and the grand piano remained, it being apparently too large and heavy for rapid transit.

He ascended, even to the servants' rooms on the top floor, but found scarcely a vestige of furniture left.

In one back room, a small half-garret with a slightly sloping roof, he noticed a cupboard which curiosity led him to open, as he had opened other cupboards. As he did so, he saw a bundle upon the floor, as though it had been hastily thrown there.

As he pulled it forth it unrolled, and he then saw that it was a woman's light gray tweed skirt and coat.

(To Be Continued Monday.)

FRANTIC WOMEN

Organic disturbances of the feminine system act like a firebrand on the nerves of women, often driving them fairly frantic.

A nervous, irritable woman is a source of misery not only to herself, but to all those who come under her influence. That such conditions can be entirely overcome by taking is proven by the following letters.

Mrs. Mary Wood, of Christiana, Tenn., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I had the worst form of female troubles and my nerves were all torn to pieces; sometimes I suffered so much that it seemed as though I could not live.

"I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I feel like a different person. Your medicine is worth its weight in gold, and I cannot say enough for your advice."

Mrs. Wallace Wilson, Thompsonville, Conn., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was all run down, nervous, and could not rest nights. Doctors failed to help me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored me to perfect health."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

THE MARKETS.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

Strawberries were the feature of yesterday morning's selling. They dropped as low as 40 cents a 30-basket crate, or 2 cents a basket, for lower grades during the afternoon. Raspberries and blackberries were also plentiful and were disposed of at 7 cents a basket. Loquats were very cheap, but the supply commanded good prices, owing to small receipts and heavy demand.

There were no further changes in egg quotations and the market was steadier. Receipts were 317 cases.

BUTTER—Creamery, extras, 47½ cents a two-pound roll for creamery extras. This was due principally to the large amount of that commodity produced every day in the city and their close proximity to it.

All eastern cheese declined fractionally, owing to the large amount on hand. Receipts were 2191 pounds. Twelve large cheese were sold on Change considerably below quotations.

EGGS—There was a steady demand for potatoes and receipts were 3626 sacks. Bermuda onions were also in excellent demand and 30 sacks were sold on Change. Pineapples were 102 sacks, including silverskins and Bermudas.

Bean arrivals were 237 sacks. Pinks and Lady Washingtons constituted the chief offerings. White sweet potatoes are among the heaviest receipts of that vegetable and the price reverted to 2.50 a hundred. Total arrivals were 1,000 sacks.

Most vegetables were in abundance, but receipts of Mexican tomatoes were only adequate to supply the demand at 1.00 a crate. Artichokes from the North sold at 50 cents a dozen. Bunch goods were left over.

WHEAT MARKET WEAK ALL DAY.

PRICES CLOSE AT ALMOST THE LOWEST POINT.

Free Selling Occurs at the Opening, Owing to a Weak Market at Liverpool and to Favorable Weather Conditions in This Country—Corn Weak in Sympathy.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

CHICAGO, April 24.—The wheat market was weak all day and closed at almost the lowest point. There was free selling at the start owing to a weak market at Liverpool and to the favorable weather conditions in this country, which caused an opening decline of ½ to 1¾, compared with yesterday's final quotations.

During the day there were several slight rallies on covering by shorts, but prices failed to advance above the opening figures. The statistical situation was again favorable to the bulls, but the bright outlook for the new crop seemed to overshadow all other considerations. The close was weak. May opened ½@⅝ lower at 97@98, and closed at 97¼. July opened from ⅛ to 1¼ lower at 88⅛@88¾, sold off to 88¼ and closed at 88⅜.

The corn market was weak because of the break in wheat, local traders generally being inclined to sell. The market closed at almost the lowest point. May opened ¼ lower at 67⅛, sold at 67⅛ and then declined to 66⅞. The close was at 66⅝@67. July opened ⅛ lower at 67⅝@⅔, advanced to 68¼ and then declined to 67⅛ and closed at 67⅜.

The feature of trade in oats was the selling of September on favorable reports of the condition of the new crop. May opened unchanged at 53⅜, sold off to 53 and closed at 53¼. July opened ¼ lower at 45⅝, sold between 45⅜ and 45¾ and closed at 45⅝.

Provisions were weak on selling by commission houses and local packers. An advance of 10 in live hogs apparently had little effect. At the close, July pork was 17½ lower, lard was 7½ down, and ribs were 10 lower.

Cash quotations were as follows: Flour was steady; No. 3 spring wheat, 86@91; No. 2 red, 97@98; No. 2 corn, 67; No. 2 yellow, 67; No. 2 oats, 52¾; No. 3 white, 50½@52¾; No. 2 rye, 93@93½; fair to choice malting barley, 70@80; No. 1 flaxseed, 1.29; No. 1 northwestern, 1.32; short ribs, sides (loose), 6.50@6.87½; mess pork, per bbl., 12.90@13.00; lard, per 100 lbs., 6.67; short clear sides (boxed), 7.25@7.50; whisky, basis of high wines, 1.30.

Boston Copper Market.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO FRED DORR.]

BOSTON, April 24.—The market opened strong and active, and while the bulk of trading was still in high-priced industrials, dealings were on a broader scale than for some time past. New York Cotton Market.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO FRED DORR.]

NEW YORK, April 24.—Liverpool was decidedly more cheerful this morning, but the opening failed to make a full response to cables, owing to the announcement of the suspension of McIntyre & Co. The announcement was followed by uneasiness, with a decline to the low prices of yesterday. The outstanding contracts in our market were small, however, and as no pressure appeared the market resisted the early loss and displayed some strength on the outside and in Wall-street buying. A wire from Baltimore announcing the probable resumption of full time by the American Duck Corporation, was received. Rumors of more trouble on the short side of the market was a cause of uneasiness in the late trading.

Following is the range of prices today:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.
January	8.52	8.56	8.47	8.48
May	8.35	8.45	8.32	8.38

LONGER LINGER.

MANY SAILORS ARE MISSING.

ABOUT FOUR HUNDRED STRAGGLERS ARE REPORTED.

Officers of the Fleet Expect to Leave Behind at Los Angeles Ports About Three Hundred Men Who Prefer Life in Southern California to Further Cruising.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONG BEACH, April 24.—About four hundred stragglers are reported as missing from the battleship fleet, having overstayed their leave, and the ships' police were busy today rounding up the delinquents, but the officers of the fleet expect to leave behind about three hundred men who prefer life in Southern California to further continuing the cruise.

Success in all festivities given under auspices of the city makes it only necessary to announce a Long Beach day to draw the crowds from all over Southern California. Today proved no exception, and from early dawn it became evident that a record-breaking crowd was due and they came by electric car, train, auto, vehicles and afoot. All previous Fourth of July crowds were eclipsed and conservative estimates this afternoon place the crowd at between 60,000 and 75,000 people, who lined the beach all the way to Devil's Gate. The Salt Lake carried thirty-six cars of people, while the Pacific Electric at 9 o'clock had sent 400 carloads of people to the beach in two or three-car trains. Most of the crowd remained over for the grand illumination of ships and shore tonight, which eclipsed in every way the display of last Saturday night.

The Georgians came down early this morning in thirteen coaches on the Salt Lake and were taken out to the ship as guests of Capt. McCrea, the ship being closed to other visitors. The Virginia was also closed save to private parties who were hospitably entertained by the officers. The New Jersey and Rhode Island were open to the public and people literally swarmed over the vessels all day, and launches returned loaded every trip. Between 15,000 and 16,000 tickets were sold to the ships and when evening came it was necessary to refund about 3000 tickets for people who could not get on board the launches. The Hermosa with her decks crowded came over at noon, but merely sailed around the fleet and returned to San Pedro.

Lovers of martial music were treated to a fine concert on the beach by the division band of sixty-four pieces, while Donatelli's band gave a concert in the auditorium to 5000 people.

MARINES DRILL.

The feature of this afternoon was the competitive drill between companies of marines from the four ships of the second division. The companies landed at 2 o'clock and headed by the division band paraded up Pine and Locust avenue to the High School campus, where an audience of 12,000 people were given an exhibition of military precision such as comes only from regular troops.

The companies drilled in the following order: Virginia, Georgia, New Jersey and Rhode Island. Ten minutes was allotted to each company. The Virginia filled in its time with an exhibition of the manual of arms, marching by fours and alignment by company. The Georgia company came next and duplicated the drill of the preceding company. The New Jersey followed and varied its exhibition by giving a fine exhibition of the skirmish drill, which caught the fancy of the spectators. The Rhode Island marines came last and after going through several field evolutions closed with the manual of arms and a calisthenic exhibition. The judges, Col. W. S. Schreiber, Lieut.-Col. Saltmarsh and Capt. Quartermaster A. B. Austin, were close together on the Rhode Island and New Jersey, but finally decided on the latter as winners, and Col. Schreiber, on behalf of the Long Beach Bath-house Company, presented to Capt. Parker, commanding the New Jersey marines and senior captain of the division, a silver trophy cup. The four companies in battalion formation saluted the judges and marched back to their ships.

All shore leave ended at 8 o'clock tonight, but several hundred of the special privilege men were allowed to remain ashore until after the ball.

The week just passed has been a remarkable one in the way of sobriety and order. With crowds of daily visitors ranging from 20,000 to today's record of 75,000, there have been but six arrests and only four reports of theft, two of these of a minor nature. Not an accident has been reported, save one automobile slightly damaged. The police force under Chief Williams has been placed where they could do effective work, and their presence among the crowds doubtless had a beneficial effect.

Restaurants, bakeries, lunch counters and soft drink dispensaries are wrecked tonight, and so are the employes, and they hail with delight the closing of the night.

The illumination tonight was the dream picture of the week, added to which was a grand display of fireworks from the floats anchored on each side of the pier. After 9 o'clock people began clamoring for cars to go home. The Pacific Electric had massed over a hundred cars along Pine avenue and Ocean Front, but despite this it was near midnight before Long Beach went to sleep and many will be up early to see the departure of the fleet.

FIGHTS TO DIE.

SAD MYSTERY IN HIS SUICIDE.

Marine Repels Bold Effort to Save His Life.

Plucky Young Frank Palmer Punished for Pains.

Body of Jenkins, Drowned at Redondo, not Found.

The story of a deadly battle in the water between First Sergeant Joseph E. Jenkins of the marine guard of the U.S.S. Alabama and the young man who tried to save him from drowning at Redondo will be told to the Coroner if the body of the marine is ever found.

There is something weird and peculiar about this undoubted suicide that the men of the Alabama have not told.

The facts as given by an eyewitness is as follows:

"The sergeant of marines threw himself into the water from the Redondo wharf. As he did so, one of the seamen fired several shots from a revolver to attract attention.

"Frank Palmer, son of Dr. Palmer of the Southwest Museum of Los Angeles, ran at once down the wharf, tearing off some of his clothing as he ran. When he got to the end of the wharf, he cried out to a couple of seamen who were standing there, 'Aren't you going to save that man?'

"The sailors only shrugged their shoulders and looked away. As the men of the fleet have never been lacking in physical courage, the only conclusion that can be drawn is that they had some sort of understanding with the drowning man.

LEAPS TO HIS AID.

"Young Palmer at once jumped off the wharf and swam to the sergeant, who was sinking listlessly in the water.

"As Palmer drew near, the drowning man said menacingly, 'Keep away, you ——— ———; if you try to save me I'll drown you, too.'

"Palmer, however, paid no attention to the man's threat and tried to fasten a rope about him. Before jumping from the wharf, he had fastened the end of the rope around his leg.

"As the young man got the rope into action, the drowning man raised himself in the water and struck Palmer a fearful blow in th eface. Palmer dropped the rope and struck back.

"Out there in the deep water, off the wharf, treading water, the two men struck and dodged and ducked and fought a fierce battle with their fists.

"Palmer lost the rope and had to dive for it, but by this time the marine whom he was trying to save had floated away and was drowning.

"The plucky boy, getting hold of the rope, swam again to Jenkins and tried to throw the rope over him.

"Gathering his ebbing strength, the marine turned on his back and kicked with all his force into Palmer's stomach. The blow knocked the wind out of Palmer and he almost drowned before the eyes of the people on the wharf.

STICKS TO HIS TASK.

"Finally he managed to pull himself together, despite the pain of the blow, and, undaunted, returned to the work of rescue. The waves by this time were battering the body of the drowning marine in and about the piles; he was sinking and coming to the surface again, and the life was pretty nearly gone out of him.

"To rescue him was now doubly perilous, on account of the force of the waves which were lashing about the piling.

"Palmer bravely swam in, however, and after repeated struggles and failures, managed to get the ropes fastened about the body of the marine.

"Just then a big wave came and threw them both with a crash against the piling. Jenkins's body was hurled like a chip in amongst the piling under the wharf, and the rope was torn from him. The people on the wharf had a hard time getting a rope to young Palmer, who was exhausted and half drowned.

"The body of the marine was not seen again after it shot in under the wharf, into the thick forest of piling."

This, of course, settles the question as to whether or not the death of Jenkins was accidental.

"BLACK HAND" SCARE.

Health Office Sensation Center on Report of Receipt of Infernal Machine by Mail.

The political deputies in the Los Angeles health office were frightened half out of their uniforms yesterday afternoon by a report that some medical quacks who have been hunted down by the health officer have threatened to get even by demolishing the entire office force.

When Dr. Powers received his mail yesterday morning, he sent for Secretary Love and was closeted with him for half an hour. Love got into telephonic touch with Grant Bennett, attorney for the State Board of Health, and then left the office. Half an hour later he returned and was again closeted with Dr. Powers. Then he left the office a second time, telling one of the deputies that he was going to see the United States District Attorney.

By this time word has passed around the office that Dr. Powers had received an infernal machine through the mail. Dr. Powers asked some questions about the time the mail was received and the postman who delivered it. Then he went to the Mayor's office and asked for a conference with the Chief Executive.

The deputies communed among themselves and selected one of their number to ask the Health Officer for particulars.

"Just a quack who says he is going to do us up for interfering with his business," said Dr. Powers.

Later in the afternoon an officer of the State Medical Board said that Dr. Powers had received a threatening letter of the "black hand type," and that the board has called on the United States District Attorney's office for assistance in searching out the sender.

Attorney Bennett declined to discuss the incident last night; he said he has referred it to the Federal officials and that the case will be handled by them.

Health Officer Powers would say nothing as to the contents of the letter. He intends to keep quiet until the sender is "landed."

HORDES SLEEP ON SANDS.

Shores Jammed With Crowds Keen for Sight of Fleet on Its Departure.

Thousands of persons slept on the shores of Santa Monica Bay last night, eager for a glimpse of the fleet on its departure this morning for Santa Barbara. Crowds poured into all the cities along the bay yesterday and last night, only to find that all hotels, apartment houses and private residences were filled. The only alternatives were to stay awake all night, bunk on the sand or return to Los Angeles. By far the largest number preferred to make themselves as comfortable as possible along the beach. Every hour increased the number, trains of two and three electric cars discharging their loads at Santa Monica, Ocean Park, Venice and Redondo. It was the greatest throng ever seen at those places.

Many of the travelers had the foresight to take blankets with them, also lunches, so they got along very comfortably. But there were thousands who had no protection from the night air, and went hungry to bed, such as it was; walked the streets or sat about on the curbs, awaiting the rising of the sun and the first glimpse of activity on the battleships.

A still further rush from Los Angeles was on at 4 o'clock this morning, when cars that had been running all night with good loads of passengers were jammed to the guards. The crowds were increasing every minute and it was plain at that time that the rush to see the ships go would be fully as great as that which attended their arrival a week ago today at San Pedro.

FIFTY TAKE A "TRIP."

That Many Candidates Initiated Into Local Temple of the Knights of Khorassan Last Night.

Fifty candidates were initiated into Al Borak Temple, Knights of Khorassan, last night at Pythian Hall. The officers assisting in the accompanying ceremonial were: Royal Vizier, Robert L. Mueller; Venerable Shiek, R. L. Dunlap, Grand Emir, Kenton A. Miller; Mehadi, Dr. J. W. Gray; Secretary, John S. Myers; Treasurer, James Murray; Satrap, De Moss Bowers; Sahib, George E. Keiser.

Plans were made for the grand lodge which convenes in May at Long Beach. It is expected that several hundred candidates will be exemplified at that time.

Several of the officers reported that great interest is taken in the "Tuxedo patrol," which will drill in costume. The Knights of Khorassan represent the social branch of the Knights of Pythias, and with the rapid increase in membership of the local lodges of the Knights, the temples are receiving large additions. The evening closed with informal speeches and a social time. Light refreshments were served.

AROUND THE WORLD.

A unique entertainment will be given at the University of Southern California this evening. It will be a personally conducted "Trip Around the World," by members of the Student Volunteer Band. Real natives of many countries will take part in the programme, and all friends of the students and faculty are invited.

FAREWELL.

LONG BEACH'S FOND GOOD-BY.

Admiral Emory Leads March at Parting Ball.

Virginia Once More Scene of Delightful Affair.

Marine Band a Big Feature in Entertainment.

Admiral Emory and the officers of the second squadron of the battleship fleet were entertained with a farewell ball at the Virginia at Long Beach last night. The function was a brilliant affair. In spite of the fact that orders had been issued for the ships to sail early in the morning, every officer who found it possible attended the ball, though, in some cases, it meant no sleep for the next twenty-four hours.

The fashionable set, not only of Long Beach, but of Los Angeles and Pasadena as well, was represented, and a rousing good-by was given the parting guests.

At 7:45 the guests began to arrive, and soon the verandas of the hotel were crowded with eager watchers, waiting for the illumination of the warships. Promptly at 8 o'clock the searchlights began to flash in the sky.

The band of the first division rendered music during the evening and, between 8 and 9 o'clock, a concert was given in the ballroom. At 9 o'clock the word was passed around that the guests of honor were about to arrive, and the company gathered at the foot of the grand staircase. Soon the officers, with Admiral Emory at their head, appeared and, to the strains of a march, passed into the ballroom, where a reception was held.

Those who received with Admiral Emory were Capt. McCrea, Capt. Murdock, Capt. Southerland, Capt. Schroeder, J. H. Munholland and Miss Powell.

ADMIRAL LEADS MARCH.

The grand march was led by the admiral and Mrs. C. R. Drake. Then came Capt. Murdock and Miss Van Dyke, Capt. McCrea and Mrs. Turner and Capt. Southerland and Miss Powell.

The long line of officers and civilians passed slowly around the hall, winding in and out among the maze of pillars until, at a signal from the admiral, the first couple began a twostep.

In an instant the ballroom was filled with dancers. The naval officers in their brilliant uniforms, the women in stunning gowns and the civilians in conventional black made a striking picture.

Late in the evening boats were sent out into the bay laden with fireworks, and the reflection of the skyrockets, Roman candles and colored lights, shining through the low French windows, gave a mystic touch to the scene.

The officers were distinctly the lions of the evening. Boyish midshipmen and junior officers of marines could be seen strolling about the verandas, waited upon by a score of fair maidens, while civilians, accustomed to being treated with deference, were left to themselves.

Not the least striking feature in the ballroom was the marine band. Clad in blue trousers and scarlet coats, the musicians gave added touch of color. They demonstrated too, that naval bands know how to play dance music and all of the maids agreed that an ordinary orchestra would be but tame in comparison.

The evening was warm, and between dances the merrymakers eagerly sought the cool air of the verandas, and gazed at the warships outlined in fire.

PATRIOTIC COLORS.

The halls and corridors of the hotel were decorated in patriotic colors and over the entrance to the ballroom hung a red pennant with two white stars, signifying that a rear-admiral was present. From balconies and balustrades were suspended large flags and tiny silken ones were drapped about the pillars. An occasional touch of green acted as contrast to the brilliant hued bunting.

ALAS!

WAR BROUGHT BY WARSHIPS.

Revolution in Daughters of the Revolution.

Patrick Henry Descendant at the Front.

Charming Reception Despite Social Quarrel.

The visit of the Atlantic fleet to these waters has brought disruption to Eschscholtzia Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

The blood come from Revolutionary sires has been at the boiling point for several weeks, and a revolt against alleged autocrats of the organization has been the result, with the prospect of a new chapter for Los Angeles in the near future.

The leader of the opposition is a beautiful little white-haired lady, Mrs. Freeman R. Cady, a great granddaughter of Patrick Henry, whose slogan has been, "Give me liberty to entertain these officers, or I'll give you another chapter in Los Angeles."

Yesterday the reception to the naval officers and their wives was a brilliant and charming function, worthy of the high-bred ladies who arranged the courtesy. Visitors from the battleships thronged the place all the afternoon, and were entirely unaware of the undercurrent of feeling. They saw only the handsome line of ladies, headed by the regent, Mrs. Mary Banning. They were unaware of the fact that a number of notables of this chapter were conspicuous by their absence; that the State vice-regent, Mrs. Cameron Erskine Thom, was missing; that Mrs. Harriet Wright was not there, and Mrs. Gooding, another former regent, was not on hand to welcome the guests.

There were formal bows from distinguished naval representatives, and gracious inclinations from the receiving ladies, and many charming compliments were tossed back and forth; but there were belligerent confidences exchanged in the pauses when intimate friends lumped into each other.

"My dear, those knockers have acted outrageously. They have tried their best to make this reception a failure, and I am not going to stay in this chapter," was whispered by one member to another—while the singer of the afternoon dwelt on the high notes of the "Star Spangled Banner."

The trouble seemed to be that some of the members had wished to entertain the officers of the fleet, while others had been of the opinion that the chapter could not offer an entertainment fine enough for the widely-feted naval officers. "To receive, or not to receive?" that was the issue, and the affirmative side won, and the gentle regent, Mrs. Banning, appointed Mrs. Freeman R. Cady chairman of the entire enterprise. The successful ones were happy for a few days, but they reckoned not on the fighting qualities of their opponents, and dire revenge fell upon them. Election time was at hand. The little Patrick Henry lady was slated for the next vice-regent; but a dark horse was found to oppose her, and was elected so quickly that it made the other side dizzy, and nothing remained but to make the entertainment a success.

"We won't go to the old reception," was the final decision of the daughters who did not wish to have the affair, and some of the whispers yesterday afternoon even accused them of sending word to the naval men not to come. But perish the thought that the D.A.R. should ever have the fate of Miss Smarty, who had a party and nobody came.

Probably the rumor was not true, for the naval men and their wives came in goodly numbers and partook of a charming hospitality. Gold lace and brass buttons adorned the stalwart figures who passed and repassed beneath the splendid silken flags; and the afternoon gowns of the ladies, the great clusters of American Beauty roses, and carnations in red and white, made a brilliant and attractive scene. Arend's Orchestra furnished music and Mrs. Lillian Ballagh sang several selections.

The receiving ladies were Mmes. Mary Banning, W. H. Fuller, C. E. Eastman, J. W. Johnson, Freeman R. Cady, M. English and Miss Eugenia Hobbs. Among the members who met the guests and were responsible for their entertainment were Mmes. William Wallace McLeod, Frank E. Walsh, Ora Monnette, John L. Garner, W. A. Ryon, S. Grant Goucher, J. H. Peckham, Allan Aldrich, and the Misses Augusta Lamb, Elizabeth Pepper, F. E. Pike, Lucile Dixon, and Mrs. Scott Smith, Mrs. Lilian Ballagh, Mrs. J. Middlekoff and Mrs. Tubbs. The two bright little maids at the door were Miss Pauline Eastman and Helen Gunnison.

Upstairs were red, white and blue field flowers, and strings of the flags of every nation festooned the dining-room where refreshments were served.

Brig.-Gen. Frank C. Prescott, N. G. C. (retired,) was one of the callers, and among the naval guests were Lieutenant-Commander Sypher, Lieut. Harold E. Cook, Lieut. Charles Wade and Mrs. Wade, Surgeon Casto of the U. S. Maine, Surgeon Leckinski W. Spratling, Lieutenant - Commander Adalbert Althouse and Mrs. Althouse, Ensign Stockton representing the wardroom officers of the U.S. Kearsarge, wardroom officers of the U.S. Missouri, and Ensigns Horace C. Laird, Lucien F. Kimball, Samuel Henderson, Logan Cresap, Duncan T. Selfridge, Mrs. Selfridge, Midshipman Douglas Howard and Raymond F. Frelson and others.

COUNTY TAXES PILE IN.

Yesterday's Collections Biggest to Date on Second Installment. Monday Last Chance.

With only two days more for the payment of taxes, there still remains a total of $916,361.72 to be paid to County Tax Collector Welch, or a little less than one-fifth of the entire charge for the year. Yesterday's collections—$104,571.21—were the largest so far on the second installment. To these collections must be added a considerable amount that was received by checks through the mails. The total collection for the year, up to last evening, was $4,165,322.89, while the total charge is $5,081,684.61.

The office of the County Tax Collector, Spring and Franklin streets, will be open all today for the accommodation of the public, and it will be open Monday until 6 o'clock p.m., which will be the last opportunity to pay up without the addition of a 5 per cent. penalty for delinquency. It is expected that Monday will see the greatest rush of all; on that day the heaviest taxpayers will appear with their dues.

SAILOR ATHLETICS.

TROPHY IS WON BY LOUISIANA.

Champion Crew Easily Beats Connecticut Oarsmen.

Kansas Is Third, While Vermont Breaks Oars.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SAN PEDRO, April 24.—The Louisiana crew easily won the cutter race for Mrs. Rudecindo F. H. de Dodson's trophy cup yesterday afternoon at San Pedro, defeating the Connecticut, the nearest rival, by four lengths. The colors of the Kansas waved by the finish post almost an equal distance behind the Connecticut, while the Vermont, disabled at the start by breaking two oars, was fourth.

As the crews finished their long spurt amid tremendous cheering by the throngs of spectators lining the wharves, they glided slowly to the large landing float just opposite the post, where Coxswain Brocknow of the undefeated champions was presented the beautiful perpetual challenge loving cup, donated by Mrs. Rudecindo F. H. de Dodson. H. J. Stiegitz of San Pedro, in a neat speech, complimented the Louisianans on their prowess, handed the coveted trophy to the brawny oarsmen, while the united crews showed their deep gratitude by a spirited outburst of cheering. To Coxswain R. A. Willie was given the second prize of $50, to W. J. French of the Kansas $25, while Coxswain C. A. Lewis of the Vermont received a consolation present of $25.

The course covered a mile and a half, the starting position being a half mile to seaward of Dead Man's Island at the buoys, and lay along the smooth waters of the inner harbor, extending to the marine landing at the head of Fifth street. A holiday crowd was massed on either side of the long wharf frontage.

As the crews came in sight, feathering the ripples around the great bleak bluff, the interest in the spectators increased, and many shouted encouragement though the racers were still a long way off. A patrol of fleet launches cleared the course from overeager excursionists, escorting the struggling crews to the finish post, the spectators going wild with enthusiasm.

The husky oarsmen of the Louisiana forged to the front from the crack of the pistol and led to the finish. The result was never in doubt. The remarkable stamina of the Louisiana men quickly sent the nose of their boat ahead and enabled them to keep the lead.

The crews, with the exception of the Vermont, made a splendid start, but the quicker stroke of Egtit, Louisiana, who set the rate at 38 to the minute as against 34 of the Connecticut and Kansas, soon put the champion's followers at their ease. The Vermonters snapped two oars early in the start, and were so seriously handicapped by the accident that they never had a fair opportunity to show their real ability.

At Dead Man's point, the Louisiana had already gained an advantage of a length and a half over the Connecticut, who were using a shorter stroke and widening the gap. The champions gradually drew away, increasing their lead to three lengths. As they lead the quartette off the government dredger, the Kansas was fighting at every dip for second honors, but the smoother sliding and quicker stroke of the Connecticut continued to tell.

Egtit gave his men a breather as they passed the final quarter flag, and F. B. Garnes, stroke of the Connecticut called on his men for a final effort. The lead of the champions was too great, however, and the Louisiana pulled strongly and without apparent effort passed the finish post the easiest of victors by four lengths.

The plucky Kansas crew, quickening their stroke to 38 to the minute, slowly lessened the gap between them and the place boat, but the advantage was only a sufferance, and the Connecticut, dispairing of beating the Louisiana, soothed their disappointment by quickly shaking off their rear rivals, making the distance almost four lengths between the two boats as they finished. The Vermonters, never a factor in the struggle, gamely rowed to the stake post, raising their broken oars as significant of misfortune, receiving an ovation from the sympathising enthusiasts.

The acquisition of the beautiful trophy by the Louisiana marks the seventh prize cup won by the champions since leaving Hampton Roads. The Dodson cup is created perpetual to be contested for by all the crews of the Atlantic fleet.

The officials were: William La Plant, starter; J. A. Weldt, Mat Walsh and W. J. Wood, judges.

MISMANAGEMENT.

SPORTS ARE LONG DELAYED.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONG BEACH, April 24.—The scheduled nine-mile arbitrary handicap cup race out of Long Beach harbor was not held as scheduled. The sailors' races were postponed so long that interest in them lagged considerably and the New Jersey cutter crew, after standing at the long wharf for nearly an hour, put back to ship and took no part in either the rowing or sailing events.

The sailor crew of the Georgia carried off the silver cup presented by the management of the Hotel Virginia in the cutter race. Lieut. Smead of the Rhode Island acted as starter, and when his pistol snapped, the crews of the Rhode Island, Georgia and Virginia were off together. Under the guidance of Coxswain Brucks, the Georgia boys pulled ahead slowly and crossed the line two lengths in advance of their opponents. The Virginia and the Rhode Island crews fouled each other several times and therein lay their defeat.

The sailing cutters of the same three warships were again kept waiting for an hour, and it was past 5 o'clock when they left the starting point between the stake and the Auditorium pier. The Virginia was slightly handicapped, but on the long western leg stood out to sea farther than either of the others. On the starboard tack the Virginia, in attempting to round the battleship Georgia, misjudged distances in the turning point of the course, and was forced again to tack to the west. The Georgia cutter stood way out on the first leg, but also fell short in estimating, and was forced to sail under the lee of the battleship instead of around it. All three ships had an equal chance at the cup when dusk came on, and the wind sank to a very light breeze, leaving the boats nearly becalmed, far to the southwest of the turning point, and the race undecided.

The race of the fast motor boats was also called off, owing to an injury to an engine of one of the tiny boats. The sports for the sailors on the beach were one of the best features of the day. A great crowd surged along the lines and made it almost impossible to carry out some of the events, but they were finally pulled off. The first of these was a hurdle race, in which Kenifick of the Rhode Island ran first, Graves of the same ship second, and Miller of the Virginia, third. Chenault of the Virginia won the sack race, while Downs of the Rhode Island came through second.

The hundred-yard dash was one of the most exciting of the races, and Kenifick of the Rhode Island again showed his superiority over some twenty entrants by winning the event by four feet. Zicot of the same vessel was second, and Allen, a very diminutive sailor of the Virginia, was awarded third prize.

The obstacle race was a laughable affair. A long canvass chute filled partly with flour and obstructed by the rims of hoops which supported the arches, was the obstacle through which three sailors started from one end and three from the other, at the same time. After a prolonged scramble in the dark, C. A. Swartz of the Virginia succeeded in coming out first, closely followed by Graves of the Rhode Island.

A tug of war by crews from the four ships was the cause for cheers. The mighty brawn of six sailors from each vessel was severely tasted, and after five minutes of tugging, pulling and sliding through the loose sand, the Virginia men won from those of the Rhode Island, and the Georgia boys carried the New Jersey men the greatest distance. Among the aquatic sports, one which was rather unique and out of the ordinary was a race between two bicycle-propelled torpedo boats, in which A. Murphy won.

LONG BEACH AUTO RACES.

Motor Cars Roll Over the Sands in Slow Time—Finishes Are not Exciting.

LONG BEACH, April 24.—A large crowd witnessed the automobile races here today. The track was wet and slow. The races were poorly conducted, and the spectators could not enjoy the events as it was impossible to tell which were the racing cars. There was an excellent opportunity to pull off a splendid meet had the races been held later in the day when the course was harder and consequently faster.

The start was two and three-eighths miles below the wharf, where the cars finished. No fast time was made and none of the cars did better than forty-five miles an hour. There were no sensational finishes.

The first event for runabouts was a walkaway for M. C. Heague in a Durocar, with D. H. Hawthorne a poor second. The third car, a Reo, was not in the running from the moment after the start. Heague took the lead and kept it to the finish.

M. Varney, in a two-cylinder Tourist, captured the second event easily. His opponents failed to finish and the winner bowled over the course in slow time.

The free-for-all four-cylinder touring car event was won by H. O. Harrison in an Oldsmobile. G. F. Grant, in a four-cylinder Tourist, was a factor in the race for the first half mile, then the Olds pulled away and finished with a comfortable margin.

A Mercedes, with Danny Kuhl driving, took the free-for-all touring car event easily. A gearless car finished far in the rear.

George Barnes won the roadster event easily in a Haynes. The Oldsmobile, the only other entry, failed to finish because of trouble with the clutch. A Mercedes started with the two machines and trailed the winner to the finish line.

There was some talk after the races of making the Long Beach event an annual race meet. The course offers excellent opportunities for speeding when it is dry. It is safe and six cars could race abreast along the sands if necessary.

Last Affair at Venice.

VENICE, April 24.—The last of fleet entertainments was the ball at the Venice dancing pavilion, this evening, for sailors and marines. It was a very pleasant affair, Los Angeles generously providing pretty partners for the boys in blue.

FRANK G. CARPENTER will have an interesting letter in The Times Magazine tomorrow about buried African Kings.

KINDLY ACTS.

BOUQUETS MANY FOR THE SICK.

Floral Tributes from the Temperance Organization Are Tendered to the Patients Aboard the Hospital Ship Relief—Steamer Cabrillo Goes to Santa Barbara.

SAN PEDRO, April 24.—The Woman's Christian Temperance Union today carried several hundred bouquets of beautiful flowers for the sick sailormen on board the hospital ship Relief. After visiting the Second Squadron anchored off Long Beach the Relief sailed for San Francisco. The U.S.S. Culgoa also sailed tonight for San Francisco.

Forty thousand magazines, donated by various individuals and organizations in Los Angeles and vicinity to the men of the fleet through the Y.M.C.A., were delivered to the various vessels of the fleet today.

The flagship Connecticut was closed today in order to entertain 200 members of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce.

Tomorrow morning at 5 o'clock, Rear-Admiral Thomas's division, the flagship Connecticut leading, will get under way and will be joined outside the breakwater by the second division. They will then proceed in squadron formation to Redondo and Santa Monica Bay and thence to Santa Barbara.

The steamer Cabrillo, Capt. Blanchard, leaves tonight for Santa Barbara to transport passengers during the fleet's stay there. Tonight the ships are brilliantly illuminated, and are flashing good-by signal to the numerous small boats carrying excursion parties out to the warships.

After the presentation of the cutter races cup by Mrs. Rudecinda F. S. de Dodson to the crew of the ten-oar cutter of the Louisiana this afternoon, Mrs. Dodson and party were entertained aboard the Louisiana by Mr. Jules, Paymaster Charles W. Eliason and Midshipman Barton. The party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Dodson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reynolds and Mr. La Pont of San Pedro; Mrs. Harry H. Schoneman and little daughter, Georgia, Miss Verney, Miss Davenport, Daisy Davenport, Miss Craig, Miss Swearbaugh and James and Carl Dodson of Los Angeles.

The junior officers of Admiral Thomas's squadron were entertained at dinner tonight at the South Coast Yacht Club.

CHEERING SAILORS MERRY.

"No gold braid allowed" was the unwritten law yesterday when 2000 bluejackets were the guests in a lively automobile ride. About two hundred machines were supplied by private owners and the Automobile Dealers' Association. The trip was organized by the Los Angeles Examiner. Some of the automobiles were driven by society women. Business men also labored at the wheel. The motor cars were all gaily decorated and the sailors, many of whom waved cardboard banners, cheered incessantly.

The sailors brought three bands with them and Porter's Catalina Island Band had also been secured. Whenever they struck up "The Star Spangled Banner," the guests in the automobiles would leap to their feet, uncover and remain so till the last strain had died away.

The bluejackets were taken from Chester Place to Eastlake Park, from Boyle Heights to Hollywood, and some to Pasadena. The cars were at their service as long as they wished to ride.

ROUNDING 'EM UP.

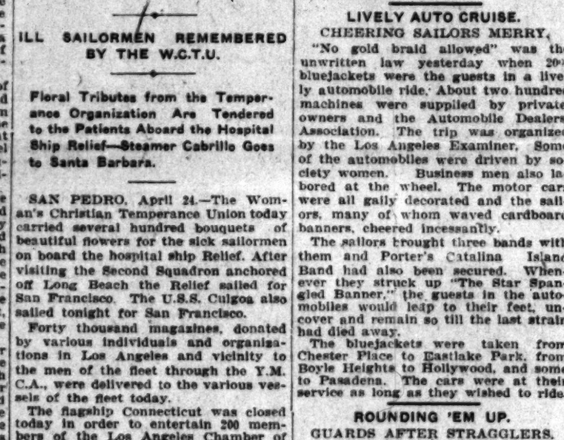
GUARDS AFTER STRAGGLERS.

By detachments of the bluejackets' guard, Los Angeles was scoured last night for "stragglers"—sailors who had violated their shore leave. About midnight the last detachment, under Lieut. Fred S. Murdock, left for San Fedro with four marines and a deserter from the South Dakota. It is understood that less than ninety men are still missing. Several sailors were arrested who overstayed their shore leave at San Diego. According to Lieut. Murdock, most of the "stragglers" will probably report in San Francisco and receive a short sentence in the "brig."

The boys in blue dreaded to leave Los Angeles. In their last hours of shore leave many of them made purchases and then hurried aboard ship, while others still lingered.

The Pacific Electric depot was crowded with sailors from early in the afternoon until about 9 o'clock at night. Instead of being conveyed to the Police Station the boys were taken to the station, where they reported and were placed aboard cars in charge of the guards.

BATTLESHIP MADE OF FLOWERS FOR ADMIRAL.



Admiral Thomas was presented with a beautiful and unique floral ship yesterday as a memtnto of his visit in Los Angeles. It is a miniature battleship, four and a half feet long, eighteen inches beam, with fore and mainmast, two turrets, funnels, smokestacks and a battery of nineteen guns. The masts are four feet high, with three fighting tops on each. On these small rapid-fire guns are mounted. At the main mast the flag of the admiral flies, while Old Glory is at the foremast. The U. S. Jack is at the prow, and another American flag hangs over the stern. There are lifeboats hanging from davits, and other appurtenances of a first-class fighting machine in evidence.

The piece is made of everlasting flowers and "immortelles," of white, blue and yellow. Charles E. Morton of the Redondo Floral Company, made and presented the piece.

FLEET WEEK CARNIVAL CLOSES AT REDONDO.

Sailormen's Liberty Expires at Midnight and They Have to Bid Farewell to the Girls an Hour Earlier—Civilian Races on Hotel Grounds Prove Entertaining.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

REDONDO, April 24.—Fleet week carnival closes tonight with an all-night dance at the pavilion, and a large crowd has already gathered to take part in this affair. Many naval uniforms are to be seen ashore tonight, not only for this civilian dance, but also for the naval ball at the Hotel Redondo. The men's liberty expires at midnight tonight, and the boys are scheduled to bid the girls farewell an hour earlier.

The civilian races on the Hotel Redondo grounds proved to be one of the most entertaining features of the carnival. There were men's races, women's races and boys' and girls' races. In the fifty-yard dash for men, the following were the winners in the order named: Edwards, Walton and Bass. In the twenty-five-yard dash for boys, 15 and under, Alton, Swenson and Hardesty; twenty-five-yard dash, girls, 15 and under, Pauton, Trinnick and Martin; seventy-five-yard dash for men, Edwards, Barton and Baldridge; twenty-five-yard dash ladies, Miss Woodward, Miss Brown and Mrs. Penton; fifty-yard dash for boys, 16 and under, Hayes, Evans and Dawson; three-legged race, Lechner twins, Olmstead and Stump, and Baldridge and Hayes.

The fifty-yard dash for boys, 16 years and under was especially interesting because the winner, young Hayes, was at least a foot shorter than his next larger competitor, and by far the lightest boy in the bunch. He won by ten feet.

The hospital ship Relief, arrived this afternoon from San Pedro, and after effecting a number of transfers to the ships here sailed to Santa Barbara by way of Venice.

OFFICERS' LAST DANCE.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS BALL.

The last social event of fleet week was the ball at the Knights of Columbus Clubhouse on South Figueroa street last night, in honor of the officers. Not many of them were able to attend, owing to the early hour at which the ships sail, but Rear-Admiral Emory was there for a little while in the early evening, and some members of his staff, including Capt. Shear, Lieutenant-Commander McCaffery and Lieuts. McDowell, Cornan and Fitzhugh.

The clubhouse porch and lawn were brilliantly lighted and made a fine appearance.

In addition to those mentioned there were present: Col. Francis T. Colby, Arnold Wall, Will Curran, Edwin Schaller, Mr. and Mrs. Schubert, Joseph Stein, Joseph Corne, M. C. Ford, Leo Rosecrans, M. C. Daly, L. J. Weir, Thomas McDonald, Thomas Welch, Edward McCoy, Mr. and Mrs. Coffin, Mr. Breen, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Joyce, P. A. Dugan, Joseph Irvin, Mr. and Mrs. Stokes, Edward Bell, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Ford, C. I. Wunderle, Joseph Dergan, Edward J. Spath, Thomas Martin, Edward McCurdy, C. M. Cordary, William Kern, Anthony Schwamm, Edward McKirby, Frank McDonald, Miss Conway, Miss Katharine Hanan, Miss Redmond, Miss Kittie Morrisey, Miss Mixner, Miss Coyle, Miss Gardiner, Katherine Small, Miss Plume, Miss O'Grady, Miss Martin, Miss Breen, the Misses Bell, the Misses Higgins, Miss Anna and Miss Cecilia Coyle, Miss Mary Pool, Mrs. Dineen and Miss Dela Val.

Bernard, the 2-year-old son of Bailey B. Nagal, president of the Pennsylvania Boiler Works, and grandson of T. M. Nagal, a multimillionaire, died Thursday night as the result of taking medicine prescribed for his mother, believing it to be candy.

WOMEN RIDE IN EXCITING RACE.

CALIFORNIA CHAMPION DEFEATS "DESERT QUEEN."

At Agricultural Park yesterday afternoon Miss Viola Talamantes of No. 2636 West Ninth street, champion woman rider of California, defeated Miss Nesbit, the "Desert Queen" of Arizona, in a race which was one of the most exciting features of the Wild West Show.

Tuesday Miss Nesbit stated that she would like to compete for the championship of California. Thursday she again made the request, and it was acceded to, that the bluejackets might have a treat.

Miss Talamantes wanted to race a mile, but Miss Nesbit said that the horse she would ride could not last for more than a quarter.

The event was started by "Wild Horse" Hill of Arizona, and at the crack of his gun both horses ran like mad.

The powerful bay ridden by Miss Nesbit did its best, but this wasn't good enough. Down the track, with the shrill yells of the cow-punchers in their ears, went the two riders, their steeds frenzied by the uproar. When the California girl finishd two lengths in the lead, pandemonium broke loose.

The sailors yelled and threw their hats on to the track. Several old Californians in the grand stand, moved deeply, arose and emptied their revolvers through the roof, while cowpunchers of California and Arizona almost exhausted their supply of ammunition.

Miss Nesbit accepted defeat gracefully and shook hands with the victor. Following the race, Miss Talamantes again took the saddle and rode in the stage hold-up.

One of the sensational episodes of the day was the roping of a wild steer by Dr. Shurtleff. As the steer fell, the saddle girth broke, but Shurtleff maintained his seat.

Jack Hendrickson, who has been conducting the show for the Vaquero Club, appeared at the park yesterday afternoon. Despite the injuries received in a fall Tuesday, he gave a most successful performance.

When the show was over, the sailors arose and with vigorous cheers expressed their appreciation of the entertainment. The cowboys gave three rousing yells for the boys of the navy, accompanied by volleys of pistol shots.

FLOWERS AT PARTING.

ADMIRAL'S SPECIAL GUESTS.

The flagship Connecticut and the handsome cabin of Admiral Thomas were perhaps never more beautifully and fragrantly decorated with flowers than yesterday, following the invasion of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, who, with their ladies, had been invited to make a private inspection of the war vessel. Over one hundred of them went to East San Pedro on a special train over the Salt Lake road, being received at the landing by the launches of the four battleships, and transported to the Connecticut as the special guests of the admiral. Many of the ladies and gentlemen carried boxes and bouquets of magnificent roses, carnations and other choice blossoms, which were presented to the admiral, and placed in various parts of the ship.

As soon as the greetings were over the guests, in small parties, were placed in the hands of petty officers and shown minutely over the big driving machine, from the furnace rooms in the hold to the bridge, seven decks above. One of the most interesting demonstrations was the operation of the great 12-inch guns in the forward turret. Expert gunners showed, by putting the electric machinery in operation, how one of the big guns is loaded and fired five times in less than four minutes, each shot having a range of ten miles, with a shell weighing 850 pounds.

A portion of the ship's crew stood at attention in various parts of the vessel, while others were engaged in making repairs to the machinery, hard at work in the galleys, or lounging about the decks. Some amused themselves with the mascot pig, the nanny goat and her kid, or in playing cards. Here or there one man sat in a quiet corner writing his final letter home, before leaving port this morning. The whole scene on board was a revelation to many of the visitors, showing that there is plenty of work to do on board a big battleship, and that the larger part of the large crew is constantly at work.

The harbor all about the ships, as they lay quietly and immovable behind the breakwater, was dotted with boats, manned by crews of amateur oarsmen in training under command of petty officers. In addition were the many launches and excursion boats flitting about among the ships of the fleet, the whole forming a charming spectacle.

Mayor Harper and the other members of the Fleet Committee also visited the Connecticut yesterday, going down to San Pedro on a special car over the Pacific Electric. They were met by launches from the ships and received as special guests of the admiral, as were Bishop Conaty and a party of personal friends.

It was a sort of farewell reception in recognition of the manner in which the officers and men of the fleet have been entertained by the city of Los Angeles.

THANK ADMIRAL.

VETERANS ARE GRATEFUL.

S. Merrill, Department Commander California and Nevada G.A.R., has, on behalf of that organization, and of kindred organizations, extended thanks to Admiral Evans for his cordial invitation to visit the battleships and also to all under his command who receive the visitors with such admirable courtesy. He says:

"It was a red letter day, to be remembered with pleasure by the participants, and to be spoken of with delight by the young people who were privileged to accompany the veterans."

Sailors Grateful.

The appreciation of the enlisted men of the battleship fleet for the generous hospitality accorded them in this city is voiced by one of them in a letter to Chairman Flint of the entertainment Committee. It contains this paragraph:

"We certainly will ever remember the good time and the friendly treatment shown by the people of Los Angeles, and especially by the kind and cheerful ladies who served us the excellent barbecue at Chutes Park, and all will help us for a long time to come to do more cheerfully our not ever pleasant and sometimes rather monotonous duty aboard our iron homes

COMMITTEE TO MEET.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 24.—Harry S. New, chairman of the Republican National Committee, has decided to call a meeting of the committee before the assembling of the national convention in June.

The large number of spirited contests among the States makes it necessary for the committee to meet.

PORTLAND WANTS FLEET.

Oregon Metropolis Wrought Up in Reflection on Their Rose Carnival Date.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PORTLAND (Or.) April 24.—Portland is up at what is considered a reflection on the capacity of their city as a host by the sending of a light draft vessel, a gunboat and a squadron of torpedo-boats to Portland to be present at the rose carnival, to be held here the first week in June, citizens of Portland will exert every possible influence to secure the presence here of at least a portion of the battleship fleet.

Upon receiving this information the Rose Carnival Committee of Portland requested all citizens of Portland to telegraph to the Congressmen from their States of their nativity, calling their attention to the fact that during the year more than fifty vessels of the fleet, the largest of the battleships included, will be without difficulty up and down the Columbia and Willamette rivers and across the Columbia River bar. They are to urge that the Congressmen use their influence to bear upon the Secretary of the Navy to send the fleet to this harbor.

SUICIDE USES DYNAMITE.

RENO, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Pat Brennan, a miner of Blair, committed suicide yesterday by lying down on a stick of dynamite and lighting the fuse.

The body of the suicide was found between Coldfield and Blair, a mangled mass, trunk and limbs being separated.

Brennan is supposed to have become discouraged with life in the mines. He was unmarried. The authorities have not ascertained that he has relatives.

GLAD DAYS AND SIGHTS FOR POOR LITTLE ONES.

Orphans Under a Battleship's Guns.

Four hundred and fifty orphans from various institutions in this city saw the battleships at Venice yesterday. Little boys and girls who had never seen a war vessel in their lives had the run of the fighting machines, shook hands with the bluejackets, heard the bands play for their own special benefit, and then had a feast at Playa del Rey—and all free. It was an outing long to be remembered by the orphans, who were the guests of C. M. Pierce, manager of the Balloon Route excursions. They visited the Minnesota and the Maine.

Four cars carried the crowd of youngsters. They were so entranced when the blue ocean burst into view that they yelled with delight. Barges were waiting at the wharf at Venice and the bluejackets were solicitous. Two little girls were seasick. They were given special care, and once on the battleships were treated with so much consideration that they forgot they were ill.

The orphans roamed over the vessels and peeped into every corner. They petted the mascots, and lingered at the mess-room galley, where a jovial cook gave them the best he had in the pantry.

At 8 o'clock in the morning the crowd of little ones, chaperoned by attendants from the several homes, started from the Fourth-street depot of the Los Angeles-Pacific system. The cars were all their own for the time being and Manager Pierce was as delighted as any of the children during the trip. The sights along the way were pointed out, but of course the objective point could not be reached too soon.

Venice was practically turned over to the youngsters and as they swarmed out on the wharf to the ship's boats the stream of delighted children was a pleasing sight. S. E. Cooper assisted in handling the crowd.

After bouncing over the waves to the big boats the little ones were taken back to dinner, and later, tired but happy, were whisked to their homes to tell of the wonders they had seen. During the week Mr. Pierce took orphans' excursions to the beach daily.

M'CARREN CAUSES DIVORCE.

Brooklyn Politician Accused by Dr. Dixon of Taking Mrs. Dixon About as His Wife.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BUFFALO (N. Y.) April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. Mary A. Downs-Dixon, now being sued by Dr. William A. Dixon for divorce, accompanied Senator Patrick E. McCarren to Albany during the sessions of the Legislature as well as to other places in the country, according to affidavits filed today in the Erie County Clerk's office.

McCarren's infatuation for the woman appears from these affidavits to have been such that he was not satisfied with her company merely in New York and Brooklyn, where he kept her in expensive apartments, but she was also his companion at Saratoga and was quartered during legislative sessions in the Ten Eyck Hotel and the Kenmore Hotel in Albany.

McCarren is credited with maintaining a fine house with two servants, a nurse and a maid for her on Lenox Road in the borough of Brooklyn. She registered in 1906, the affidavits declare, at the Waldorf-Astoria as Mrs. McCarren and was requested to leave.

HENEY ACCUSES JUROR.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 24.—Morris Haas, a liquor dealer, one of the accepted jurors in the trial of Abraham Ruef, was denounced by Heney as an ex-convict today, and he was dismissed by Judge Dooling.

The incident caused a sensation in court just before noon adjournment. Heney rose and dramatically forced Haas to admit that he had served two years in San Quentin for embezzlement.

Haas was sent up from this city in 1888, and he was pardoned two years later by Gov. Waterman. Frank J. Murphy of counsel for Ruef, brought out that Haas's accuser afterward committed suicide.

Haas was deeply affected by the laying bare of his record in open court. He stated he asked several times to be excused from sitting on the jury.

This is the second ex-convict drawn on the Ruef jury.

Following the Haas disclosure, Juror Edwin Mohrig asked permission to address the court. He stated that he wished it understood that Detective Tom Gibson, in the employ of Patrick Calhoun, under indictment for alleged bribery of Supervisors in the overhead trolley franchise matter, could not "fix him."

He went on to state that rumor had come to him that it had been said he was one of two jurors sworn to try Ruef who had been fixed. On being assured by the court that the statement had never been made, Mohrig became composed. Mohrig charged the statement to Heney, but the latter told Mohrig that all investigations on the part of the prosecution had found him to be an honorable citizen.

FLASHES FROM WIRES.

The North Dakota Supreme Court has declared unconstitutional the State law requiring the railroads to furnish 1000-mile books good for families, at $20 flat.

David Wetherbee, aged 75 years, his wife, aged 65, and their daughter, were cremated, and Mr. Lemm, the daughter's husband, was probably fatally burned yesterday in a fire that destroyed the Wetherbee home at Centerville, Pa. Mrs. Lemm after rescuing her husband reentered the building for her parents when the roof collapsed.

Two persons were injured and sixteen others narrowly escaped from a burning apartment-house at Wilkinsburg, a suburb of Pittsburgh, yesterday.

The Farmers' National Bank of Emlenton, Pa., capital, $50,000, and the First National Bank of Clintonville, Pa., capital, $25,000, were closed today by the comptroller.

The Japanese imperial sanction of the marriage of Prince Takeda with Princess Tsune, the Emperor's eldest daughter, was announced in Tokio yesterday.

The citizens of Auckland, New Zealand, have appointed various committees to arrange for an adequate welcome to the American fleet of battleships when they call here next September.

Mapping Air Reefs.

From the action taken by the French Aëro Club it seems that airships as well as the ships of sea have to have charts and maps to point out obstacles and show a clear path ahead. A series of maps are now being drafted, and for this purpose a vast number of documents have been collected. The first charts will show the position of telegraph wires, overhead cables and all dangerous obsctacles which might be struck by a balloon's guide rope at night. Many overhead cables convey currents of 20,000 volts or more, and contact with such might mean disaster to balloon and occupants when landing.

The Westminster Clock.

It is not generally known that the celebrated clock in the tower of the Palace of Westminster is the work of a man who subsequently became, not a member of the House of Commons, but a member of the House of Lords—Sir Edward Beckett, Q. C., a leading member of the parliamentary bar, who was created Lord Grimthorpe, and had a great genius for clock-making and for building.

GOSSIP OF THE FOREIGN STAGE.

BY HAYDEN CHURCH.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Feb. 26.—By this time thousands of American playgoers must have seen "My Wife," the comedy from the French in which John Drew is now appearing with "Billie" Burke as his leading woman. In Paris, as readers probably know, it was called "Mlle. Josette, Ma Femme," and it ran there for more than a year, a remarkable feat in the "City of Light," where a frequent change of bill is the usual order. Thereafter, moreover, the English version of this sparkling comedy crowded the London Haymarket for months on end, and, according to all accounts, it will serve John Drew for as lengthy a period.

One would think that the first manager to whom it was offered would have jumped at it, but that was a long way from being the case, according to an interview with its author, Paul Gavault, which a Parisian weekly publishes. From this it appears that "Josette" had to knock at theatrical doors exactly seven times before one was opened to her, and the biggest and most successful of Paris theaters refused to give her hospitality. No less surprising is M. Gavault's admission that in spite of the success of "Josette" he had the greatest difficulty in placing his other offspring, "The Happiness of Jacqueline," which is now crowding the Paris "Gymnase," and which you are to have in America ere long. The manuscript of this play rested in a pigeon-hole at the Paris Vaudeville for several years, and each season the manager said cheerfully to the author, "Mon petit" —theatrical folk in France always call their friends "petit" however big they are—"your comedy is charming; I am going to play it at once." When this had been going on for some time, and "Mlle. Josette" had achieved its success, the author went back to the manager once more and said, "Mon petit, I want my play back again; you will never play it," and that is how Mlle. Jacqueline came to be a pensionnaire at the Gymnase. It is evident that even the authors of successful plays have their difficulties almost comparable with the tyro.

"What's in a name?" Juliet's famous query, might be repeated with reason by Laurence Irving, the younger of the late Sir Henry's sons. He has just startled his friends and acquaintances by going into vaudeville and accepting an engagement at the rejuvenated London "Coliseum," and everybody is asking why? It apparently having occurred to no one else, however, to put the query to the young actor himself, I did so last evening in his dressing-room at the big music hall, where I found him making up for his part in "Masks and Faces."

"It's quite simple," he said when asked why he had deserted the "legitimate." "I just couldn't get enough engagements. A year in 'Raffles' and a fortnight in 'The Incubus,' represent my only roles for some time. So, for the present, I intend to keep to the halls. I have an option on Richard Harding Davis's sketch, 'Rags Reegan,' which, as you know, made a hit across the Atlantic.

"One of the troubles with the theater here," Irving added, "is that there are too many people with private backers who put down money and buy a part for a certain actor or actress. Thus, the man or woman who has earned success by hard work is elbowed out of a salary."

Like his elder brother, Laurence Irving is an uncommonly capable actor, so the fact that he is not in demand with managers is the more surprising. Certainly the late Sir Henry would turn in his grave did he know that his younger son was doing a music-hall turn.

On the stage here adaptations of novels follow one another with surprising rapidity, but only one of those produced recently, "The Beloved Vagabond," has turned out a success. Especially disappointing is the dramatization of his story, "Stingaree," by E. W. Hornung, the author of "Raffles." The play never really grips and seems likely to have a brief career at the Queen's Theater, where it was produced last week. This fine new playhouse, by the bye, seems in a fair way to prove as great a hoodoo as the Waldorf, the Shuberts' unlucky and long-untenanted theater in Kingsway. It opened with "The Sugar Bowl," the latest comedy of Madeleine Lucette Ryley, which failed to draw. Then "The New York Idea" was put on there with a similar result. Ill-fortune, too, overtook the revival of Shaw's "Devil's Disciple" as soon as it was transferred to the Queen's, and the playhouse remained dark until the advent of "Stingaree."

"Susannah and Some Others," Madame Albanesi's stage version of her romance, also failed when produced recently at the Royalty, and a similar fate appears to await Max Pemberton's "Woman of Kronstadt," which we had at the Garrick last Saturday for the first time. As in the case of the Hornung piece, all that was most attractive in "Kronstadt," the novel, was left out of the stage piece. As a result, Mrs. Russ Whytal and an excellent all-round company had to do what they could with indifferent material, and at the end the applause was mostly of the courteous variety.

Despite these failures, however, a lot more adaptations from works of fiction are announced, most important of them, perhaps being "The Lord of Latimer Street," a dramatization by Oliver Madox Hueffer of his book of the same name. This will be given at Terry's on February 29. Nina Boucicault appearing in the heroine's part.

"When a woman wills, she will, you may depend on't. And when she won't, she won't, and there's an end on't." Thus runs the adage and it is particularly true when the woman happens to be La Divine Sarah. She has decided that she won't and the result is that Henry Bataille's "Faust," the production of which at the Theater Sarah Bernhardt all Paris was awaiting with eager interest, has been shelved. The talented young author may invoke the aid of the courts to enforce his contract and compel the great tragedienne to change her mind, but despite his warlike name and bellicose reputation in a legal combat with such a woman he is pretty sure to be worsted. Not even Mephistopheles himself could cajole or terrify Sarah into playing a role that she does not want to play. In any event, by adopting the plan of periodically taking up the rehearsals and then dropping them again the directorate of the theater could delay the presentation of the play for three years and by that time the small stock of patience which Bataille possesses would certainly be exhausted.

Meanwhile theatrical Paris is hugely enjoying the row between the tragedienne and the dramatist. Sarah says that Bataille's "Faust" in its present form is unplayable, and that was made abundantly evident to anybody capable of taking a before-the-footlights view of a piece, at the rehearsals. Bataille, on the other hand, asserts that there is nothing wrong with the play, but a good deal is wrong with Sarah. From the beginning, he says, she proved to be intractable—no new discovery, that—objected to the employment of certain artists in the roles for which they were best fitted, insisted on making radical changes in the play and was more than insistent that undue prominence should be given to her own part, that of Mephistopheles. Furthermore, it seems, her conception of the character was very different from that of the author. Bataille maintains that the Mephistopheles of Goethe was that of a gentlemanly fiend with redeeming features—that he stood not for Satan, the embodiment of all that is evil, but for a spirit—the spirit of negation. As such, he contends, his influence over Faust was of a restraining sort, of a nature to warn him that there were limitations to his power and his superhumanity. This much-diluted, second-fiddle sort of a devil did not fit in with Sarah's actions of the out-and-out Satanic Mephistopheles with which she expected to hold Paris spellbound. Hence, as can be imagined, there were "ructions" between her and Bataille. Neither would yield and balked in her desire to get her own way La Divine suspended rehearsals and has commenced work on another play.

There is a rumor afloat that the Faust of Bataille has been pigeonholed to make way for the Faust of Edmond Rostand. Perhaps—but I have my doubts. Rostand's health is in a precarious condition and despite the reports to the contrary I do not believe that his play is yet completed. It would not surprise me if it never were completed. His "Chanticleer" has never yet crowded upon the stage, although rumor had it that it was finished and that Coquelin was to play the part of the cock.

STRIKING CANVASES AT PARIS EXHIBITION.

E. A. Abbey.

PARIS, April 22.—The eighteenth annual exhibition of the Société Nationale des Beaux Arts, at the Grand Palais, is open.

Among the most striking canvases are a sunny landscape in Normandy, with a peasant family in the foreground, by M. Lhermitte, who ranks with Harpignies as a landscape painter, and two remarkably fine panels by E. A. Abbey of New York, who is making a great success of color, after his achievements in black and white. They represent the "The Duke of Gloucester and Lady Anne" (funeral of Henry VI) and "Daughter of King Lear," and are original in stately conception and execution, bold and strong in drawing and color. Lhermitte's picture has already been sold for New York.

Although some of the regular American contributors to this salon, like Walter Gay, are missing, the American section is fairly large, including four characteristic marines of Frederick Harrison, who has not exhibited regularly of late years; a "Portrait of Mme. R.," and three charming Venetian studies by Jules J. Stewart of Philadelphia, and a fine portrait by Mr. Melchers.

The other American exhibitors are: Myron Barlow, J. Bartlett of New York, Adolphe Borie of Philadelphia, Minerva Chapman of Chicago, Letto Crapo-Smith of Detroit, Frederick C. Friesecke, Kalamazoo, Mich.; Mrs. Mary Louise Macmonnies, wife of the sculptor; Ethel Mars of Illinois and Julius Reishoven of Detroit.

Gen. Lee's Humor.

Several years ago, relates the Washington Herald, when the elevator was first put in the Capitol at Richmond, an incident occurred showing the sense of humor of the then Gen. Fitz Lee. The general was of stout build and he wanted to see how the machine would work. He was a close friend of Judge J. B. Witt of the Hustings court.

Judge Witt was holding court the day the elevator was completed and he was called to the telephone by Gov. Lee.

"Sam," said the Governor, "I want to see you for a moment and want you to come to the office at once."

"Certainly, Governor," said the judge, always one of the most accommodating and obliging of public men.

"By the way, Sam, the elevator is finished and you can come up to my office without having to walk up the steps."

Judge Witt got back on the bench and ordered a short recess of the court. Then he hurried over to see the Governor. He made known his presence and he was ushered into the Governor's office.

"Hello, Sam," said the Governor. "Glad to see you. Come up on the elevator?"

"I did," replied the judge.

"That's all right, then," remarked the Governor. "I am just going to dinner and I did not care to try that elevator till I was certain it would hold you. That is all, Sam; thank you?"

Bankrupt Broker Flees to Canada.

Editorial Pot Points

Tomorrow is a day of rest and we guess that everybody is ready for it.

Good-by, Jack! "You done noble," and we are as proud of you as we are fond of you.

No decision has been reached as to who is the handsomest officer. It is really quite impossible to tell.

In making an offer to the Republican convention of Fort, New Jersey hopes that the delegates will take it.

Unless we miss our guess the sweethearts of this port will bring many a sailor back when the voyage is done.

We will still have the sunshine and the water, but the brave ships will soon be but a memory of happy days.

God bless us, but it must have been great fun building and buying and selling railroads on other people's money!

The matter is now very plain even to the dullest mind. The stocks had to be watered in order to float the bonds.

It is the Atlantic fleet, of course, but as far as its feelings are concerned it is the Pacific fleet from the word go.

As far as can be ascertained the decisions of Mr. Jeffries were fair and he still holds his place as a national "idle."

The trouble with Bryan as an idol is that the paint is worn off in so many spots where he ran against the bumps.

We are free to say that we have never seen a more effective body of men for its size than a naval provost guard.

The people who failed to buy railroad stock when they could have had it for nothing will now be the most indignant.

We suppose that if Thomas F. Ryan were to lose his money now he would feel as bad about it as though he had earned it.

We trust that it is by accident and not by agreement that Sam Piles appears as the President's champion in the Senate.

If it be true that 95 per cent. of the stocks of railways are watered, it's a wonder the railways didn't use boats instead of cars.

The sailorman's dream of delight has only begun. Santa Barbara, Santa Cruz, Monterey and San Francisco are still lying in wait.

It has been demonstrated to us that there are few "toughs" in the navy, but we are surer than ever that it is a tough navy to tackle.

The most striking characteristic of our fleet celebration was the "snap" that there was in it. There was something doing every minute.

It seems that Ryan and his Metropolitan Street Railway gang were not gamblers. They had the thing cinched and took no chances whatever.

If an argument should arise over the matter a compromise might be reached by agreeing that Los Angeles and the fleet both had the best time.

It will be a matter of chagrin with every man in America that he is not a stockholder in a railroad since Mr. Ryan has shown that it didn't cost anything.

After the latest utterance of Thomas F. Ryan on the witness stand well may the country exclaim with the Queen of Sheba: "The half has not been told."

In China if a banker loses money they cut his head off, and in Russia if a general loses a battle they put him in the calaboose and encourage him to commit suicide.

Upon looking at the palm of our old friend China's hand our impression is that she will do well to beware of a short, brown man who answers to the name of Togo.

The moment things began to turn Bryan's way again, he immediately reassumed the role of dictator. If he ever becomes President it will be hard to get along with him.

The sailors are to vote on new uniforms, and it is considered to be a foregone conclusion that the men who have bow legs will at least vote for a change in the style of trousers.

If Mr. Roosevelt goes to South Africa he probably will take no chances, although the large colored population of that country may not have heard anything about the Brownsville affair.

There are many ways of securing wealth, but this thing of taking stock in a railroad without paying for it and then selling it for real money appears to us to be the easiest way of all.

Every other day something arises in British politics to make the "mother country" uneasy about the things that she knows are passing through the minds of her big daughters, Australia and Canada.

Notwithstanding that Mr. Ryan has shown how easy it is to make money in a certain way, there will still be lots of foolish, old-fashioned people who will prefer to go right along making it the other way.

THE PUNJAB UPRISING.

It was only last month that we were reading of the pacification of the Punjab trans-frontier tribes, and of the expeditious manner in which Gen. Willcocks had meted out severe punishment to the Zakka Khels, in consequence of their frequent raids into Peshawar and neighboring villages.

The several Afridi Jirgas (delegations,) who had come in to the British camp to interview Col. Roos Keppel, the political officer of the Khyber, had already returned to their homes and everything seemed quiet. So satisfied was the Indian government with the result of the peace negotiations that the Bazar Valley was immediately evacuated and the regiments returned to their quarters in the plains.

If a bomb had burst in the heart of Fort William, Calcutta, the military authorities could not have been more astonished than by the news of the present serious uprising, coming as it does, only a few weeks after peace had been proclaimed. Four previous occupations of the Bazar Valley and neighborhood have taken place, and it now seems as if the entire Punjab frontier is aflame with fanatical tribes, whose mullahs (priests) are inciting them to wage a war of extermination against all infidels.

A number of rumors have lately been circulated, consequent upon the attack on Mr. Crump's servants near Wana. A party was proceeding from Wana to British territory, when Waziri outlaws attacked and killed Crump's munshi (attorney) and bearer, and wounded his sowar (personal guard.) On hearing of the outrage, Mr. Crump seized a number of Waziris, and some 400 of them were forcibly confined in Dera Ismail Khan and other jails. Col. Sir Harold Deane at once summoned a Waziri Jirga to meet him at Tonk, and whether this retaliation upon the Waziris has precipitated the open rebellion is not apparent, but the Mohmands have at least risen and ambushed a party of British.

It is not generally known that several of these trans-frontier tribes are in receipt of blackmail from the Indian government, but such is the case. The government has found by experience that it is cheaper in the long run to pay so many thousand rupees annually to the heads of the tribes, rather than to be constantly sending costly punitive expeditions into the almost inaccessible fastnesses of these warlike and war-loving Afridis.

In the late Zakka Khel campaign the Mohmands remained inactive, while the Malikden Khels, who might have taken umbrage at the occupation of Chora, are as yet quiescent. The other Afridi clans, the Kumba, Kuki and Kamrai Khels, despite the efforts of their mullah, Saiad Akbar, displayed no desire to cross swords with the British, as by so doing they would have forfeited their tribal subsidies and allowances.

That Lord Kitchener has personally taken the field is indicative of the seriousness of the new situation. In the late South African war, it was he whom his sovereign appointed to organize and control the forces in conjunction with Lord Roberts, with what success the world is well acquainted. Lord Kitchener is one of the greatest military strategists of the day, whose career has not only been glorious but marvelous.

If it is true that the Amir of Afghanistan has thrown in his lot with these tribes, the entire Indian army, comprising 750,000 men, must take the field. Weapons of the latest pattern and of excellent workmanship are turned out by the thousands at Kabul, where the Amir has established large gun factories, and these will be used against the British in a manner not at all to their liking, as these hill people are excellent marksmen, and when once thoroughly aroused know no fear.

THE BROKEN-HEARTED DEAD.

There is something infinitely pathetic in the death of brave old Gen. Linevitch, whose heart broke under the ingratitude of his country for which he had faced death on a hundred bloody battlefields. When but little more than a boy he drew his sword in the defense of Russia and held it bared against every foe of the throne from without and within for almost a quarter of a century. But, lion-hearted son of battle though he was, he went down at last like a broken reed before the ungrateful scorn of a people who do not seem to be capable of a true appreciation of unselfishness and merit.

But, in saying that it was the ingratitude of the people that broke the great heart of Linevitch, perhaps the word is too broadly spoken. What is more likely is that he was the victim of a conspiracy on the part of the subtle powers that hedge the Czar's government in with lies and chicanery. It is those same powers that brought Stoessel to disgrace and to prison as a reward for his defense of Port Arthur, which the historians of the future will say was without a parallel in the history of war. If the truth were known the people of Russia probably revere the memory of Gen. Linevitch, and have the warmest affection for Stoessel.

Russia must continue to grow weaker instead of stronger as a nation unless she ceases her practice of heaping ignominy on the men who fight her battles and are defeated through no possible fault of their own. The unprejudiced opinion of the world has never blamed Linevitch for the disasters of the Manchurian campaign. No blame can attach to him. He probably did as well as any commander could have done under the circumstances. What he deserved was honor and not disgrace, his country's gratitude and not its persecution, that sent him broken-hearted to his grave.

HAD NOT THOUGHT OF THAT.

King Haakon of Norway some time ago met in conference a lot of New Lights who wished to talk over the conditions which weigh heavily on the people and how to remedy them. The view of the half-baked was that socialism is the only remedy, and to this end they urged a division of all the property in the country on a per capita basis. The King listened attentively to whatever the visitors had in the way of wisdom to present. Then he said: "But if we do as you wish today, tomorrow there will be a new lot of births in the kingdom and the division of property will again be unfair. Shall we make a new division each day so as to allot property to the people on the per capita basis of the day?"

Then all those wise men became dumb. They looked at the King, then at each other, at the floor, at the ceiling, up the chimney, out of the window, at their shoestrings, and at their eyewinkers. And from nowhere was there a word of response. All heaven, earth and the places beneath the earth and above heaven, all were dumb. There was no response to be had.

At length one of the New Lights had a flash of inspiration and he "gave his sorrow words." His important delivery was to this effect: "Sire, we had not thought of this."

Nuff sed! The assembly arose, made due obesiance to the King, filed out into the old world where all the conditions they came to complain of were still in force and likely to remain so. Duly they replaced their hats over the seat of thought which had failed to fathom the abyss and all departed to struggle along with the world as civilization under God's providence had made it.

"We had not thought of that" will one day be the conclusion of a great multitude of half-baked dreamers of reform.

"THE GIRL I LEFT BEHIND ME."

AU REVOIR, BRAVE BOYS!

Los Angeles has had the fleet and its gallant commanders, the men behind the guns and those before the masts. Yes, and they have had the people of Los Angeles, and they carry all our hearts away with them.

The landlubbers from the Middle West and the fellows who live up among the eagles' nests on the Rockies, where the big horned sheep and other goats are their neighbors, complain that the voyage of the ships around the world will cost $100,000,000. What of it? The question of cost is not the prime one in America. The only question is whether a thing is worth the money. The fleet cost $100,000,000 to build and equip, but there never was money better spent. If it does cost as much more to show our bulldogs to the world—and that is an improbable figure—that money will not have been thrown away. If the country had no navy, a war in a week would cost us more than ten such fleets. As to the voyage of the fleet, there is nothing like ocular demonstration to make an impression. The most intelligent persons read a mass of figures setting forth the statistical position of the navies of the world, but a few of these great fighting machines with the flag at the masthead mean more than all the figures a book would hold. Besides it is in the Orient that a clear conception of America's power should be had. The "brown peril" is not given to reading big newspapers as a regular course at breakfast. These people see battleships flying their own flag, and those flying flags of European powers. They seldom see one of the ships with the Stars and Stripes flying over the guns. The cruise of this great fleet will do more for peace in the Pacific in the next ten years than all the Hague conferences that have yet met.

A week ago 150,000 enthusiastic Americans bade the fleet "all hail" as the ships dropped anchor at San Pedro. This morning a great mass of people will wish the ships "God speed" as they steam northward around Point Duma. Enthusiasm swelled high last Saturday and it will be with heartfelt wishes to see them again that the people watch them disappear behind the Malibu Hills. The people of Southern California will not say adieu to the sailormen. It shall be only "au revoir"—and may the years be few until there shall be a naval station in the Pacific with a fleet of its own, over which New York and Boston will not be able to set up a claim of proprietary rights.

The gallant bearing of the officers of this fleet, their courtesy to the public, and the splendid American manhood of the boys in the forecastle have endeared them to the people here too entirely to permit us to see them depart and say adieu. No! In polyglot tongues Southern Californians will sigh as the ships depart, "au revoir," "auf wiedersehen," "come back, boys." Most of us never saw a warship at close quarters before. In school boys and girls read of John Paul Jones, John Barry, Capt. Lawrence, Farragut and Dewey. But few knew much of the sailormen of the present day or of the difference between "Old Ironsides" and the Connecticut. They know about lashing a sinking American frigate to the apparently victorious English man-of-war and the defiant cry, "I am only beginning to fight." The story of the old Hartford with Farragut in the rigging, sailorman like, calling down, "Damn the torpedoes! Go ahead!" But it is different to see a pack of big modern bulldogs with their 12-inch teeth fit to bite a ton or two, at each bark, out of the rock of Gibraltar itself. The lesson of the week is that the country has today men of the same spirit, of the same intelligence, as had the heroes of old times, a courage to match anything from the encounter between the Bon Homme Richard and the Serapis to the perforating of Admiral Cervera's fleet.

Au revoir, brave boys! Come back to Los Angeles as soon as you can. The welcome here is as inexhaustible, as perennial as are your merits. As you sail in the track of the setting sun, may Providence look down upon you with its choicest favors and send you peaceful seas and favoring winds and tides! May Providence favor your mission of peace and protect you and our common country always from the horrors of war! May your ships at all times come into the "harbor where they would be," carrying peace to all nations of good will! May they brave for many years the breeze—and never be called upon to brave the battle—until worn out by age in their mission of peace to the world they lie at last in some home port when no longer seaworthy!

You who man the ships will see much, as you circle the equator, and you will return to your native land better Americans than ever, if that were possible. May you, too, reach a quiet anchorage when your terms of service are over and return to your homes in all ways improved by your experience abroad. Whole in limb and sound in health, may you all come back to pass your days in peace in your own country, a peace which the country will owe to you.

THE COMMISSION FOLLY.

Some persons in Congress have reached a height of view where things look clear. The people have elected these members of Congress to make such laws as are deemed necessary for the welfare of the country. They are paid for doing this work entrusted to them by their constituents. Let them do their duty and earn their salaries.

The Congresses of the United States have been making laws for some 130 years; methods of how to frame good laws have been worked out in a practical manner. The members of the Senate and those of the House of Representatives are divided into committees which cover about all the subjects likely to come before Congress. There are committees on banking, on commerce, on ways and means (tariff schedules) and what not.

These committees always welcome any citizen or any proper organization wishing to lay facts before them as to conditions to guide the law-making body. The committees invite information and set apart times and places where hearings are given to all who wish to speak. There is no unreasonable limit set to the scope of these hearings, and thus every individual and every association has an opportunity to place its interests before the proper committee and thus before Congress.

There has grown up in these days of New-Light fads a mania for special commissions to do this work. It has come to pass that we are asked to regard Congress as a collection of imbeciles, incompetent to do their duties, indisposed to observe their oath, or too indolent to work. So the cry has been raised to call in the aid of the special commissions made up of men who do not command confidence enough at home to rise to be dog catchers, or too selfish to devote an hour to public affairs, or worse still, persons with special interests to look after in making laws, or worst of all, cranks better fitted to ornament a cell in a "bug house" than a seat in Congress. These special commissions cost large sums of money for doing what members of Congress are paid for doing. They are unwieldy in being too numerous and reach no end because they are composed of headstrong, biased persons all intent on getting a fad or a special privilege into the statutes.

Will any one point out in what way a committee composed of persons inexperienced in lawmaking, incapable of securing the confidence of their neighbors so as to get elected to office, or too intent on their own business to stand for office, is likely to frame better laws than the members of Congress? What better means have these committees for securing information than the House or Senate committees? What guarantee is there that those who compose these committees will be less subject to being deceived or otherwise misled than the Senators and Representatives already sent up by the people?

Congress is new every two years. If those whom we sent to Congress two years ago are proving incompetent or seem crooked or indolent, let us get better men the next time, that's all!

AN OBJECT LESSON.

It is not fair to make a direct comparison between the United States and China. But there are certain elements in the comparison which are illuminating. China is an immense empire, of great wealth and teeming with population. China is really the most peaceable nation in the world. But the people failed to realize the best way to make peace a certainty for all time.

Six Japanese warships at one of the Chinese ports are throwing the whole empire into spasms. If China had sixteen battleships similar to those now on the California coast the Flowery Kingdom would not fade away and become pale in the presence of these Japanese vessels.

Supposing a fleet of hostile vessels had made their appearance at our gate two months ago, what a different sensation we would have experienced from that of the past week! Let a score of hostile ships come here tomorrow, if such a thing could be, and how comfortably we would take the event!

China forgot all this and is now realizing the mistake she made. The way to keep at peace is to be ready to fight for it at a moment's warning. And there is no other way of making peace a certainty. In case of war with any power the issue would never be in doubt for us. Our people are not like the Chinese. We have a government worth fighting for and a manhood capable of fighting. The ten years' war which finally laid ancient Troy low could not conquer the United States. But a war for which a country is unprepared must cost vastly more in the end than would a preparation which would have made the war impossible.

It is estimated that the cost of educating an American heiress is $200,000. But foreign noblemen would be willing to take them if they didn't know "b" from a bull's foot.

We are authorized to state that the report that Alton B. Parker will second the nomination of Bryan at Denver has been greatly exaggerated.

Little Pitchers: Mamma asked papa to do it, and papa said there so much for, and papa said if you had an ax to grind.—[Baltimore American.

Dispelled.

Proprietor: I never in my life touched a drop as I did this morning. Every eye was on me: No wonder. When you took your gloves remained on the top of your head.—[Pathfinder.

Infant Terrible.

Elderly Beau (to middle-aged youth who is getting bald prematurely, for some reason or other): Why my hair comes out.

Explains His Vow.

Perkins: How's Henpeck getting on since his marriage? He used to vow that no woman should get ahead of him.

Jackson: Oh, he's still leading, I guess, but he's behind—holding the reins.—[Tit-Bits.

Lack of Medical Knowledge.

Professor: Now, if you were called to the bedside of a man taken suddenly with a fit, and you were in doubt concerning his condition, what do you consider would be the best book to consult in regard to the case?

Medical Students (in chorus): Boss's check.

Reasons Did Not Apply.

Sunday-school Teacher: Why, Willie, don't you sing again? Didn't last Sunday's lesson teach you that when you are struck on one cheek you are to turn the other to the striker?

Willie: Yes'm; but he hit me on the bat, and I only got one.—[The Pathfinder.

I Will.

I will start anew this morning with a lighter tread;
I will cease to stand complaining of my neighbor's greed;
I will cease to sit repining while my cup o'erflows;
I will waste no moment whining as my fellows all know no fear.

I will look sometimes about me for a word of merit praise;
I will search for hidden beauty in the grumbler's gaze;
I will try to find contentment in the lowliest tread,
I will cease to have resentment when my loves ahead.

I will not deny his merit, for his own;
I will try to see the beauty spread before me as I shine—
I will cease to preach your duty till I've learned with mine.

HOROSCOPE

Saturday, April 25.

116th day of the year, with the moon in perigee.

Of the very uncertain days of the duration of these twenty-four hours. Ventures and intricate business may be postponed for some days to affect them unfavorably. Lawyers, accountants, shop assistants and artificers will do their best work in this period.

A favorable sign is over the sun; for any purpose. Hire new help or new employés for office or confidence.

A woman whose birthdate this is will be with delightful news before the week is out. If unmarried she will be wedded.

Lending money to strangers will be unwise. A man with this birthdate has to threaten his position if he takes part.

A girl born today will love much.

A boy born today will be sharp, but stern moral training.

A delightful reception at the Ebell Clubhouse last evening closed the fifth annual convention of the California Grand Chapter of the P.E.O. New and retiring officers, and members of the Westlake Chapter formed the receiving line.

The officers elected yesterday afternoon and installed with due ceremony include Miss Marie Dickson of Re-

Miss Dickson followed Mrs. Parmele with a discussion of "The Duty and Privileges of California in this benevolent educational work." The afternoon session was filled with business reports, election of officers and music.

MUSIC AND THE STAGE.

Among the scheduled appearances is that of Bishop Conaty, who will make the opening address. Seven little girls from the Settlement will sing and dance in costume. Miss Bertha L. Corbett will give a talk, illustrating her stories with drawings of the sunbonnet babies. Miss Margaret Goetz will sing. Albert Treloar will give an acrobatic act, with Adna Tempest, Robert Mitchell will give a monologue, there will be a scene from the comic opera "Lady Madcap," there will be a one-act farce, and the last number, as arranged, will be a series of comic pictures—in life—representing "The Adventures of Little Jimmy."

Especial interest is being taken in the appearance of Mme. Modjeska, who will play "The Spark," a one-act drama translated from the French by her husband, Count Bozenta. She will be assisted by May Catherine Smith and James C. Hanley.

A pair of Morosco's phoney sailors was almost shanghaied last night. A quartette, in nautical attire, has been used to divert the bill during the past week, leaving the theater by the front entrance after the "turn," and returning to the dressing-rooms through the regular stage door. As the four stepped out on the sidewalk last night an officer of the shore patrol collared two of them, and dragged them, protesting, toward the Pacific Electric building. They yelled, and the theater office force turned out en masse. But they were required to present considerable evidence before a release was effected.

Reginald Bland, son of a well-known Pasadena family, himself a resident of San Diego for several years past, is to give a violin recital at the Pasadena Shakespeare Clubhouse on Monday evening. This is practically Mr. Bland's introduction to the local musical field, but he comes well equipped in technique and possessing genuine artistic resource.

Mr. Bland will be assisted by Nuncie Sabini Bittman, contralto, and by Mary L. O'Donoughue, accompanist. His part of the programme will include the Handel Sonata in A major, the Mendelssohn concerto in E minor, a variety of small numbers by Sarasate, Tschaikowsky, D'Ambrosio and Ilynsky, and the Vieuxtemps Ballade et Polonaise.

The dramatic section of the Turnverein Germania will close its season tomorrow evening with a rendition of "Old Heidelberg." Leading parts will be taken by G. A. Barth, C. Rohde, Ernst Rudolph, Carl Falkenstein and Crescentia Renee. A number of leading vocalists from the singing society will form the student chorus.

Accompaniments of a Funeral.

"I have heard a lot of stories about singular happenings in New York," said one who has lived in the metropolis many years, "but nothing more singular than my experience at a funeral last week.

"It was in a big flat-house. After the service, I heard a scream in an adjoining apartment. I learned later that a nervous woman was having a tooth pulled. That was a good mix-up for one floor.

"As we passed to the floor below I heard a woman singing. I was informed that it was her hour for taking a music lesson.

"Across the hall an afternoon reception was under full swing. The invited guests were arriving.

THE PUBLIC SERVICE

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

A majority of the members of the Council have expressed themselves as opposed to granting a franchise for a railroad in the river bed and the application of the Los Angeles-Wilmington company will be rejected.

The contract between the city and the Southern Pacific for carrying aqueduct freight was executed yesterday; the railroad agrees to build the first twenty-three miles of the Owens Valley line within sixty days.

Chairman Wren of the Supply Committee reported yesterday that furniture men have protested to him against accepting bids for supplies from the Pease Furniture Company; they allege that President Pease of the Council is interested indirectly in this corporation.

Census Director Farmer says that his canvassers found 10,000 families away at the beach to see the fleet when they called this week to take the school census.

After witnesses had testified in favor of, and against J. W. Belding, yesterday, in Miss Ruby Casselman's trial on the charge of forgery, before Judge Smith, counsel began their arguments. Today the case will go to the jury.

Mrs. Marie A. Pollock was granted a divorce from Frank V. Pollock by Judge James, yesterday, on the ground of cruelty.

Judge Wilbur heard evidence, yesterday, in habeas-corpus proceedings brought by Mrs. Bertha Brinckmann against the Children's Home Society to secure the custody of her son.

Judge Houser yesterday overruled the demurrer of the Metropolitan Contracting Company to the answer filed by the City of Los Angeles in a suit brought by the company to collect $4083. The decision means the saving of thousands in the sprinkling of the streets.

AT THE CITY HALL.

NO RAILROAD IN RIVER BED.

COUNCIL TO REJECT FRANCHISE APPLICATION.

Members Say That no Provision Is Made to Guarantee Lower Freight Rates or to Provide Revenue for the City—Applicants May Ask for Lease Instead.

The river bed franchise ordinance is destined for the files in the basement of the City Clerk's office. A majority of the Councilmen have discussed the application for a railroad in the river bed, and they have agreed among themselves to return it from the committee of the whole to the Council with an unfavorable report attached.

According to the opinions expressed by the legislators the application is too indefinite on the points of most interest to the city. They say that there is no assurance that the freight rates over this line will be any lower than those over the existing lines; neither is there any provision by which the city will receive an income from the right-of-way which the applicant desired to use for his roadbed.

Councilman Dromgold says he is not opposed to granting a franchise for a railroad in the river bed if the ordinance making the grant can be drawn so that the road will be used as common trackage by other lines, and that provision is made for lower freight rates and a stated income to the city.

In the franchise application there is no provision made for a municipal revenue from the railroad which is to run wholly on city property. The argument is advanced that it would be much more to the interest of the city to grant a franchise for an electric line. Under the State law the electric line would be required to pay 2 per cent. annually of the gross revenue from the operation of the road to the city after the first five years. If the road should be used as a belt electric line it would bring to the city a handsome revenue annually.

Before any official action is taken on the franchise application there will be an open committee meeting at which the officials of the Los Angeles and Wilmington Railroad will be asked to make definite statements as to just what they are willing to pay for the franchise, and who is going to operate the road in case the franchise is granted. The Councilmen agree that the application has been made by the railroad in good faith, and that it is intended to provide a belt line for general transportation of freight to and from the free harbor at Wilmington.

But they add that the company has offered the city no inducement to grant the franchise. They say that this way of entrance to the heart of the city along the banks of the river is a valuable asset both to the city government and to the business community. They say that there is no assurance at the present time that the applicants would not sell out to the Santa Fé, or, worse, to the Southern Pacific. The result of this, they say, would be to add to the monopoly now held by these companies over freight transportation to and from San Pedro.

Some of the legislators who are friendly to the applicants have suggested that that the application should be so amended as to provide for a lease in place of for a franchise. They say that, under proper restrictions they would not be averse to leasing a part of the river bed for railway purposes.

Politics is playing a part in the consideration of the river-bed franchise. Councilmen regarded as friendly to the Harriman interests have worked industriously to give color to the rumor that the application comes indirectly from the Santa Fé Railroad. They say it is made just as the Santa Fé made its application for its rights of way into San Francisco. In that case the company operated under the cover of a local business organization.

RUSHING AQUEDUCT RAILWAY.

FREIGHT CONTRACT EXECUTED.

The contract between the city and the Southern Pacific Company for carrying freight into the Owens Valley was formally executed yesterday. It is signed by Vice-President Calvin of the Southern Pacific Company and by President Hubbard of the Board of Public Works.

The Southern Pacific Company is bound by a $100,000 bond to build a railroad from Mojave to within two miles of Lone Pine and to carry freight for the aqueduct in accordance to a freight schedule, which is made a part of the contract. The average rate is about 4½ cents per ton mile over the new railroad. The engineers estimate that the amount transported will be equal to 20,000,000 ton miles. In order to make certain that the first section of the road to Jawbone Cañon is finished within sixty days, the Southern Pcific graders have been working quietly but industriously on the roadbed for several weeks. The terms of the contract require that the company shall have the line finished to carry freight twenty-three miles north of Mojave by June 22.

By that date contracts will be let for constructing the Jawbone section of the aqueduct by private contract, the city furnishing the material. With the exception of the Elizabeth Lake tunnel, the Jawbone section represents the most difficult construction work on the aqueduct. It was intended originally to construct this by direct labor without letting a contract, but the Board of Public Works has decided that this can be done best by contract, as the engineers and their assistants will have plenty to do elsewhere.

TOO MANY "RETURNS."

BAD WEEK FOR CENSUS.

Bert Farmer, census director, said last night that his canvassers have found more than 10,000 families "absent for the day" while they have been trying to take their school census this week.

"There are very few vacant houses reported," said Mr. Farmer. "The reports show that the houses are occupied, but that no one was at home when the canvasser called. This is due, of course, to the flocking to the beaches to see the warships. It will be necessary to make a second call at each of these places to complete the census. This year has been the worst to find people at home we have ever had, worse than the week of the San Francisco earthquake."

The State law requires that the school census shall be taken each year between April 15 and May 1. In order to cover the city within the time limit it was necessary for Mr. Farmer to send his field men out during the whole of "fleet" week."

FURNITURE MEN PROTEST.

ALLEGE CHARTER VIOLATION.

Chairman Wren of the Supply Committee announced at yesterday morning's session of that body that protest has been made to him by officials of the Pacific Furniture Company that the charter is violated whenever an order for supplies is placed with the Pease Furniture Company.

"The charter provides that no city official shall be interested either directly or indirectly in furnishing any supplies to the city," said Mr. Wren, "these furniture dealers allege that Mr. Pease is interested indirectly in the Pease Furniture Company, and that this invalidates any bid made by that company for furnishing municipal supplies."

Mr. Wren added that he has received an assurance from Mr. Pease that he is not interested financially in the company, but that he owns a large interest in the building in which the company is located.

Assistant City Attorney Wilson said that the fact that Mr. Pease owns the building would not invalidate a bid of the occupant. He added that if Mr. Pease is owner of stock in the company this would invalidate its bid.

Wren said that complaint has been made about accepting bids for supplies from the Harper-Reynolds Hardware Company on the contention that Mayor Harper is interested indirectly in that corporation.

After a short discussion the committee instructed the City Attorney to prepare and present a form of affidavit setting forth that the affiant is not interested in any company selling supplies to the city. President Pease and Mayor Harper will be asked to sign these affidavits.

Mr. Wren said that he is satisfied that neither Pease nor Harper hold stock in the companies bearing their names, but he desires these affidavits to silence complaints made by disappointed bidders.

Gamewell Investigation.

SHOCKING STORY OF BRUTALITY.

MRS. POLLOCK GETS DECREE ON GROUND OF CRUELTY.

Accuses Former Husband of Threats to Kill, Choking Her and Dragging Her About Until Her Arms Were Bruised and Bleeding. Defendant not in Court.

"My husband cared for my money, not me," Mrs. Marie Pollock told Judge James, yesterday, in recounting her marital experience with Frank V. Pollock. She was granted a divorce on the ground of cruelty.

The plaintiff came to court attended by a group of fashionably-dressed friends and her 6-year-old daughter, for whose custody the father and mother waged a legal battle, some months ago, the latter winning. Mrs. Pollock, who is an Englishwoman, said:

"My life was unhappy from the time of my marriage to Mr. Pollock in England, in 1901. He cared only for my money, for I inherited $56,000 from my mother. Finally in August, 1907, he became angry with me one night at my Westgate house, and said he was going to kill me. He choked me and the finger marks remained on my throat for weeks. He dragged me about the room until my arms were bruised and bleeding. I was obliged to spend two days in bed and he refused my friends admittance to the house.

"I then announced that I was going to Las Encinas Sanatorium. He pretended to weep. I thought he loved me, so I agreed finally to sign over to him my income for two years, but he slipped into the papers a clause that gave him my entire fortune.

"After I had been in the sanatorium for a short time, he visited me and treated me brutally. I told him I would send for my brother from England to protect me. He swore at me, told me I was unfit to have the custody of my child, and said he would get himself appointed my guardian. He then filed a guardianship petition.

"My husband took my child away from me, and hid the little one with a cousin on an Orange county ranch. I sent detectives to find her and when I had discovered her whereabouts, I applied to Judge Monroe for her custody.

"My husband has since given back to me my fortune, and now I wish a divorce from him, for he does not love me."

Mrs. Rose Riggles, Mrs. Annie C. Young, Mrs. A. Safford and Miss Mabel Eagan corroborated parts of Mrs. Pollock's story, and said that she had always been a good mother to her child.

Pollock was not present at the proceedings.

CASSELMAN CASE.

GOES TO JURY TODAY.

A large crowd filled Judge Smith's courtroom yesterday and listened intently all day to arguments by Deputy District-Attorney John C. North, for the people, and Attorney E. Judson Brown, for the defense, in the case of Miss Ruby Casselman, who is charged with forgery. District-Attorney Fredericks will make the closing argument for the people, this morning.

Deputy District-Attorney North laid especial emphasis upon the confession of guilt that President Elliot, of the First National Bank, said the defendant made to him.

Attorney Brown reviewed the evidence tending to fix the forgeries on J. W. Belding, and Miss Mabel Wilson. When he appealed to the jury not to make Miss Casselman a victim of the transgressions of others, that young woman was deeply affected and wept.

At the opening of court, T. R. Davis, A. C. David, F. D. McKee, and C. K. Wilson were called for the defense and testified that J. W. Belding's reputation is bad. Under cross-examination, David admitted that he has sent violets regularly to Miss Casselman since she has been in prison and that he wrote a letter of 100 pages to the District Attorney asserting that she has been hypnotized.

Miss Blanche McKeagon, Miss Margaret Olsen, T. L. Palmer, R. H. Morris, A. Van Cleeve, and L. A. Mathews testified, for the prosecution, that Mr. Belding's reputation is good.

COURT UNDECIDED.

MOTHER FIGHTING FOR SON.

The right of authorities of a benevolent institution to refuse information about the whereabouts of children placed with them for adoption was raised yesterday in Judge Wilbur's court in habeas-corpus proceedings brought by Mrs. Bertha Brinckmann against the Children's Home Society to secure the custody of her 8-year-old son, Albert.

Judge Wilbur stated that the point is of such importance that he desires to consult authorities before giving a decision and he continued the hearing until Friday.

Mrs. Brinckmann informed the court that last September she placed her son with the society for adoption, as she was sick and unable to care for him. In January, 1907, she had placed the boy with the society, but later took him back to live with her again. She admitted that she had written to the officials asking them to take the boy back in September, and that when they finally consented, she agreed to resign her rights over the lad.

But a short time ago, Mrs. Brinckmann found friends who agreed to care for her son. She demanded him of the society, but it refused to surrender him.

Rev. O. V. Rice, superintendent of the Children's Home Society, explained to Judge Wilbur that he had no wish to treat Mrs. Brinckmann unfairly but that the rights of others must also be considered.

CITY SAVED THOUSANDS.

SPRINKLING SUIT SETTLED.

In overruling a demurrer of the Metropolitan Contracting Company to an answer filed by the city of Los Angeles, Judge Houser yesterday interpreted in favor of the city a disputed contract under which the street sprinkling is done. The decision involves a saving of many thousands of dollars.

In 1905 the city made a four-year contract with McGuire Brothers to furnish teams and appliances for sprinkling. In November, 1906, the city notified the Metropolitan Contracting Company, to whom the contract had been assigned, that thereafter only eighty teams would be used instead of 100.

The plaintiff asserted that, by the terms of their contract, the city is compelled to use at least 100 teams and it sought to collect $4083.

The city's rights to use and pay for only the number of teams necessary for street sprinkling was set up in the answer to the suit and sustained.

COURTHOUSE NOTES.

BREVITIES MISCELLANEOUS.

GETS THOUSANDS. Judge Houser yesterday awarded Mrs. Eunice Ball $4141 damages in her $13,675 damage suit against the Los Angeles Railroad Company for injuries sustained by her on February 9, 1907. She was lifted from an automobile, when it passed under a sagging wire. Her nose was nearly torn from her face, and other serious injuries were inflicted.

TREE MAKES TROUBLE. The Pacific Light and Power Company yesterday filed in the Superior Court a suit against John Snoddy to recover $600 damages, alleged to be due because the defendant, in felling a tree on November 5, broke a power transmission wire.

ACCOUNTING. Mrs. Carola Martius yesterday filed in the Superior Court a suit for an accounting against Mr. and Mrs. M. Phillips, alleged to be her partners in a rooming-house at No. 333 North Figueroa street.

ROOMING-HOUSE DISPUTE. Mrs. J. T. Clews and L. B. Spatebolts yesterday filed in the Superior Court an injunction suit against F. Downing to secure possession of the Boston rooming-house, at No. 304½ South Los Angeles street, which, they say, they traded to him on February 11 for ten lots in the Villamar tract on his false representation that he owned them. They say he has put a mortgage on the rooming-house and is trying to sell it below value.

ALL DISMISSED. On Deputy District-Atty. G. Ray Horton's motion, Judge Conrey yesterday dismissed all remaining grand jury indictments against persons accused of illegal registration at Ocean Park. The defendants were Dennett Childs, W. F. Winter, Edward R. Maier, Frank Case, W. H. Hazzard, and E. J. Shelley.

PAROLED. Gerald F. Muir was yesterday placed on probation for three years by Judge Wilbur. He pleaded guilty to passing a worthless $10 check, but as that was his first offense, he was given a chance to reform, on his promise to cease drinking.

GETS THREE YEARS. R. Delgado, convicted of the larceny of a watch and chain from F. Hardaker on March 13, was yesterday sentenced by Judge Wilbur to three years in San Quentin.

BIGAMIST. John Inmon, a negro, yesterday pleaded guilty to a bigamy charge. Sentence was suspended until May 1, that his past may be investigated.

ELECTION CASE. Judge Conrey yesterday sustained defendants' demurrers in the suit brought by W. R. McConnell against Abbot Kinney, J. F. Altamarino, and others, to have their names struck from the great register for alleged illegal registration in Ocean Park.

LARGER FIRM. The law firm of Harris & Harris has been enlarged by the addition to its membership of Maurice M. Armstrong and Glen Behymer, young men of ability and promise who, with the Harris brothers, make a strong personnel.

WANT THEIR MONEY. About forty Russian laborers were in Department 7, yesterday, when Attorney F. E. Davis swore that he held no money belonging to Capt. Alexander Bianchi, who fled the country some weeks ago after having issued worthless checks to the laborers for railroad construction work. Alexander Alexandroff has filed suit against Bianchi to collect wages, and Bianchi's supposed deposit with Davis was attached.

HOTEL WENTWORTH. Henry S. McKee, assignee of the Wentworth Hotel Company, has notified creditors that on May 1 he will file in the Superior Court a petition to borrow $30,000 for the maintenance of the hotel. The indebtedness of the company consists of $150,000 on mechanics' liens, and about $300,000 of unsecured claims, of which $150,000 is due on furnishings.

YACHT PARTY SPOILED.

Carson Boat, Which Was to Follow Fleet North, Libeled by San Pedro Hardware Concern.

Plans for a cruise to Santa Barbara and San Francisco in the wake of the fleet, by members of the wealthy Carson family of this city, were disarranged yesterday. A libel was filed in the Federal court on their yacht, the Anita D., by a hardware concern of San Pedro, and Chief Deputy United States Marshal Sittel attached the boat. An attorney tried to arrange for a bond so that the Carson yacht might leave last night, but he was unable to secure a release of the attachment before the court closed for the day.

The attorney stated that the owners of the Anita D. disputed the amount of the bill presented by the Marine Hardware Company of San Pedro. It asserts about $1200 is due for yacht fittings, and when it was learned that the boat was to follow the fleet to Santa Barbara, the creditor evidently thought it a good time to force payment. G. W. Carson, G. H. Carson, D. J. Carson, E. Carson and P. J. Watson are named as defendants in the libel.

Frank A. Munsey
ON THE Business and Political Situation

IN the May Number of Munsey's Magazine, Mr. Munsey has an article on the panic and the causes that brought it about. He says some things and says them straight from the shoulder. He hands it out good and hard to Wall Street and to the Grand Dukes who have been running things in this country with a high hand—running them as the Grand Dukes of Russia have run things over there. The title of the article is—

There isn't money enough in the world today to do the world's work

Mr. Munsey takes emphatic issue with Wall Street and the followers of Wall Street who hold the President responsible for the panic. It is not his purpose in the discussion to acquit Mr. Roosevelt of blame, but rather to get at the facts, as the facts are necessary to intelligent progress in the recovery of our business activities.

"If these facts," Mr. Munsey says, "acquit the President, he is, as a matter of common honesty, entitled to the acquittal." What we want to know, and should know, is the truth. And the basic purpose with Mr. Munsey has been to lay bare the truth.

Mr. Munsey in this article clears away a vast amount of the distorted and awfully befogged ideas about this financial crash. The article is clear, convincing, forceful. It is not a dry, ponderous handling of the subject, but is swift and dramatic in expression, with all the sweep and picturesqueness of a novel. You cannot afford to miss reading it. No one who has any interest in the vital things of the day can afford to miss reading it.

Inquiry at the local office of the Jo nis Consolidated Mining Compa elicits the statement from the sec tary that the rumors of an over-i of the capital stock under the Doub ray management has no foundati in fact. The issue has been check one in an informal manner, and t books are now in the hands of speci appointed auditors for a professio opinion. At the last meeting held change in management it was known that there was an under-issu of 200 shares in favor of Doubleda and it is believed that there has be no change since that time.

As far as the financial status of th company's affairs is concerned, the little likelihood of any shortage. T and other improvements at the mine have cost considerably more tha the amount which Doubleday has re ceived for them since the release the $25,000 note, and the company therefore, amply protected. Robe Atkinson, secretary, is authority fo the statement that, in any event, there is no suspicion of shortage at this time. The company owes nothing bu a few odd bills and the current expense at the mine.

President Beau de Zart is makin a thorough examination of the min and notified the local office that a fin body of ore has been uncovered in th north drift from the 700-foot level. Assaying has also revealed excelle ore on the 400 and 500-foot levels. Th low-grade ore with which the bins were filled before Doubleday retired from the management is now being ru through the mill, and is being mixed with better grade in order to average it up to a higher value. When this material has been cleaned up, stoping will be commenced at the points which show the best ore.

Important Strike.

The Goldfield-Silver Peak Mining Company, a local concern, operating near Silver Peak, Nev., has just received word from its mine superintendent that a body of free-milling ore has been uncovered 100 feet south of the main shaft. Assays have run as high as $1015 to the ton. In cross-cutting at the 200-foot level a blind lead was encountered sixteen feet in width and averaging $17.85 to the ton. The company is now developing its water supply preparatory to the erection of a reduction plant. The property is in the same locality as the Pittsburgh-Silver Peak mine which is now operating the largest milling plant in the State of Nevada, and the Valcalde Mining Company, which is running successfully with ten stamps. The directors of the Goldfield-Silver Peak Company are M. J. Conroy, J. J. Ramsey, C. R. Miller, G. S. Reynolds, E. W. Gillett, T. C. Peck and W. G. McClintock, all of Los Angeles. Work at the mine is in charge of Wm. M. Hennessey, one of the best-known mining men in the West, the discoverer of the Slocan silver-lead district in British Columbia and subsequently part owner of the Noble Five and other well-known mines of that district.

From Pioche.

E. F. Freudenthal, the mine operator of Pioche, Nev., and general manager of the Lyndon Mines Company, arrived in Los Angeles recently. He has just returned from a business trip to Chicago and stopped off at Pioche on his way to Los Angeles. He confirmed the report, exclusively published in The Times a few days ago, of the new strike on the flats just outside the limits of Pioche. The flats for miles have been staked out and every resident of Pioche is doing location work. The original strike was made by prospectors who organized the Nevada-Des Moines Company, and at a depth of 410 feet, ore which assays as high as $1000 in gold and 300 ounces of silver to the ton, was taken out. The Pioche-Penson, Ray Consolidated then located an immense fissure many feet wide and drilled down the center of it. At 329 feet ore was struck and the drill was still in rich ore at 336 feet, showing a solid body of ore at least seven feet. Freudenthal took with him to the Lyndon mines a force of men, and will commence shipping at once. While in Los Angeles he purchased a large amount of machinery and supplies for the property, which will be worked extensively.

BONNIE CLARE WILL RESUME.

Court Is Asked to Dismiss Bankruptcy Proceedings.

Goldfield-Silver Peak Hits an Important Strike.

A petition was filed in the Federal Court yesterday by the creditors of the Bonnie Clare Mining and Milling Company, asking for the dismissal of the bankruptcy proceedings which were instituted by friendly creditors last January. The petition states that all of the creditors of the company have been settled with by a few of the principal stockholders, who now ask that the company be declared not a bankrupt.

Work will be resumed at once on a large scale on high-grade ore which lies up on the lower levels of the Jumper and Corbett claims. The company expects to sink to the thousand-foot level on each claim, and drift on the ore at each fifty feet. This will take some time, and until it is decided arrangements have been made to run the mill on Goldfield ore.

In the meantime, improvements will be made in the plant by adding to the milling capacity and installing a slime plant and other improvements. Preparations will be made to transport the ore from the mine to the mill by aerial tram and traction engines, thereby greatly reducing the cost. When milling is started again, it will be with plenty of high-grade ore blocked out and with a good profit in sight.

The company has the necessary funds in sight for all improvements contemplated, and will have one of the most and most successful mining engineers in the country in full charge.

Inquiry at the local office of the Johnnie Consolidated Mining Company for the statement from the secretary that the rumors of an over-issue of the capital stock under the Doubleday management has no foundation in fact. The issue has been checked over in an informal manner, and the books are now in the hands of specially selected auditors for a professional overhauling. At the last meeting before the change in management it was decided that there was an under-issue of 100,000 shares in favor of Doubleday, and it is believed that there has been no change since that time.

So far as the financial status of the company's affairs is concerned, there is no likelihood of any shortage. Rare Specimen.

One of the rarest mineral specimens ever seen in this city has recently been brought from a point twenty miles east of Parker, Ariz., and is now in the possession of Rol King at the Hollenbeck Hotel. The property from which it was taken is owned by a man named Osborne, well known in that section of the desert, and who has held claims there for nine years. The specimen is carbonized almost to the appearance of coke with fine veins of a white metal traversing it in all directions. In places beautiful crystals of all colors adhere to it. It is extremely heavy, and is said to assay well in gold and copper. While opinions as to its classification differ very materially, it is generally supposed to be a fine example of native corundum in association with the metals mentioned. Many chemists and experts in mineralogy have examined it, with opinions running through the entire list of rare and common forms of mineralization.

More Ratification.

A special meeting of the stockholders of the Clark Copper Company has been called for Monday next at Phoenix, Ariz., to ratify the matters acted upon at the several meetings held here during the past three months, and which led up to the settlement between the minority and majority interests. The Arizona meeting will place all details of the transactions in complete legal shape, and will finally close an incident which caused much comment in this city after the explosion of the Greenwater boom.

Movements of Mining Men.

U. M. Thomas, director of the Johnnie Consolidated Mining Company, will leave for the mine early next week to join President Beau de Zart in a thorough examination of all details of the mine and plant.

Lane C. Gilliam of the firm of Thompson & Gilliam, mining engineers, is expected in the city this afternoon from the Boca del Cobre mine near Torreon, Mex., where he has been in charge of operations since last May.

L. W. Powell, managing director of the great Calumet and Arizona mines near Phoenix, Ariz., is on a short visit to his family in this city. The properties are now running, practically, upon a normal basis.

John A. Finch of the firm of Finch & Campbell, among the largest operators in the Northwest, returned to the North on Tuesday, after spending the winter in Altadena. He is heavily interested in the Palm Borate Company, owning valuable propery in the borax fields in the vicinity of Daggett. The control of the capital stock of the company is now under option to an English syndicate.

I-YELL I-YELL.

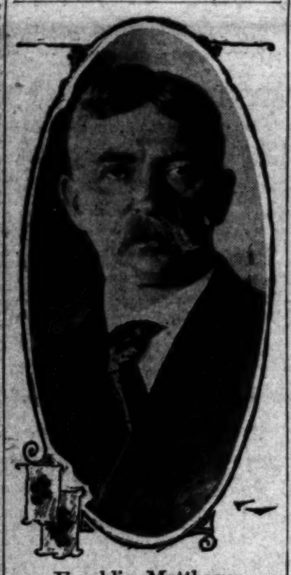
CORNELL DINES OLD COMRADE.

CORRESPONDENT MATTHEWS AT LOCAL COLLEGE CLUB.

Newspaper Man from the Louisiana Greets Classmates at Angelus Banquet, and Gives Some Very Pertinent Reminiscences of His Long Trip Around.

Franklin Matthews, representative of the New York Sun and the Los Angeles Times, aboard the battleship fleet, on its voyage around the world, was entertained with a dinner last night at the Angelus by the Cornell Club. Mr. Matthews is a member of the class of '83, and two or three members of the local organization were his classmates.

Executives of the meeting were: President Seward A. Simons and Secretary Paul Overton. The dinner was informal, a good menu and good-fellowship being alike enjoyed.



Franklin Matthews.

Following coffee, and with the cigars, impromptu little speeches were in order, and of especial interest was Mr. Matthews's conversational narrative of his life abroad the battleships and his impressions of our sailors during this cruise.

"The boys are going around the world," said Mr. Matthews, "and I believe that when we reach the end of the run there will be found against us fewer desertions, fewer bad marks of any kind, than on any similar cruise ever undertaken.

"There is good stock in this fleet, most of them are wholesome, honest boys off the farm—Middle—West fellows—out to see the world and incidentally to work their way.

"We turned 4000 of them loose in Rio Janeiro one Sunday, and that following incipient riot on shore. Such an immense shore leave was unprecedented, but there was scarcely a departure from the most perfect order. I think 200 fellows went from our ship, and the only disaster was a single case of intoxication. Now I'd like to see what would happen in a South American town—or any other town—if you'd turn 4000 college boys loose within its precincts.

"What they are working for is speedy action. As guns are built today, a battleship in full action would exhaust her complete supply of ammunition within an hour. Within forty-five minutes she would be practically useless. The art of battle, therefore, is in concentration of fire; in hitting the other fellow first. And I tell you these boys love their work. I have seen them in the gray dawn of early morning, as early as they could see, busily making targets, or repairing them. I tell you, they love their ships, they love their flag, and they are as sound, honest citizens as you can find in the world.

"Of course there are secrets on a ship as far as the public-at-large is concerned, but there are few secrets to any on board. And the greatest secret of all, the most carefully guarded, is the secret of fire control. I know just what that means on my vessel, but like other newspaper men on the fleet, I am pledged to silence; I shall never tell. They put us on our honor.

"There was some opposition to our departure with the fleet, but since the great stirring up of patriotic sentiment in which we have been instrumental, I think the navy has found out that it pays to annex the organs of public opinion.

"For another thing, this trip has clinched the Monroe doctrine forever. When our sixteen ships entered the Bay of Valparaiso in a vast crescent, just 400 yards apart and filling the bay from end to end, the Chilean opposition to the Monroe doctrine went up in smoke, and as we dropped anchor they were ours, body and soul."

Wanted a Treat for His Wife.

Dr. George Harvey, a local veterinary physician, was called to a stable not long ago to minister to a horse that was down with colic.

It was a serious case, and the doctor saw that the only way to save the horse would be to insert a tube into its side and allow the gas on its stomach to escape.

Just because he thought it would startle the owner of his horse, Harvey struck a match and lighted the gas at the end of the tube. The man didn't say much at the time, but he was properly impressed. He had never heard of using a horse for an illuminating plant.

The next day when Dr. Harvey came around to see how the horse was getting along—it was all over the colic, then—the owner tapped him on the shoulder.

"My wife was away yesterday," he said, "but she's home now. Just light up the horse again, will you? I want her to see it."—[Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Freaks of Disease.

No medical man needs to be told that even disease has its freaks, and that recovery has occasionally been brought about by means inexplicably trivial. One of the most remarkable of these unaccountable eccentricities of disease took place at Halver, in Westphalia. The case was that of a boy who, as the result of a very heavy fall backward on his head while skating, had for a year and a half been deaf and dumb. One morning his brother went to awake him, and finding him sleeping heavily, tapped him lightly on the forehead. To his amazement, the deaf and dumb boy awoke with a loud cry. Both speech and hearing had been restored.—[Kansas City Journal.

In the last few years, many brands of bottled beer have made a bid for public favor. Many have been cheap in price, made possible by the use of inferior brewing materials—poor barley, second grade rice, and domestic hops. But the standard of purity and goodness in beers remains

NEWS REPORTS FROM CORRESPONDENTS OF THE TIMES.

ARCTIC INVESTIGATION.

NORTH POLE EXPEDITION.

GOAL WILL BE REACHED BEFORE AIRSHIPS ARE READY.

Office of The Times, No. 36 S. Raymond Ave.

PASADENA, April 25.—"I believe firmly that the north pole will be reached the long before the airship is perfected to the a point where it can make the trip," thissaid John R. Bradley, noted hunter Grand traveler and backer of the Bradley Arctic expedition, to The Times correspondent at Hotel Maryland last whinight. "Modern inventions and appli- the ances make the task much easier to- A day than it was five years ago, and I ver believe that the feat will soon be ac- ter complished."

tru Mr. Bradley is not inclined to talk Ju on the Arctic region, for so much has gr been written in the papers of what the he declares to be false criticisms of n Lieut. Peary that he prefers to re- Ju main silent.

of He admitted, however, that in case Dr. Cook, who is now wintering in the North with the expedition, fails to make the goal, he will back the ex- be plorer in another attempt to reach the pole.

ag It was following his ambition to hunt wild game in the far North that to Mr. Bradley started out with Dr. Cook, who had often urged on the thi traveler the idea of an Arctic expe- Co dition and a big hunt for wild game fi in the North. The vessel sailed with ad everything necessary to a polar expe- dition, and when they arrived at Etah, Peary's former station, winter quarters were made, Dr. Cook remaining with full equipment to make the dash for the pole this spring.

Mr. Bradley found fine hunting in the North, but prefers the wild game of Africa to anywhere else in the world, and as he has traveled all over the world and hunted in every clime he stands in a position to know.

His trip through Southern California is one of pleasure, and this morning he leaves the Maryland for San Francisco, the trip to be made in an automobile. In the party are Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Lockwood of Englewood, N. J., Miss Kate Lockwood and Mrs. E. J. Dunn of New York. Yosemite Valley will be one of the places visited. Mr. Bradley is a many times visitor of California, and he is much pleased with the growth of the country. A special feature of his visit here is the photographing work with the new achrome plates, and much of his time in Pasadena has been spent in taking pictures of the "beautiful Southern California flowers."

It will be remembered that Mr. Bradley in 1904 astonished the sporting world by his great hunting expedition across Africa, in which he was attended by over 100 men. He is known in every country under the sun where hunters gather and is probably one of the greatest travelers of these touring days.

HIS CONDITION IMPROVED.

Charles D. Willard, who has been ill for several days from hemorrhages at his home on San Rafael Heights, was said to be much improved yesterday afternoon, although last night he was not resting so easy, but this is said to be the result of natural causes, due in the evening.

DEEP REGRET FELT.

Executives of the Pasadena Board of Trade express deep regret that several hundred people who gathered along the proposed route of the fleet officers, failed to see them, through a necessary change of the route, which could not be foreseen.

CLOSE WITH ELECTION.

The closing session of the Woman's Board of Missions of the Pacific, which was held at the First Congregational Church in Pasadena yesterday, was the opportunity for a quiet election which resulted as follows: Board of Missions of the Pacific, Mrs. J. H. Williams, president; Mrs. W. L. Koethen, secretary; Mrs. S. K. Hughes, treasurer; Mrs. A. C. Blaikie, secretary of literature; Mrs. E. Pease, secretary of cradle roll; Mrs. O. V. Rice, secretary of young people; Mrs. L. K. Van Every, secretary of children's work.

Women's Home Missionary Union: Mrs. George Robertson, president; Mrs. H. L. Hoyt, Mrs. George Marston, Mrs. S. H. Herrick, Mrs. C. P. Eastle, district vice-presidents; Miss Mary Louise Atsatt, secretary of children's work; Mrs. D. H. Colcord, superintendent of literature; Mrs. E. C. Norton, treasurer.

POLITICAL POT BOILING.

Headquarters for the local Republican Club are open at No. 219-221 Chamber of Commerce building and as the Lincoln-Roosevelt League has quarters under the same roof, the block promises to be the center of political activities in the city during the few days that remain between now and the primaries on May 1. The Lincoln-Roosevelt League executives have arranged to hold a meeting in the Pasadena Board of Trade rooms on Monday night, and Frank G. Tirrell will be the speaker of the evening. League caucuses will be held some time next week.

CONSIDERING HIGHROADS.

Engineers who recently surveyed several roadways in and about Pasadena that were recommended for improvement by the local Board of Trade and prominent city officials, are working on the estimates of the cost of building the proposed roads. It is expected that within three weeks Chairman C. D. Daggett of the Los Angeles County Highway Commission, will have in his hands the estimates for the construction of the roads. One of these roads runs from this city through La Cañada to San Fernando, and the other is the proposed scenic boulevard along the foot of Mt. Lowe, above Altadena. It was requested that the La Cañada road be boulevarded, and that the foothill road be built with an appropriation from the commission. Just what will be done can be better determined after the reports are submitted.

WILL HOLD CONVENTION.

Arrangements are almost completed for the county convention of the forces of the Women's Christian Temperance Union that will be held in this city on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week at the First Christian Church. Tonight at the G.A.R. Hall the Pasadena Federation of the W.C.T.U., which is to be host to the visiting delegates, will given an entertainment, the proceeds to go to the entertainment of the guests while the convention is in session here.

DEATH CALL BRIDE-TO-BE.

Following close upon the announcement that Paul Du P. Townsend, the eastern millionaire, had purchased as a wedding present for his daughter Constance, the handsome J. H. Kellerman home at Oak Lawn, is the announcement that the fair bride-to-be has died suddenly at her eastern home, and that the place is to be immediately sold at public auction, Tuesday, April 28, has been set for the date, and on that day the handsome furniture and quaint antiques that make the house one of the most modern in the city, will be sold under the hammer. The full particulars of the sad story are not known in Pasadena, but Mr. Townsend has the sympathy of his many friends in this city.

PASADENA PICKUPS.

Owing to the fact that no bid on a site in the southern part of the northwest section of the city has been received the school board is in a dilemma regarding the location of a new schoolhouse in that territory. Two acres are needed and the property must lie within the limits of the district bounded by Washington street on the north, Sunset avenue on the east, Old Fair Oaks avenue on the west and Hammond street on the south.

Pasadena is to quietly submit to the preachings of Emma Goldman, providing she keeps within the bounds of reason when she speaks here on April 29 and 30. The chief of police stated today that he would not interfere unless she disturbs the peace of the community.

The crack drill team that is to represent the local Lodge of Modern Woodmen for the national prize in St. Louis this summer will give an exhibition in Armory Hall Tuesday night.

Chief Donnelly of the San Diego fire department was a visitor in Pasadena yesterday, Chief Clifford of the local department taking him on a tour of inspection about the city.

Hotel Green will close on Monday to open again on November 25 for the season of 1908-9.

Funeral services over the remains of Peter W. Dudrey, who died Thursday night at the Pasadena Hospital, will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the parlors of Ives, Warren, Salisbury Company. Rev. J. P. Lobs, assisted by Rev. F. J. Culver, will officiate. The deceased was a resident of No. 85 Palmetto Drive and was 53 years of age.

Odd Fellows of the local lodge will leave this morning at 9 o'clock on a special car for Rubio Cañon, where they will hold a picnic and celebrate the eighty-ninth aniversary of the order.

SEVERELY SCORCHES HIM.

Long Beach Man Has Painful Time of It Trying to Save His House from Burning.

LONG BEACH, April 24.—Ex-Councilman Samuel L. Lent was severely burned this morning in a successful effort to save his home at No. 646 Pacific avenue from destruction by fire. Mr. Lent had finished breakfast and, seating himself in his den, lighted a cigar and became immersed in The Times. Unnoticed by him, the head of a match which failed, had flown from the stick and lodged on the couch where it found timber to ignite and Lent soon found himself in a fiery furnace, with couch, carpet and curtains ablaze. Throwing open the window, he seized the blazing sofa and hurled it into the yard, following it with the burning carpet and curtains and in so doing sustained severe burns on both hands. The interior of the room escaped with a slight scorching and the services of the fire department were not necessary.

FRIGHT BUT NO BURGLAR.

An excited woman called up police headquarters last night and told acting Sergt. Cason that she had a burglar trapped in her home on Ocean avenue. Sergts. Phillips and Cason made a hurry trip to the scene, and found four frightened women in the parlor huddled in one another's arms. They designated the room where the burglar was confined but the officers found it empty and all doors and windows locked, with nothing to indicate the recent presence of any one. A search of the house also failed to show any signs of burglary.

LONG BEACH NOTES.

Ludwig J. Lambricht, aged 67, died this afternoon. He was a native of Germany and came to Long Beach a year ago from Broken Bow, Neb. A widow and eight children survive.

Clyde Harrison, aged 11 years, living on East Seventh street, while trying to do an acrobatic stunt on an improvised horizontal bar made of a broomstick, was thrown to the ground by the breaking of the bar and broke his left arm above the elbow.

WHITTIER.

WHITTIER, April 24.—The case of A. L. Rowe, charged with disturbing the peace on March 23, was dismissed on technical grounds in Justice Ellis's court Wednesday. Rowe alleged that Myers defrauded him in a mining stock deal some time ago, and it was over this that the trouble arose. They met on the street and Myers was beaten. Then both were arrested and after several postponements Myers took a change of venue to Downey, where he was fined $10 and costs on the 17th inst. Yesterday Rowe had a jury trial and they found him not guilty, after being out five minutes.

MONTEBELLO.

MONTEBELLO, April 24.—The Montebello Improvement Club is working to obtain for this section a public hall. Last week a committee was appointed to raise funds for the building and to see about securing a site. The first part of their work, the securing of a desirable site, has already been accomplished, Kasper Cohn & Co. having presented two desirable lots to the club for this purpose. The lots are at the corner of Fourth street and Whittier avenue.

WILMINGTON.

WILMINGTON, April 24.—The new City Council organized last night with J. M. Brennan as president. F. McClure of Los Angeles was elected City Attorney. Concerning the harbor lines the City Attorney was instructed to draft a memorial to the War Department, setting forth that inasmuch as the government has declared that it will do no work on private claims it may establish the lines as recommended by Capt. Fries, which come within the territory owned by the city and the city now desires that this should be done at once.

FOR JUNIOR FARCE.

CLAREMONT, April 24.—The cast of characters for the annual junior farce "Ralph Roysterboister," has been announced. The play will be staged by the class of 1909 in Holmes Hall auditorium, Saturday evening. Each year the junior class presents a drama of some sort, the proceeds of which aid it in publishing the college annual, The Metate. A departure from the usual run of plays has been made this year and the drama chosen is one of the early English comedies. In order to give the performance an atmosphere of the times, the members of the class not in the cast will occupy the first few rows forming a typical Elizabethan audience. Allan Benner has the title role of Roysterboister, with Miss Vera Hawkins as leading lady in the character of Christian Constance. E. O. Essig is second man in the cast, while Chesney Carver, who is financeering the show has the fool's part. Those who will represent the other characters are Florence Hill, Morris Taylor, Mamie Douglas, P. Bird, Hunter Smith, Milton Davenport, Myrth Bartlett and Ralph Crook.

The City Trustees recently elected have decided that C. M. Parsons, Jr., and L. N. Smith shall serve four years, and G. S. Sumner, C. C. Cooper, J. J. Becker will fill the two-year terms. L. N. Smith was reelected president of the board.

SINKS UNDER CANE.

Stick Figures Prominently in Unpleasantness Occurring at Avalon.

AVALON, April 24.—A. J. Levy of New York, who yesterday was beaten by Col. L. B. Wood upon the porch of the Pilgrim Club, was assisted to the steamer Cabrillo today en route for his home in New York. The two men met yesterday at 2:30 o'clock by appointment at the disused club to talk over the financial matters when suddenly Col. Wood struck Mr. Levy with his cane and the latter sank to the floor with a deep gash upon the head. Although Levy was knocked senseless with the blow he received, it is alleged that the wrathful colonel showered blow after blow upon the prostrate bleeding form before him.

It is understood that the trouble commenced b-- Mr. Levy demanding payment for a $3000 note held by himself against Col. Wood, the latter refusing payment. On the other hand, Col. Wood declares that he demanded payment for rent of his 20 per cent. interest which has been due to him nine months. He also states that since the raid made upon the club last summer, Levy desires to use the house entirely for his own private purposes, thereby freezing him out of the business entirely. Formerly Col. Wood built the Pilgrim Club at a cost of $75,000, with the understanding that he should act as manager and receive salary for his services. After Col. Wood had held the position for two years, Mr. Levy purchased the controlling interest in the concern and Wood was "fired" bodily out by the stockholders who were Col. Buckley and A. J. Levy. A suit is now pending in the courts relative to this incident. Although Col. Wood has endeavored several times to reopen the house since the raid last August, Mr. Levy has blankly refused to do so, preferring to retain the property for his own private use.

After Mr. Levy had been removed to his room, Col. Wood openly asked if he was to be arrested, but the town constable allowed him to take the steamer back to San Pedro. Some mystery seems to be attached to the matter, owing to the fact that no arrest was made. When interviewed last evening, Mr. Levy stated that he "would wait his time, even if Wood was the bigger man."

REST FOR PUGS.

Ten Days Before English and Memsic Will Come Together at the Pacific Athletic Club.

With the Jimmy Gardner-Mike Sullivan bout out of the way, the local fight bugs have nothing to bother them until May 5, when the light welterweights, George Memsic and Clarence English, will meet at the Pacific Athletic Club in a ten-round bout.

The bugs will be interested in this match, for it will be the first time that Memsic has not been forced to make weight, and if he has any real class he should show it with English. In fact, English himself has been trying to make a weight too low for him in the majority of his battles, and he thinks he should be able to extend himself in a fight in which he will not be forced to practically cut off an arm or a leg to get down to a certain figure.

This is the only fight in sight, for McCarey of the Pacific club has nothing in sight, and Jeffries states his club will not have a battle until Memorial Day, which is May 30. McCarey may try to get Nelson and Brock for the latter part of May, and Jeff declares that when he has his next fight, he will not tell any one in town the men he has signed until he gets both of them in the city. The experience he had last Thursday night tells him he must get the pugs here, so they cannot run out on him.

The Memsic-English battle should keep the local bugs guessing, for there is a chance in that one to see something good. English has beaten some good boys in his time, but now finds that he cannot longer make the lightweight limit and be strong, so he jumped at the chance to fight Memsic.

The local boy has been doing his work at the Eastside Club, and will use the old reliable punching bag, the Turk, for his rough work, and will probably pick out a sparring partner in a few days. There are a number of good ones in this city, and he will have no trouble in getting anything he wants.

English is doing his work at Watts in a tent on the ranch of an acquaintance, and expects to have Kid Dalton to box with him today. It goes without saying that a crowd of sports will watch him closely all the time he is training, for he has not been seen in action here in a fight, and those who think Memsic is a real live one at his natural weight want to know something about English. Two good preliminaries will precede the main event.

COAST AMATEUR BOUTS.

Wrestling and Boxing Championships Being Contested Before Portland Club.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

PORTLAND (Or.) April 24.—The championship Pacific Coast programme of the boxing and wrestling bouts under the auspices of the Multnomah A. C. continued tonight. Results:

Wrestling, 115-pound class: Harvey Donaldson, Seattle Y.M.C.A., defeated Fred B. Hussey, Seattle A. C.

The 135-pound class: V. Venables, Seattle A. C., defeated J. E. Finnegan, Multnomah. F. A. Brownell, Reliance A.C., Oakland, defeated J. E. Finnegan.

The 158-pound class: H. E. Grimm, Seattle A. C., defeated Walter Dyerborg, Portland Y.M.C.A. E. C. Johnson, Multnomah, defeated G. J. Anloff, Reliance Club, Oakland.

Boxing, 115 pounds, final: Eddie Dennis, Olympic Club, San Francisco, won from Fred Couture, Reliance, Oakland, in four rounds.

The sports will be concluded tomorrow night.

The wrestling and boxing bouts began last night. Forty athletes representing the clubs of Portland, Seattle, Spokane, San Francisco and Oakland entered for the various events. The card was an interesting one and was witnessed by more than 2000 persons.

Wrestling results: Edward Wells of Portland Y.M.C.A., defeated Fred B. Hussey, Seattle A. C.

In the 125-pound class, V. Venable of Seattle A.C., secured a fall over Otto Ott, Multnomah A. C., in one minute, fourteen seconds; and F. A. Brownell, Reliance A. C., Oakland, was given the decision over E. D. Smith, Multnomah.

The 158-pound wrestling championship was won by J. Johnson of Seattle A. C., who was awarded the decision over G. J. Anloff, Reliance A. C., after two six-minute and one three-minute bouts.

The boxing contests: Pacific Coast championship, 105 pounds, was won by Heine Ritter, Spokane A. C., over Richard Hewett, unattached, the referee stopping the bout in the second round. In this bout Ritter injured his hand and will not be able to compete further during the tournament.

Elmer Strange, Multnomah A. C., was awarded the decision over O. L. Grant, Olympic A. C., San Francisco, in four rounds of great fighting.

William Speck, Seattle A. C., was given the decision over H. Nicken, Multnomah A. C. The police stopped the bout just before the bell in the third, Nicken being badly beaten.

BLEE ELECTED CAPTAIN.

Quarter-Mile Runner Chosen to Lead Occidental's Track Team for Next Season.

Clarence Blee, '09, was elected captain of the Occidental 1909 track team by this year's athletes. Blee was a member of the championship relay team of the last season, and is a fast quarter-mile man. He runs the distance in less than 53s, and next year is expected to do better work.

Fred Thomson was also a candidate for the office but he withdrew in favor of Blee, who will graduate next year. Blee had intended to go to one of the northern universities next year, but it is expected that he will now return to Occidental, although he has not yet decided definitely.

Bruce Merrill, James Gordon and Spring are the only track men the Presbyterians will lose by graduation this year, and they hope to turn out a winning team next season. However, some of the underclass men are talking about quitting at the end of this year, and this uncertainty, together with the unknown productions of next year's freshman class, makes it impossible for even the most prophetic Occidentalites to make predictions for the future.

Ex-President Cleveland was better yesterday and the physicians believe he will be able to leave for his home at Princeton in a few days.

No dentifrice like SOZODONT. Why? Because its mission as an Alkaline Antiseptic Liquid Dentifrice is to permeate the gums and mouth and penetrate the minutest crevices of the teeth, neutralizing and removing mouth acids, antisepticising and cleansing the entire tooth structure.

Its fragrance is delicious and lasting.

LUNATIC'S VICTIM.

ATTENDANT'S SKULL OF ATTENDANT.

SUDDENLY VIOLENT AT PATTON ASYLUM.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

REDLAND, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The diphtheria epidemic at the California State Home at Patton has not improved. To-day it is authoritatively reported that there have been five deaths, and other cases have appeared in the town of Highland, and Dr. D. Patton, county health officer, announced that unless improvement declares itself the next forty-eight hours the community will be quarantined.

Campbell, an attendant at the home, was attacked this afternoon by a patient named Carlson, who fractured Campbell's skull with a wagon spoke, causing injuries from which Campbell will die. Carlson had been employed as a harnessmaker, and was assisting Campbell when he suddenly became violent.

QUEEN CONTESTS.

Last night the two contests between the queens of the high and low courts of the Festival of the Queens will close, and the victors will be crowned. Great interest has been taken in the race. Today in the high contest Miss Roxy McNeill is in the lead, with 1199 votes to her credit. The close second and third are Bessie Melone and Miss Hazel Hott, respectively. There are seven other candidates, but they have not been marked so closely, some may spring surprises in the last hour of the contest.

Two sisters in the race for junior honors, Mildred Hott leads total vote of 1154, while Gladys stands second, with 1134. There is a well-defined fight that little Miss Hewins may create a sensational spurt tomorrow, and the fight between her and Miss Hott promises to be almost as much. Both queens will be in regal attire, $600 having been spent for their costumes. The latter will be the property of the queen after the celebration.

The big features of the festival, the drills, participated in by contingents from Redlands, Riverside, Ontario and other valley towns. Ten years ago Redlands came to San Bernardino on special trains to assist in celebrating from the fire fiend, and it is proposed to make them larger and royally return the favor. Services rendered a decade ago.

SAN BERNARDINO BRIEFS.

Frank Clayton, claiming to be a mining engineer from Mexico, was arraigned this morning charged with passing worthless checks on business men. The accused passed checks for $5 each at the Owl saloon within an hour, and received money thus obtained in large part for beer and whisky upon the Owl and Stewart bar. Other victims also taken in. The accused is said to have deposited money in a bank on which his checks were drawn, but this is disputed by the bank.

Attorney Kramer, a native of this city, well known throughout the county, passed away last night, after a long illness, aged 27 years. The widow, formerly Miss Amy Hall of this city, parents and several sisters.

Word was received this morning received from Constable E. R. Harris, asking him to look out for one Black, who is charged with desertion of the camp, taking $135 belonging to his employer, a man named Black is a teamster. He is said to have deserted a wife and child, who are left in destitute circumstances.

Governor Gray white vetoed Assemblyman J. J. Hanford's veto of the ordinance granting a franchise to the Pacific Electric for standardizing the interurban line through this city, and will confer with the City Clerk, before the veto upon the charge that the Council refused to give all property owners who protested granting the franchise a hearing.

YUCAIPE.

Yucaipe, April 24.—This week has been one of additions to the population, by the prospective early completion of the new Redlands and Yucaipe road. The organization has been perfected and at a meeting of the directors the order for seventy-pound rails together with a sufficient number of fish and other material to complete the work being started not later than May 1. The railroad is to put on extra cars to load and unload at different points. Connection with the Redlands lines is to be made at Crafton.

The question of motive power is still unsettled. Electricity and gasoline cars of the eastern type are favored. The latter lead, owing to the cheaper power and ease of operation when compared to the cost of installation. A revision of the survey made by Chief Engineer Lavrakas, who is seeking a shorter line for the Oak Glen extension, is completed the plans for the system on Wednesday. The system is of certain interest to the distribution of the fruit already developed in the valley, and for a greater population which the valley is likely to possess. The work will be finished by July 1.

Bids are being let for carrying the mail between Redlands and the Yucaipe postoffice at Yucaipe.

The welcome address was given by Rev. Thomas Nesbitt, pastor of Colton Presbyterian church, response was by Miss Lillian Redmond. Rev. C. E. Secretary of Colton delivered an address.

Miss Ethel left this week on a visit to Miss Ethel McCammond of Chicago, a guest of his cousin, J. Hamilton, of North Eighth street. Miss McCammond for twenty-six years a resident of the First Presbyterian church of Santa Barbara.

WAVE AS SHIPS PASS.

Employees of Sugar Company at Oxnard to Have Opportunity to See the Fleet.

OXNARD, April 24.—The Atlantic fleet is expected to pass Point Hueneme tomorrow at 12:30 o'clock. At that point hundreds of residents of Oxnard will gather to wave their welcome to the ships. The American Beet Sugar Company has declared a holiday and has secured accommodations for the transportation of its employés to the beach, all of whom have received passes for the event and will be given lunches for themselves and families. The fleet will steam along slowly a knot from the shore and will be lustily cheered by the crowds.

RAIN HAS DONE GOOD.

It has been estimated by the American Beet Sugar Company of Oxnard that the rain of the past week, averaging a little more than an inch over the valley, will mean an increase of about 45,000 tons of beets or an increase in the length of the present run of at least a month. The planting of beets has been entirely completed, with 12,800 acres in. Of this amount there have been 12,000 acres that have secured a stand and over 11,000 acres have been thinned. An early beet grinding campaign is assured and the factory will open some time in June.

The hay and grain crops have been greatly improved as a result of the rain, and fields that were thought to be lost a week ago are now admitted to be in a fairly good condition and will raise a crop.

SECURE GOOD ROCK.

The contractors, Greenwell & Donlon, who have taken the contract to pave the principal streets of Oxnard, state that they have secured plenty of the best paving stone possible to find anywhere in the State, and this announcement will mean considerable to Ventura and Santa Barbara counties as well. Both of these counties will soon begin the extensive building of county roads. The lack of building stone has been the greatest problem to face. In order to secure a good material, however, experiments were recently made at Round Mountain, and samples of the rock were sent to Washington, D. C., for the government test, which proved to be unfavorable and pronounced the rock too soft.

J. B. Waud, former County Surveyor and the engineer in charge of the report on the county roads to be built in this county as a result of the County Commission report, decided to continue this investigation, and had the work completed by assistants. As a result a fine hard road rock was uncovered at a depth of a few feet, and gives every indication of being permanent.

Chief Engineer Blackburn of Oxnard has had a spur built to the site of the new quarry by the R. and V. Railroad people, and the rock may be used in the city work. The Southern Pacific Company has also made a bid to furnish the rock in the big street paving contracts from their Camarillo quarry.

DECIDES LAND SUIT.

Superior Court of Orange County Hands Down Opinion on Several Points.

SANTA ANA, April 24.—An opinion was handed down today by Superior Judge West in a case involving a number of law points. The case was that of H. C. Head against James S. Rice, and concerned the title to eleven acres in the lowlands southwest of Santa Ana. The decision is for the plaintiff. Rice and his predecessors in interest showed that they had been in possession of the land since 1865. The court ruled that the defense failed to show to whom the property was assessed. A fence built in 1876 was held not to be an "acquiescence" proof, as it was not proven that the plaintiff's predecessors in interest accepted it as a settlement.

Two final decrees of divorce were granted today by Superior Judge West, one to Eddie E. Beatty from Nettie R. Beatty, and one to Catherine Ghristen from W. F. Christen. The plaintiff in the latter case is allowed to assume her maiden name, Catherine Pelbers.

No jury was secured today in the City Recorder's court for the trial of J. W. Driver, a drug clerk charged with an illegal sale of liquor. By the examination of talesmen by the prosecution it is plain that detective evidence will be used in the case.

TUSTIN.

TUSTIN, April 24.—The Orange county convention of the W.C.T.U. today elected officers thus: President, Mrs. Viola Norman of Santa Ana; vice-president, Mrs. Anna Hill, Santa Ana; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Alma Kellogg, Santa Ana; recording secretary, Mrs. Emma Schulte, Fullerton; Assistant recording secretary, Mrs. Lee Warren, Santa Ana; treasurer, Mrs. Frances Paine, Orange; assistant treasurer, Mrs. Nellie Tedford, Santa Ana. Mrs. Paine, who was reelected treasurer of the county organization, has served seventeen years in that position.

FOLLOW VENTURA COAST.

Warships to Run Near to Shore so That Multitude Can Get View of Them.

VENTURA, April 24.—In answer to a message sent to him by D. J. Reese of this city, Admiral Thomas has forwarded the following:

"Flagship Connecticut, April 24.

"D. J. Reese, Ventura: Fleet will pass close inshore en route San Pedro to Santa Barbara on Saturday afternoon."

This will come as good news to the thousands of people of this county who will go to the seashore at this point to see the ships pass on their way northward. Along the Ventura county coast is a deep indenture reaching inland and the natural course from Hueneme point to Santa Barbara would take ships far out at sea. By following the coast trend it will be a much longer journey for the fleet, but it is only in this way that many thousands of people will get to see the ships, and they will be thankful that the admiral has kindly consented to follow the coast.

FOR PAVING.

Contractor James Montgomery of Los Angeles, who has the contract for doing all the petrolithic paving of all the streets of this city, is getting ready to go at the big job. He has leased a half block at the foot of Chestnut street and is bringing in his teams and men and machinery as rapidly as possible. The first thoroughfare to be treated will be Thompson boulevard, a stretch of road a mile and a half long and reaching eastward into the country. It will take several years to do all the work.

ARE EXCITED BY LURE OF OIL.

MANY CLAIMS FILED IN THE IMPERIAL VALLEY.

Rush Is Started by Report of a Party of Experts Who Visit the Territory — Another Party to Leave El Centro for the District Early Next Week.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

EL CENTRO, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] New excitement over oil lands has broken out in Imperial Valley, and today 366 oil claims of twenty acres each were filed with the County Recorder by residents of El Centro and Brawley.

These claims are located in the northern part of township 13, range 12, and the southern part of township 12, range 12, lying sixteen miles north and west of Brawley, at the base of Superalition Mountain. The list of locators includes many of the most prominent business men of Imperial Valley.

The excitement was started by the report of a party of experts who visited the territory this week. Another party will leave El Centro for the district early next week with several oil experts from Los Angeles and San Diego. Plans are formulating to organize a local company to sink test wells.

FOR TROLLEY LINE.

San Jacinto People Receive Word That Railroad Is About to Become a Fact.

SAN JACINTO, April 24.—C. S. Chesnut of Redlands, who has been in San Jacinto often in the interests of a trolley road to connect this valley with Redlands, sends word to San Jacinto people that the long-dreamed-of line is about to be realized. Although the road will first be built to the Yucaipe Valley, the line will eventually be extended to San Jacinto and later to the coast in San Diego county. Mr. Chesnut is authority for the statement that the road will be in operation between Redlands and San Jacinto by the last of next year. The news of the organization of the railroad company was received with much enthusiasm in San Jacinto. For the past year the citizens of this valley have been looking anxiously for some definite announcement concerning the building of a railroad to Redlands, and this week's news has been the best that has been heard for several months. The importance of such a line to San Jacinto and the surrounding country is great. Redlands is closer to San Jacinto than is any other large city. The new road would open up a wonderful market for the dairy, fruit and ranch products of this valley, while on the other hand a vast area of back country would be opened to the merchants of Redlands.

RAIN BETTERS SITUATION.

Nearly an inch of rain fell in this valley this week and reports from the mountain sections as well as from the country about Lakeview, Winchester and Auld are to the effect that the precipitation has been general. The mountain cattle ranges have been greatly benefited and stockmen are now assured of abundance of feed lasting well into the summer, when the usual summer showers in the mountains should carry stock through the summer in excellent condition. The grain ranchers are even more happy than the stockmen, for in many instances the situation had become alarming with the dry ranches. Late-sown grain had made very little growth and was beginning to dry up. Had the rain held off for ten days longer ranchers declare that thousands of acres of the late-sown grain would not have been worth cutting. This grain now will practically all make hay, while grain that without this rain would have yielded only a light crop of hay will now be harvested.

SAN JACINTO JOTS.

Rev. Booker Smith and wife left San Jacinto Tuesday for Tacoma, Wash., where Mr. Smith has been called to occupy his former pulpit. For the past year Rev. Smith has been occupying the pulpit in the Christian Church of this place.

W. W. Kirby and family departed the first of the week for an extended visit to their former home in the East.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Blair are expected to arrive in San Jacinto Saturday evening. The marriage of this couple in Los Angeles last Saturday was a great surprise to all their San Jacinto friends, the other members of their families not even being in the secret. The bride, formerly Miss Alice Bunker, is a western girl.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Schain left the first of the week on a visit East. During their absence they expect to make a study of scientific dairying as it is carried on by the advanced dairy farms in the East.

A. G. Munn has sold the San Jacinto Register to M. L. Sherpy, recently from Washington.

ELSINORE.

ELSINORE, April 24.—It is reported that the apricot crop in this valley will be an excellent one, as there have been no frosts; but that there will be a light prune crop, owing to the fact that much of the young fruit is dropping.

Edward Jones has sold his four-room cottage and one lot on Riley street to L. H. Young, who, with his family will reside there.

A. H. Austin, the mail carrier between Elsinore and Corona, will hereafter carry the mail by motorcycle. Guy W. Willsey having returned from Los Angeles with the machine.

Carlisle Gibson, who has spent the past week visiting his daughters in Santa Ana, Los Angeles and Hollywood, returned home yesterday.

THE OIL INDUSTRY.

MORE CAPITAL IN CHIHUAHUA.

MICHIGAN AND MINNESOTA MEN WILL DEVELOP FIELD.

Big Exclusive Concession Given on Public Land Near Hearst-Keene Syndicate — Paraffin-Petroleum Is Important in a British-American Contest Now in Sight.

Minnesota and Michigan capitalists, with C. R. Troxel, BM. W. and Ross McCausland and Alberto Terrazas, all of Chihuahua, Mexico, have formed a company to exploit a large area in the eastern part of the State of Chihuahua, close to where W. R. Hearst and James R. Keene have found oil. The steam drilling outfit with which they will start work has just been unloaded at Falomir station, the present terminus of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient Railroad in Eastern Chihuahua, on the Rio Conchos.

Development is under a concession granted Mr. Terrazas, one of the leading citizens and moneyed men of Chihuahua, and a relative of Gov. Creel. By this concession, he or such a company as he may organize is authorized to exploit and prospect for petroleum, hydro-carbons or their by-products on all unappropriated and national lands as well as on those on which the government has reserved mineral rights in giving title to the surface in the districts of Camargo and Iturbide, which comprise the eastern part from the Rio Grande south.

It gives the privilege of free exportation of all natural products obtained, free importation of all necessary machinery and supplies, exemption of invested capital from federal taxation, the right to purchase such government lands as are needed, the right of expropriation, also that of laying pipe through private property, and no other person will be allowed to drill within a three-kilometer radius of any of the concessionaire's wells during the ten-year life of the concession.

The concessionaire must notify the Department of Fomento (Development) when he finds any strata of petroleum, must invest the sum of 100,000 pesos or $50,000 during the first seven years, must render an account of money spent for exploration and exploitation and pay to the nation 7, and to the State, 3 per cent. of the value of the liquid products obtained, the amount being determined at the end of each fiscal year, provided the daily output is not less than 1470 liters, and, if less, this amount will be reduced proportionately. Mr. Terrazas has deposited 5000 pesos to guarantee his part of the contract.

Besides this concession, the company has acquired oil rights on several big tracts belonging to private parties. All this is in the same region as the wells of the Hearst-Keene syndicate, the third of which is well under way. C. R. Troxel, one of the organizers, is the one to whom the entire credit for the opening of this region for oil is due. He was the one who brought Hearst and Keene to Chihuahua.

Eugene Costa of Toronto, Canada, oil expert of the Canadian Pacific Railroad, has been in Chihuahua and visited the oil region to make a study of conditions, but has declined to make any statement.

Dr. C. F. Z. Caracristi, a scientist who made a report for the government of the United States in 1899-01 on the coal and petroleum deposits of South America and their fitness for use as a base of fuel supply for the Panama Canal, and for the navy in case of war, has been making a study of the new Mexican fields in the last few years, as well as of the territory just north of these in Texas. He is of the opinion that a great oil belt is to be opened and the discoveries of Hearst and Keene bear him out, while the same can be said of recent finds in Texas, which are on a direct line with the former.

Dr. Caracristi is of the opinion that these fields will be of the greatest importance in the coming struggle evidently expected between the American oil interests, as represented by the Hearst-Keene syndicate, the Mexican Petroleum Company, the new Michigan and Minnesota company, and others in Mexican production, and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, in the importation and refining of American crude on the one hand and the British interests represented by Pearson & Son on the other. Americans who dominate the world's oil industry will need all they can get in Mexico to resist the Britishers.

The interest taken in the oil deposits found in Western Texas just north of the Eastern Chihuahua fields is shown by State Land Commissioner Terrill's appeal to the Legislature for laws to regulate and protect public lands in that belt.

Angelenos in Chihuahua.

That E. L. Doheny, the Los Angeles capitalist and president of the Mexican Petroleum Company, acting either for that corporation or for himself, is taking interest in Chihuahua developments, is plain. Gov. Creel, who was entertained by Mr. Doheny while in Los Angeles, and who owns much land in this district, stated after his return to Chihuahua that it was likely Mr. Doheny would take up oil lands in the State. The oil is paraffin, while all in the south is asphalt. The possession of good wells here would give a great advantage in the refining trade over the Pearsons, who have only an asphalt product.

Two Destroyers Burn Oil.

According to a Washington dispatch, only two of the five new torpedo-boat destroyers are to be equipped for oil. This is due to excessively high bids, in the opinion of the Navy Department, for installing the apparatus on the other three. The installation of oil burners on the two will cost about $25,000 each.

New Midway Company.

The St. Lawrence is the name of a company just organized by San Franciscans, with F. E. Mannel as field manager. It will develop a quarter section at Midway, adjoining the Midway of Oregon property. The wire is being strung for the telephone line that is to connect Bakersfield with the west side fields. It will go from the town direct to Sunset, thence through Midway to McKittrick and Temblor and thence back to Bakersfield.

Railroad Scrippers Lose.

The general land office at Washington has affirmed the decision in favor of La Corona Oil and Asphalt Company against the Santa Fé railroad as to ownership of the west half of the northeast quarter and the east half of the northwest quarter of section 32-30-22 at McKittrick. It was located as gypsum land by Bakersfield people, who formed La Corona Company, and afterward the Santa Fé attempted to place scrip on it.

Oil Land Bill Passed.

The Chamber of Mines' oil land bill, which passed the House of Representatives a few days since, is now before the Senate, and Senator Flint has written that he hopes to have it up shortly.

SHAH'S WONDERFUL JEWELS.

The Shah of Shahs, the Light of the Orient, has taken extraordinary precautions to safeguard his wonderful collection of jewels, estimated to be worth $85,000,000.

Some American travelers here were indiscreet enough to talk openly about the wonderful treasures hidden in the Shah's vaults. The frank Americans were wondering, admiring, not conspiring. But being Americans, their conversation was reported to His Majesty, who was seized with the notion that there was a plot on foot to rob him of his jewels.

Immediately he had deeper and even more secure vaults dug. The iron doors of the passages leading to the vaults have ingenious electrical contrivances which, when set, not only will send an alarm to the palace guard, but will discharge explosives enough to destroy an army of robbers. Night and day a score of picked men guard the jewel vaults—cruel, ruthless mountaineers, who await only the order to kill.

But it is small wonder that the King of Kings guards his gems as jealously as a girl her first ring, or a bride her husband's wedding gift. His greatest treasure is a sword whose hilt and scabbard are incrusted with diamonds of marvelous size and brilliancy, worth $1,500,000. The imperial crown contains a ruby which is regarded as the finest in the world. Such a one could not be bought for $750,000.

There is in the vaults the girdle of state, which is heavily inlaid with diamonds and emeralds. A treasure beyond all price is a cube of amber, measuring 400 cubic inches. It fell from heaven in the time of Mohammed, and has a queer inscription traced by celestial hands, believed to be those of the Angel Gabriel. The die is often mentioned in Persian legend.—[New York World.
